

TIGER FLOWERS MEETS ANDERSON THURSDAY NIGHT

Four Fights on Macon Card Featuring McGowan, Clark

It will be a four-bout fight fest that will greet Macon fans on the Fourth of July, it was announced from Atlanta today by Promoter Holt Gwiner, who is staging the Billy McGowan-Jackie Clark 12-round feature at the Central City ball park Independence day.

The card, which had been planned to include only three bouts, was extended Saturday when Gwiner signed a couple of youngsters, one from Atlanta, the other a Macon boy, for a four-round argument to open festivities.

The card as finally mapped out Saturday by Gwiner is as follows:

First Preliminary—Matt Griffin, Macon, and Kid Slocum, Atlanta, four rounds.

Second Preliminary—Harry Allen, Macon, and Ollie Sullivan, Atlanta, 10 rounds.

Semi-windup—Jordan Shepard, Macon, and Tommy Wallace, Tampa, Fla., featherweights, 10 rounds.

Main Bout—Billy McGowan, Atlanta, and Jackie Clark, Allentown, Pa., light heavyweights, 12 rounds.

The card is one that hasn't been equalled in Macon in several years.

It will be as good as any fight Young Stripling, idol of Georgia, ever staged in his home town, for McGowan, sparring partner for Stripling, is more of a boxer and more of a fighter now than Stripling was when he last fought in Macon. McGowan has reached the point where he is just ready to enter the big-time of the east. He's the only real contender now for the light heavyweight crown of the southland.

Clark, a veteran of Florida, is coming to Macon with an eye to business, for if he sets down the coming Georgia fighter, he will have a highly prized featherweight title already in his cap. McGowan has his future at stake, for the winner of the Macon match has been promised a meeting with Young Stripling in a few months.

The semi-windup affair, a ten-rounder, will give Macon fans some of their own brand of fighting, for Jordan Shepard is a comer in the featherweight class. His record, Atlanta, in which he whipped Boot Antley, of Columbus, to a standstill, was an indication of his speed.

Tommy Wallace, of Tampa, however, will be no walkover for Shepard, for Wallace has been fighting some of the best featherweights in the south and was induced to come to Macon only by an unusually big guarantee for a semi-windup bout.

There will be a lot of interest in the ten-rounder that takes Ollie Sullivan into the ring against Allen, Macon boy. Sullivan is claiming a comeback from a championship of the south.

Griffin and Kid Slocum, who open the festivities, scheduled to start at 6:30 o'clock, are both snappy little fighters, and will wet Maconites' appetite for the following affairs.

Returns to Ring This Week

Low Silver, popular little local battler, will return to the ring this week after absence of several months because of various ailments. Silver is to fight in Tampa, Fla., on July 4. Recently Silver has taken up golf as a part of his training.

Low Silver Faces Severe Test in Series of Bouts

After having been the victim of a series of misfortunes that had kept him from the squared circle for almost six months, Low Silver, Atlanta's little featherweight boxer-dentist, is back in shape again, and facing a strenuous campaign for the coming hot months, according to an announcement by his manager, Max Abelson. He has been signed for a number of severe tests, beginning with a bout against Frankie Britt, Bridgeport slugger, in Tampa, Fla., on the Fourth of July.

Beginning with an injury to his shoulder early in March, Silver has gone through a varied siege of misfortunes. Low had been billed to box a number of matches at the time he was injured, the feature of which was a bout in Philadelphia, where he was to have his big chance against one of the outstanding featherweights in the country. His bout, along with matches in Louisville, Ky., Miami and Tampa, Fla., and a 15-rounder in Havana, Cuba, were all postponed.

During the past few weeks, however, Silver has been working with a will, and he now is ready to take on the best of the country affords in his rank. Aside from the bout on July Fourth, Silver has two other matches already signed, one being a return to in Tampa on July 11 and the other bringing him to meet the Cuban featherweight title holder, Juan Cusala, in Havana, Cuba, July 19. A number of other matches are in the making, according to Manager Abelson, who hopes to have his fighter tackle the best of the featherweight division before he is called back to his studies.

Has Taken Up Golf

During the past few months Silver has developed into one of the hardest driving golfers seen on local links. Due to having been warned that gymnasium work would work a handicap on his eyes, which had been causing him some little worry, Low went in for the great outdoor sport. Those who have watched him in action say that he has the makings of a champion. Silver has been a little awkward at the finer manipulations, but is mastering them in splendid style now.

Silver and his manager will leave Atlanta next Tuesday for his coming bout in Tampa, and will probably remain away from Atlanta until his schedule of bouts in the torrid zone have been disposed of. Efforts are being made for a match with some logical opponent in Atlanta soon, while bouts in other sections of the country are hanging fire until his return from the Havana bout on July 19.

Smyrna Defeats Two Games Today

Ga. Marble Nine At McPherson

Smyrna, Ga., June 28.—(Special.) Smyrna had an easy time of it here today beating the Georgia Marble company's club by the score of 10 to 3 before the largest crowd seen here this season.

The local boys played nice ball back of Gann, who pitched a good game all the way. Arthur Hasty, who pitched in the press league in Atlanta last year, hit one for a home run in the seventh with two men on bases and that put the game on ice for the home boys.

The batteries were Carlyle, Dobbins and Harwood for the Georgia Marble Co.; Gann and Brinkley for Smyrna. Umpire, Caulder.

Score by innings: Ga. Marble 029 000 100—3; 7; 5; Smyrna 001 110 433—10 10 4.

Chilhowee Wins Wright, Freeman

Latonia Derby Tied in Shoot

Latonia, Ky., June 28.—(By the Associated Press.)—Forty thousand spectators saw Chilhowee win the $30,000 Latonia derby, in which Black Gold, Kentucky Derby winner, finished third. Gibson was second. Time was 2:30.15.

The race at a mile and a half was a grueling test of speed, in which Chilhowee, the conqueror of Black Gold a week ago, led almost from the start. Black Gold made a game challenge in the drive for the wire but could not overcome Chilhowee's lead.

Chilhowee finished second to Black Gold in the Kentucky Derby, and is owned by Gallaher Brothers, of Lexington, Ky. The winner was admirably ridden by Jockey McDermott.

Dr. J. C. Wright and H. D. Freeman tied for first place in high scores at the weekly handicap shoot, held Saturday afternoon at the Atlanta Gun club. Both Wright and Freeman had a score of 50 with a handicap of 2, making a perfect record.

Dr. McKenzie and Dr. Wright were tied for highest honors in the 12 pairs of doubles with a score of 21 each. W. J. Tims was second with 20.

The scores follow: Dr. J. C. Wright 50, H. D. Freeman 50, H. M. McKenzie 49, R. W. Baker 47, W. J. Tims 47, R. W. Norris 48, Mrs. J. C. Wright 46, Brad Tims 44, Dr. H. N. Alford 44, W. A. Day 41.

The Rules of Golf

—By—

DISTRACTING ATTENTION

A few months ago a golfer submitted a question as to whether a player had any redress under the rules when an opponent deliberately moves or coughs or drops a club, while the player is in the act of making a stroke, stating he had watched a match in which such things happened. The answer to the question is no. The present rules make no provisions against such unsportsmanlike action, though a tournament committee should have been deemed unnecessary to keep such a rule in the playing code, though it is of course recognized as one of the established principles of etiquette of the game that nothing is to be done to in any way disturb or interfere with a player playing a stroke.

Explanations

During a match an opponent gets behind a player when he takes his stance to make a putt. Obviously, this is annoying. Is there any redress?

The rules allow none. Any golfer should know enough not to place himself on a line with the putter of his opponent.

Was there no redress for Bobby Jones when playing Dave Herron at Oakmont when an official yelled "Fore" through a megaphone just as Jones was playing a shot?

The rules allow none. The shot stands as played.

If any golf rules puzzle you, write Innis Brown, care of The Constitution Sporting Editor, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope. He'll clear them for you.

FOR A BETTER SCORE

Much has been said and written about the importance of concentration in golf. When it comes to the matter of offering suggestions for helping a player to concentrate properly, Jim Barnes' advice to think of what you are doing as you do it is about as sound as anything offered. By that is meant, settle all preliminaries about the selection of the club, the method of striking the ball and so on before taking the stance, then keep your mind on starting the club as you start it, on taking it back as it is carried to the top of the swing, and then on bringing it down against the ball as that operation is being performed. In other words keep the mind on what is being done instead of letting it run out ahead to worry over what is going to happen to the ball.

CHICAGO GIRLS' TEAM TO PLAY SUMMERVILLE

Summerville, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—An unusually interesting game of baseball is scheduled for next Monday, June 30, when the American Athletic Girls' baseball club, of Chicago, will come to Summerville for a game with the local team. The game will be called at 3 o'clock at the new ball park in southeast Summerville.

Honors Even in Two Former Meetings of Pair; Four Good Preliminaries Are on Card

THURSDAY'S CARD.

Tiger Flowers vs. Lee Anderson (12 rounds).

"Tiny" Roberts vs. Jack Vogt (8 rounds).

Happy Hunter vs. Dangerous Dave Thornton (6 rounds).

Young Bob Martin vs. Larry O'Leary (6 rounds).

Like a menacing cyclone on the horizon, Lee Anderson, former holder of the colored light heavyweight championship of the world, looms as a real menace to Tiger Flowers, present champion, when the two dusky and willing battlers square off in their twelve-round match for the title here Thursday night. The fight will be staged at the city auditorium, and is flanked by a fine card of prelims.

Anderson and the Georgia battler have met twice before, in the last engagement, which resulted in a decision for Flowers, is the flame that has fanned Anderson's hatred for his southern foe to a high heat. Not that Anderson wants to add the revenge angle to the scrap.

He merely contends that in the last scrap he fought under the handicap of a broken right hand, getting more efficient and feared weapon of ring warfare. There may be something in Anderson's claim, for a few weeks before meeting Flowers, he knocked Kid Norfolk down five times, and his right hand was the flooring weapon each time.

Anderson has knocked Flowers out once before and he takes the logical attitude that what he has done before he can accomplish again. The kayo was scored in Juarez, Mexico, a year or two ago.

Anderson today is classed as one of the most feared light-heavyweights in the game, and he is a foe that no man can afford to laugh at. Anderson's right hand, when working properly, is more certain to spread devastation than dynamite. He has three times carried Lee to victories over George Robinson.

Kayeed Kid Norfolk.

It gave him the right to share with Harry Wills the distinction of being the only living fighter who has kayeed Kid Norfolk. When they get to where they can put that bird under the care of a referee for a long and fatal count, there is something to their claim for greatness. Anderson has met all of the leading men of his class and has whipped that vicious scrapper, Battling McCreary, of Boston.

Probably the greatest fight of Anderson's career was waged at Juarez, Mexico, last September, against Jeff Smith, who very adroitly keeps out of the way when promoters want to send him against Flowers. He waged a brilliant battle against Smith, and so successfully won the Mexican promoters are always after him for fights. He is a real drawing card out there.

In fact, Atlanta was lucky in being selected for the site of the rubber match between the two fighters. For shortly after the fight, signs of the two boys to fight here, Jim Erwin, chief promoter of Juarez, came forward with a bid for the fight. He wanted it so bad that he offered Miller a flat guarantee of $1,500 to fight Anderson in Juarez on the Fourth of July.

Miller was forced to decline, as he had already announced that the fight would be staged here.

To Train in Public

Anderson and Flowers are both due to report here Monday, and each man will be required to engage in three days of public training. Extreme caution was taken by Miller in order that Atlanta fans may have the privilege of seeing the welterweights whether or not the two principals are in perfect shape. The public workouts will be held at the Business Men's Athletic club, where he has located his upstairs at 87 1-2 Peachtree street.

Flowers has engaged in three fights in the last two weeks, having chosen that method of getting his feet under him. There is nothing that puts the Tiger on edge for a big bout like engaging in several ring combats. He will, however, in a six-round here to complete his preparations.

In the semi-windup "Tiny" Fred Roberts, former athletic star of Oglethorpe university, will be introduced to Atlanta ring fans for the first time. Roberts has engaged in two professional matches, winning one and losing the other. Decisions in both were reached by knockouts.

Roberts is billed to fight Jack Vogt, formerly of Montana, now of Athens, Ga., in an eight-round affair.

Two other preliminary bouts—Homer Powell and Irish Benny Cline—will provide excitement in the other eight-rounder on the fiscal program. Cline has run his string of knockouts to ten out of thirteen, and is earning the reputation of being the Berenbach of the south.

Dangerous Dave Thornton and Happy Hunter, negro light heavyweights, will be pitted against each other in a six-round preliminary. Hunter is described by Miller as a second Tiger Flowers, who lacks only further training to develop into a real winner.

Young Bob Martin and Larry O'Leary will be the principals in the other prelin battle. The bantamweights are scheduled to swap punches over a six-round route.

EACH CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT WITH KNOCKOUT PUNCH

Leonard Shoots for Chin While Dempsey Has Series To Lay Out His Opponent

While Dempsey Has Series To Lay Out His Opponent

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

Benny Leonard says the best "knockout spot" is the chin, but the blow must land on either side to be effective. A blow delivered from squarely in front is simply a hard jab cushioned by the jaw on both sides. A blow on the side of the chin is a twisting blow, and the shock effect is much greater. Benny has studied it out, and perhaps like Joe Gans and a few other scientific fighters, borrowed the idea from Bob Fitzsimmons. There are few points in hitting that were unknown to old Bob.

Jack Dempsey, the greatest hitting heavyweight of this time, and shock king of them all so far as ring history goes, back, hits anywhere along the angle of the jawbone to get the twisting jar. He doesn't have to land cleanly on the side of the point of the chin to drop his man. He almost always tries to get the first blow over on the ribs just above the heart. If I can't reach the solar plexus," Dempsey told me not long ago, "that heart punch weakens the other fellow and brings his hands down so that I can hook the left to the side of his jaw, and that knocked his head over just in range of a short straight right, so I slipped him that, too. Probably any one of the three would have won, but the combination made sure of it."

The "Hospital Punch."

Fulton was knocked out in 14 1/2 seconds—a record among first-class heavyweights.

Dempsey caught Willard at Toledo with a right over the heart. It was Dempsey's first blow in the fight, and it was Willard's last. He was knocked out. The left followed and Willard fell.

That heart punch, as used by fighters without Dempsey's terrific hitting power, only weakens a boxer gradually, and many blows through many rounds are needed to win.

Jim Jeffries knocked them out with a straight jab and right to body or jaw.

Bob Fitzsimmons was deliberate and a sharpshooter as well as a tremendous hitter for a middleweight. He took pride in placing his K. O. punch in the solar plexus, which is the spot at the pit of the stomach, just below the joining of ribs and breast bone. Men dropped with that punch always.

Afterwards, both Sharkey and Holm told me they'd fight anyone in the world but Fitzsimmons, after being nearly massacred by that punch.

Fitzsimmons used to say that a punch over the eye socket was better than one on the chin, but that the solar plexus punch was best of all. He illustrated by telling how Peter Maher knocked him out for nine seconds in their fight across the Mexican line, and how he got up, staggering and nearly helpless, recovered, and knocked out Maher. If that had been a solar plexus punch Fitz never would have come up. The men Fitz hit there stayed down, no matter how tough they were.

Fitz used to say the punch that hurt him most in all his fights was a straight left of Jeffries' that happened to go under his chin and hit on his Adam's apple. He couldn't breathe for nearly a minute, and he always blamed the punch for his knockouts by the young boilermaker.

I have seen the same thing happen a few times in other fights, but it is usually a pure accident, for a boxer's chin usually covers his throat when in boxing position. It is a dangerous blow.

Gunboat Smith had a favorite down curving overhand hook that caught his man behind the left ear as he bent over to cover his chin. He knocked out Rombarazzo, Wells and many others with that blow. It was called the "occipital punch" by a doctor who saw the Gunner use it on Wells. Later that was changed to "occipital" because it was used so often by the Gunner.

No other boxer ever used it in the Gunner's effective style. It wasn't a "rabbit punch," which is an unfair blow delivered with the edge of the hand on the back of the neck, slurs dangerous and likely to cause a fatal dislocation. The "kidney punch" was a favorite among rough house fighters when first invented. Banned by rule, it is still used occasionally by unfair fighters when the referee is out of range. Originally the kidney punch was struck with a clubbed forearm and wrist, not with the padded part of the glove. That made it a dangerous blow.

Jim Corbett thought he had discovered a new blow the second time he fought Jeffries, in San Francisco. He fought it for weeks, the scheme was to continually strike Jeffries on the hips as Jeffries crouched, to paralyze his arm and make him drop.

But Jeffries didn't crouch in that fight.

Fitz and His New Toy.

Kid McCoy, who liked to figure out damaging blows and who invented the "workover punch" that twisted and tore the skin over the cheek bones, had a neat and effective body punch. McCoy liked to win by making the other fellow quit. His body punch was delivered just below the edge of the floating ribs, driving them together sharply and causing a pain that made the victim think he was being badly injured, and incidentally causing a momentary and weakening pressure on the heart. It was not a dangerous blow, but useful in wearing his man down.

Fitzsimmons got the solar plexus punch through the advice of Mike Donovan. When Fitz was middleweight champion he traveled around the country meeting all comers in a show. Fitz was rough. He thought it a great joke to hit the big fellows on the chin and see their heads bounce on the floor. Donovan worried some local slugger might be killed by a fall.

He planned the solar plexus, described it to Fitz and begged him to use it in his exhibition bouts. Fitz refused at first, but one night he promised Mike he'd try the punch out. He had one opponent that night, a local terror who had whipped everyone who came to town, and was regarded as likely to knock out even Fitzsimmons. In the first round Fitz shifted and slipped his left hook into the blacksmith's middle. The blacksmith curled up and was carried out.

Fitz was like a kid with a new toy. It was a fine piece of humor to him to tap a fellow with a neat left in the pit of the stomach and see him crumple and fall down.

He knocked out all his opponents that way the rest of the trip, and adopted the punch as his specialty. Not long afterwards he tried it on Corbett at Madison Square and won the heavyweight championship.

Paul Not Particular.

Berlenbach, one of the most noted knockout artists of recent years, isn't particular. His notion is to clout the other bird anywhere on the side of the head, preferably somewhere below the right ear, and let him fall. He has a wicked thump in his left hand.

Every champion thinks he has the correct hitting method. But as George Louis says about golfers, "No two men swing alike, and no two way the best results with the same kind of a swing."

Pancho Villa and Mickey Walker are both fast boxers and fighters with either hand, using any opening they see. Harry Grob just hits everywhere above the belt and from any angle, wearing his man down by continually hitting the left. He is foolish to study the weaknesses of his rivals and place punches accordingly.

Every fighter to his own style. Whatever it is, those who reach the top must have sense of some kind, whether it's in the books or not.

Many Entries in Golf Tournament

Toronto, June 28.—Six former winners and six United States aspirants are included in the list of 108 entries for the Canadian golf championship tournament to be played over the course of the Rosedale Golf club beginning Monday. Although the draw was made last night, entries will be received until 6 o'clock Monday morning because of the delay in the mails due to the strike of postal employees.

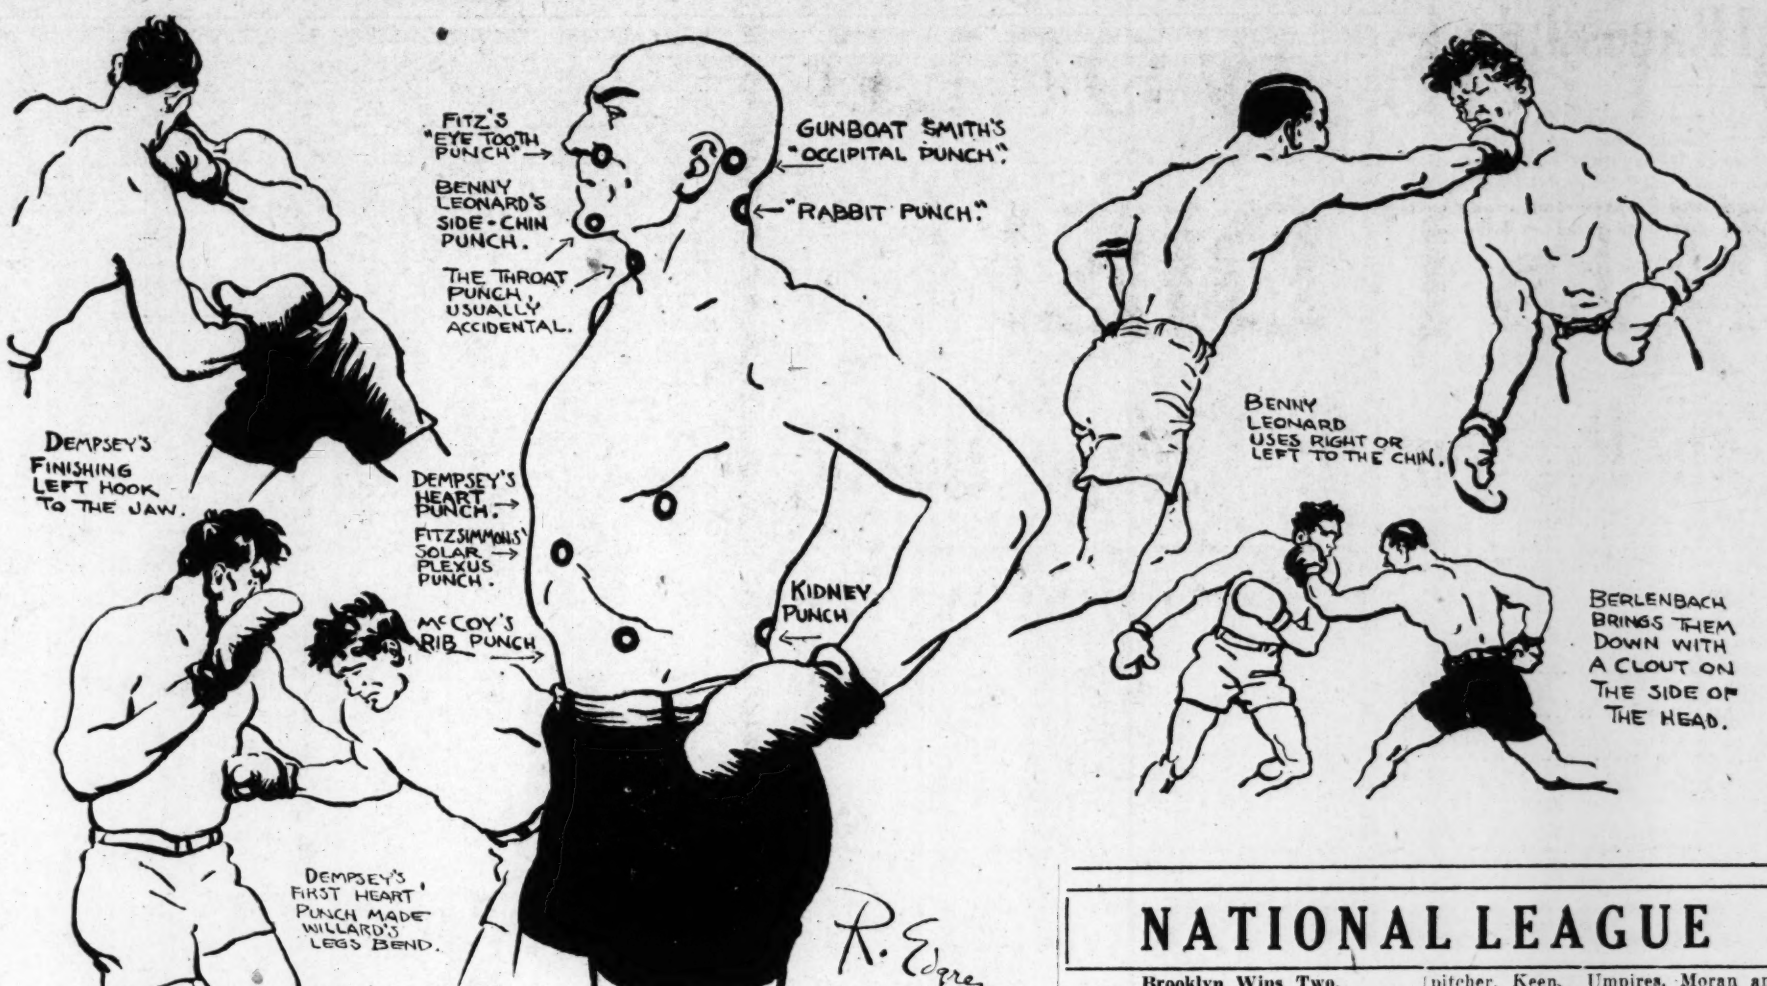

The United States entries so far received include C. Haines Wilson and J. T. Schiapparelli, of Detroit, and Carroll Stuart, of Chicago.

G. S. Lyon, the Canadian who has won the championship eight times, will try for his ninth victory.

ROLAND HAYES WINNER OF SPINGARN MEDAL

Philadelphia, June 28.—The Spingarn medal, awarded annually to an American of the colored race for the highest achievement in some field of human endeavor, goes this year to Roland Hayes, singer, former soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, and other symphony orchestras, who is now on a concert tour of Europe.

The medal will be presented to a representative of Hayes tomorrow night at a mass meeting of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

EVERY PERSON BORN INTO THIS WORLD MUST DIE!

No One Can Prevent Or Escape Death

TODAY

You are in good health, enjoying all the good things of life to the utmost. You are giving to your family everything a man can give.

TOMORROW

YOU MAY BE DEAD! NO ONE KNOWS

The only PROTECTION one can give to his family against death is LIFE INSURANCE, and THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION offers to its readers this PROTECTION.

If You Are a Subscriber to The Daily and Sunday Constitution You Are Entitled to

$500 Life Insurance

At 15c Per Week or $7.80 Per Year

Without Physical Examination.

All subscribers to The Daily and Sunday Constitution (men and women and members of their families, ages 10 to 45 years inclusive) who are free from accident and disease are eligible, no matter where they live.

$500 LIFE INSURANCE PROTECTION FOR 2 1-3c PER DAY.
FOR 4 2-3c PER DAY TWO MEMBERS OF A FAMILY, $500 EACH, $1,000.
$500 EACH FOR THREE MEMBERS OF A FAMILY, $1,500, FOR 7c PER DAY.

Your beneficiary will receive $500 through The Atlanta Constitution officials immediately upon satisfactory proof of death.

Do not confuse this GROUP LIFE INSURANCE with The Atlanta Constitution Travel and Pedestrian insurance. You may have BOTH.

There are no strings to this offer. It is the most profitable offer ever made to you. Do not delay in accepting it. One day's delay may cause your family to be unprotected, for no one knows what tomorrow may bring forth.

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS:

This special plan of ours is open to every man or woman between the ages of 10 and 45 inclusive, who is in good health and free from accidents and disease, provided he or she is a registered subscriber to The Daily and Sunday CONSTITUTION.

When your application has been approved by the insurance company, you will be issued a certificate that you are insured for $500.00 through The Atlanta Constitution by the Gem City Life Insurance Company of Dayton, Ohio, one of the largest companies that specialize in group insurance.

Those who are now subscribers and those who wish to become subscribers are equally entitled to this offer.

$500.00 LIFE INSURANCE for only $7.80 per year at the rate of 15c per week for Class-A, or 20c per week for Class-B, determined by the risks, which are classified according to the mortality hazard.

Premiums can be paid at the weekly rate, biweekly, in advance. At least two weeks in advance at the weekly rate must accompany the application.

A person of 45 years and six months will be classed as 40, and eligible.

It makes the cost of The Daily and Sunday Constitution $100.00 insurance policy for one; two members, $500.00 each, and The Atlanta Constitution for three members. The Atlanta Constitution for four members. For Class-B per week for per person.

LIFE INSURANCE ORDER AND REGISTRATION BLANK OF THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION Reader Service Bureau THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Atlanta, Ga.

Hereby enter my subscription to the Daily and Sunday Constitution for one year from date, with the understanding that I am to receive a Five Hundred Dollar ($500.00) Life Insurance Certificate in The Gem City Life Insurance Company of Dayton, Ohio, on the yearly plan, payable at the weekly rate, and in accordance with the rules governing same, subject to the approval of the company. I understand that, calculated at the regular weekly rate for Class-A, it will be $7.80 per year, payable at the weekly rate bi-weekly in advance, or Class-B, 20c per week, payable bi-weekly in advance, of which the first two weeks' advance payment is herewith inclosed, the balance to be paid by me at the Constitution office at the regular weekly rate bi-weekly in advance.

I am also to pay the regular subscription price of the daily and Sunday Constitution either to The Constitution office, each week to the carrier, or collector, or in advance in accordance with the regular published rates. (If a new subscriber it will be necessary to send at least two weeks' subscription at the regular mail rate plus application, making the least amount to accompany the order for new subscription and application for one policy, etc.)

Signed _____ Age _____ Sex _____

Old subscribers as well as new may have this insurance. If you are at present a subscriber to the Daily and Sunday Constitution, please so state. When more than one certificate is taken out in the same family living in the same house, each person insured jointly subscribes to the Daily and Sunday Constitution under the above conditions. If you are a mail subscriber, or want the paper by mail, inclose remittance covering at least three months' paid-in-advance subscription at the regular mail rate plus remittance for the policy at the rate and on terms specified above. The Constitution payable in advance as follows: three months or thirteen weeks, $22.50, the total being $44.55 for thirteen weeks. For six months or twenty-six weeks the daily and Sunday by mail payable in advance is $45.00. The insurance policy at 15c per week would be $13.50. Both in accordance with the Constitution for twenty-six weeks, $38.50. The daily and Sunday by mail, payable in advance for twelve months or fifty-two weeks, $73.50. The insurance policy at the rate of 15c per week for fifty-two weeks, $39.00, making the cost of the Daily and Sunday and the insurance for a period of twelve months, $112.50, and $12.50 additional for each additional member of the family who takes out a $500.00 policy. The second class risk would of course be 5c per week additional to the foregoing.

COBB SUNDAY SCHOOLS HOLD MEETING JULY 4

Marietta, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Sunday schools of Cobb county have accepted an invitation of the Kennesaw Mountain Battlefields association to hold the annual singing convention at Kennesaw mountain July 4, and officials announced today the meeting will be held there instead of at the courthouse as has been the custom.

Ed Crowe and Sam Huddleston expressed their appreciation to the association for the use of their property. It was pointed out that it will give hundreds of visitors an opportunity of seeing the actual work that is progressing on the Kennesaw mountain road and the development of the park, which will be completed by early fall.

Assisting in the program will be the quartet of the Georgia Railway and Power company and others.

As is the usual custom for this event, a basket dinner will be served. The singing will commence promptly at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning.

The Cobb-Columbia company has donated to Daughters of the Confederacy a supply of Coca-Cola for the crowds. The Frank E. Block company is giving $500 worth of crackers and candies to be sold at the regular price, the proceeds to go to the Daughters of the Confederacy. The Marietta Cigar factory has donated a large number of cigars for the event. These sales will be handled in booths by the Daughters of the Confederacy and funds will be used to build the observation tower which will be built at the summit of Kennesaw mountain as a memorial to Confederate heroes who were slain on Kennesaw's stony slopes during the Civil war.

John A. Metcalf, directing manager of the Kennesaw Battlefields association, will be in charge of arrangements. William Tate Holland, president of the association, and N. Kemper Smith, secretary, will also be present with a delegation to greet the visitors.

J. T. Rose, collector of internal revenue, and other distinguished Georgians will make short addresses. It is estimated that ten thousand people will be present for the event and much interest is felt, not only among the Cobb county singers, but also the singers in adjoining territory.

100TH BIRTHDAY OF FORMER SLAVE IS CELEBRATED

Macon, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Phil Towns, one of the most unique and best loved negroes in middle Georgia, celebrated his 100th birthday here Wednesday and was remembered by friends far and wide. He has promised to live long and prosper to let "em know we nigger big day come, an' tank God hit come at las'."

Uncle Phil told Judge Bridges Smith in announcing his birthday. Uncle Phil was born at Richmond, Va., in 1824, and moved to Macon when bought by George T. Towns, then governor of the state. Governor Towns lived with him in Macon until the family when he moved to Millington to take up his residence in the governor's mansion, and thus the old negro has lived here eighty-nine years. Phil now says he is so used to Macon that he can't leave it.

When Phil grew to be a man he was given the position of carriage driver for the Towns family and served as a sort of bodyguard for many years to "Miss Lou" and other young ladies of the family, every member of which had a strong affection for him.

He has worked here at odd jobs for a number of years and is cared for by a number of friends. His "white folks" will look out for him, he says, and he does not worry. "Uncle" Phil has been a regular attendant of the Primitive Baptist church here for seventy-two years, attending the church in East Macon.

His son, 85 years old, is a resident of Alabama and is not near so well preserved as his father, appearing much older. In his old age, Uncle Phil never failed to receive some remembrance from his "white folks" on his birthday.

PRANK OF RAINS BARES LARGE CAVE UNDER TRAIN RAILS

Sandersville, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Near the center of the city a great cave was discovered here today when a gaping hole caused by the recent rains brought to light an immense subterranean passage under the tracks of the Georgia and Florida railroad. The cave is 16 feet deep, running east about 50 feet and southwest about 100 feet distance.

Several years ago when Washington county bored an artesian well on the public square near the jail, drillers reported that the drill had dropped through a cave 30 feet deep. Numerous caves, several of which have been explored from time to time, have been found here. In the caves are found giant scorpions, petrels, star fish and other sea inhabitants of centuries ago, proving conclusively that this section of the country was at one time covered with water.

The railroad company will find it necessary to operate a dirt train to fill up the cave beneath the tracks. Trains are proceeding slowly by the cavern and a careful watch is being maintained to see if further sinkings in the earth appear in the neighborhood. Several hundred people visited the cave today.

Many of the older citizens state that Sandersville is built over numerous caves and that an exploring party years ago traveled for a mile underneath the city in these caves.

CEDETOWN PREPARES TO CELEBRATE FOURTH

Cedartown, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—The city of Cedartown, under the leadership of the chamber of commerce, will celebrate the Fourth of July this year with an elaborate program including a historical pageant and other events that will fill the day and that entire evening.

The patriotic address will be delivered by Senator William J. Harris of this city. Brothers of Senator Harris will be present on that date. They are Professor James C. Harris, superintendent of the State School for the Deaf; General P. C. Harris and Major Hunter Harris.

ROAD BODY PRAISES WORK OF ANDERSON

Fitzgerald, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Resolutions praising the work of W. T. Anderson, editor of The Macon Telegraph, as a member of the Highway commission of Georgia, were adopted at the meeting of the Central Dixie Highway association held here Friday. The resolutions commended Governor Clifford Walker for his selection of Mr. Anderson.

Brilliant Aquatic Carnival Planned at Savannah July 24

Savannah, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—The Savannah Motorboat club, backed by the city, Chatham county, the board of trade and practically every civic, commercial and social organization in Savannah, will stage one of the most elaborate water carnivals ever arranged in the south-east July 24-26.

It is to be a tri-state affair, and Senators Wilborn J. Harris and Walter George of Georgia; Duncan Fletcher, of Florida, and Smith, of South Carolina, have been requested to urge the secretary of the navy to detail available naval craft to this port for the occasion. An announcement of warships or destroyers to be "a harbor" is expected shortly.

Believing that there may be initiated for Savannah and in turn the other south Atlantic ports great annual water carnivals, a group of Savannah citizens are back of the movement, which has crystallized a fine program, unique in character. The committee is composed of 100 representative Savannahians.

Thursday night, July 24, at Daffin park swimming pool, said to be the largest artificial body of water for sports purposes in the entire south, the festival attraction will be held. There is accommodation for an audience of 30,000 at Daffin park. The program will include the following events:

Canoe tilting, swimming races, model boats contest, tub racing, special water carnival events with many surprises in the form of pageants, floats, fancy diving contests and fireworks. There will be no charge of admittance to this or any other of the three days' events. Large cash prizes and silver loving cups are offered for many of the contests.

Friday morning the war vessels in harbor will be open for the inspection of the public generally, with guide service to give information about the big fighting craft of the country. Cutter races, with crews of picked men from the vessels in port contending for handsome prizes, will feature the morning program. This will be on the Savannah river.

Friday afternoon the scene of activity will shift to Thunderbolt. One of the last duels fought in Georgia was over a contested sailboat race at Thunderbolt, where for about 125 years there have been annual motorboat contests and sailboat races. Twenty boats are expected to enter the cutter contests. A cruiser parade, with all the spectacular decorations, speed-boat race, with the best entries from the three states; outboard motor race; an old-fashioned bateau race, and a contest of skill and strength in a real canoe race will conclude the afternoon program.

Friday night there will be a street dance in the heart of the city.

There will be a special "Tybee town" celebration, arranged by the town of Tybee itself, probably a secret as to details until presented. The Tybee celebration will close the carnival.

Railroads have announced week-end rates and efforts are being made to extend accommodations to take in the first days of the carnival.

Saturday afternoon, the closing day of the carnival, the scene of festivities changes to Tybee. Several special events are planned for the day.

A prawn boat race, with twenty-five prawners in the contest, and a bathing beauty contest are major attractions.

Georgia Crop Conditions Are Reported Best in Years

Athens, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Crop conditions in Richmond county are said to be especially good, due mainly to the fair, hot weather of the past ten days.

Despite the fact that but little damage has been reported yet due to weevil infestation, most farmers in this section are taking no chances with the pest, and are using various calcium arsenate mixtures to combat them.

Rains will be needed in a few days now, however, as the fields are beginning to get dry. This is especially true of corn fields that have been worked out.

J. W. Firor, county demonstration agent, told farmers to prevent the weevil getting a start. "There may be practically no weevil to day," he states, "but a few days' rain and cool weather will bring them by hundreds and thousands."

Prize have been offered by the chamber of commerce, the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs for boys making the best yields among the club members of the county, and members of the Kiwanis club have adopted a boy and are giving personal encouragement to them.

Crop conditions all over northeast Georgia are reported favorable, better than last year, and if the weather continues favorable a larger yield than last is expected in this section.

TOOMBS CROPS GOOD WITH WEEVIL BEATEN

Lyons, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—In spite of the late start that the cold spring forced on farmers, Toombs county has better crop prospects generally than in many years.

Cotton is fruiting well and farmers are making a determined effort to control the weevil.

Many are dusting according to the government method and are reporting that the weevil is beaten.

The corn crop is unusually good and tobacco ripening and curing is beginning in earnest.

WILKES LAYS CLAIM TO UNIQUE HONOR

Washington, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Wilkes county claims a unique distinction in having three men in the current session of the Georgia legislature whereas at the last session she had only two. All three men claim Washington as their home.

Only two, however, are bona fide members of the lower house of the general assembly from Wilkes—J. C. Lindsey and C. Howard Orr. The other representative is Benjamin W. Fortson, junior member of the local law firm of Irvin & Fortson, who moved to Washington from Arlington, while he was serving a term as representative from Calhoun county. The people of Calhoun county were as well pleased with the services of Mr. Fortson, an old Wilkes county boy, as their remembrance in Georgia's law making body that they were not disposed to call a special election to fill his place when he decided to enter the practice of law in this city.

The third member from Wilkes may have a hard time keeping himself properly located during the 50-day session now being held in the capitol, as the clerk designates him as "Mr. Fortson, from Calhoun by way of Wilkes."

CAIPO GIRL BURNED CURLING HER HAIR WITH HOT IRONS

Thomasville, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Miss Ann Walker, of Cairo, visiting here, while curling her hair with a curling iron, was badly burned about the face and neck. Thinking that the heater was about to explode, she threw it in the fireplace and in doing so the fire spread to her hands and face. She called for help, which managed to extinguish the flames. Miss Walker was taken home under the care of her father, Dr. Walker, of Cairo.

Shanklin Attaway, American Legion, has been requested by the veterans' bureau to represent the government and will assist all ex-service men in this part of the state. For-son, sailors and marines in northwest Georgia, where no legion post is located, are privileged to be in Rome July 13.

Former service men will assemble at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Municipal auditorium, where blanks will be furnished and detailed information given by a corps of local legionnaires.

All ex-service men who attend should bring discharge papers. Advice as to procedure will later be given out, in case these papers have been misplaced.

This service is not confined to members of the American Legion, but is open to all men who served in any branch of the army, navy or marine corps during the World war.

A similar meeting will be held later for the benefit of negro ex-service men.

HEETH ANNOUNCES Thomas Collector Completes Long Service in 1924.

Thomasville, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—P. S. Heeth, of this city, has announced as candidate for tax collector for Thomas county. Mr. Heeth states that if he lives through this year, he will have served as tax collector of the county for 44 years, which so far as known is the record over any other county.

Mr. Heeth's tax returns, when sent to Atlanta, always bring him the highest assessments for their accuracy. He has no opposition for the office as it is well known that nobody could win out against him.

ATLANTAN WILL SPEAK AT THOMASVILLE MEET

Thomasville, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—W. C. Mansfield, of Atlanta, will speak at a union meeting Sunday of the men's Bible classes of the Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Episcopal churches. Manager Hobson Johnson, of the Grand theater, has tendered the use of the theater for the meeting.

Valdosta Creamery Opens. Valdosta, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—After being delayed for some time, waiting for arrival of some of the equipment, the Valdosta creamery is now in operation and expects to manufacture butter on an extensive scale. Many farmers have recently purchased fine milk cows in preparation for furnishing cream to the new institution.

The second class risk would of course be 5c per week additional to the foregoing.

COBB SUNDAY SCHOOLS HOLD MEETING JULY 4

Marietta, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Sunday schools of Cobb county have accepted an invitation of the Kennesaw Mountain Battlefield association to hold the annual singing convention at Kennesaw mountain July 4, and officials announced today the meeting will be held there instead of at the courthouse as has been the custom.

Ed Crowe and Sam Huddleston expressed their appreciation to the association for the use of their property. It was pointed out that it will give hundreds of visitors an opportunity of seeing the actual work that is pressing on the Kennesaw mountain road and the development of the park, which will be completed by early fall.

Attending the convention will be practically every living in Cobb and adjoining counties.

Assisting in the program will be the quartet of the Georgia Railway and Power company and others.

As is the usual custom for this event, a basket dinner will be served. The singing will commence promptly at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning.

The Coca-Cola company has donated to Daughters of the Confederacy a supply of Coca-Cola for the crowds. The rank E. Block company is giving $500 worth of crackers and candies to be sold at the regular price, the proceeds to go to the Daughters of the Confederacy.

The Marietta Cigar factory has donated a large number of cigars for the event. These cigars will be handled in booths by the Daughters of the Confederacy and funds will be used to build the observation tower which will be built at the summit of Kennesaw mountain as a memorial to Confederate heroes who were slain on Kennesaw's stony slopes during the Civil war.

John A. Metcalf, directing manager of the Kennesaw Battlefield association, will be in charge of arrangements. William Tate Holland, president of the association, and N. Kemp Smith, secretary, will also be present with a delegation of the Daughters of the Confederacy to greet the visitors.

J. T. Rose, collector of internal revenue, and other distinguished Georgians will make short addresses. It is estimated that ten thousand people will be present for the event and much interest is felt, not only among the Cobb county singers, but also the singers in adjoining territory.

100TH BIRTHDAY OF FORMER SLAVE IS CELEBRATED

Macon, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Phil Towns, one of the most unique and best loved negroes in middle Georgia, celebrated his 100th birthday here Wednesday and was remembered by friends far and wide. "Er ben promissin' de white folks, er long time to let 'em know wen me big day come, an' I ank God hit come at las'."

"Uncle Phil" told Judge Bridges Smith in announcing his birthday. Uncle Phil was born at Richmond, Va., in 1824, and moved to Macon when bought by George T. Towns, later governor of the state. Governor Towns left him in Macon, and the family when he moved to Milledgeville to take up his residence in the governor's mansion, and thus the old negro lived here eighty-nine years. Phil now says he is so used to Macon that he can't leave it.

WILKES LAYS CLAIM TO UNIQUE HONOR

Washington, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Wilkes county claims a unique distinction in having three men in the current session of the Georgia legislature whereas at the last session she had only two. All three men claim Washington as their home.

Only two, however, are bona fide members of the lower house of the general assembly from Wilkes—J. T. Lindsey and C. Howard Orr. The other representative is Benjamin W. Fortson, junior member of the local law firm of Irvin & Fortson, who moved to Washington from Arlington, while he was serving a term as representative from Calhoun county. The people of Calhoun county were as well pleased with the services of Mr. Fortson, an old Wilkes county boy, as their representative in Georgia's law making body that they were not disposed to call a special election to fill his place when he decided to enter the practice of law in this city.

The third member from Wilkes may have a hard time keeping himself properly located during the 50-day session now three weeks in the legislature and the clerk designates him as "Mr. Fortson, from Calhoun by way of Wilkes."

CAIRO GIRL BURNED CURLING HER HAIR WITH HOT IRONS

Thomsonville, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—Miss Agnes Walker, of Cairo, visiting here, while curling her hair with a curling iron, was badly burned about the face and neck. Thinking that the heater was about to explode, she threw it in the fireplace and in doing so the fire spread to her hands and face. She called for help, which managed to extinguish the flames. Miss Walker was taken home under the care of her father, Dr. Walker, of Cairo.

Rome Legionnaires To Aid Ex-Soldiers Get U. S. Bonus Money

Rome, Ga., June 28.—Memories of the days of World war draft will be revived here Sunday, July 13, when 2,000 ex-service men are expected to assemble for instructions on filling out application blanks for the government insurance bonus.

Shannon Ataway, American Legion, has been requested by the veterans' bureau to represent the government and will assist all ex-service men in this part of the state. Former soldiers, sailors and marines in northwest Georgia, where no legion post is located, are privileged to be in Rome July 13.

Former service men will assemble at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Municipal auditorium, where blanks will be furnished and detailed information given by a corps of local legionnaires.

All ex-service men who attend should bring discharge papers. Advice as to procedure will later be given out, in case these papers have been misplaced.

This service is not confined to members of the American Legion, but is open to all men who served in any branch of the army, navy or marine corps during the World war.

A similar meeting will be held later for the benefit of negro ex-service men.

HEETH ANNOUNCES Thomas Collector Completes Long Service in 1924.

Thomsonville, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—P. S. Heeth, of this city, has announced as candidate for tax collector for Thomson county. Mr. Heeth states that if he lives through this year, he will have served as tax collector of the county for 44 years, which so far as known is the record over any other county.

Mr. Heeth's tax returns, when sent to Atlanta, always bring him the highest commendations for their accuracy. He has no opposition for the office as it is well known that nobody could win out against him.

ATLANTAN WILL SPEAK AT THOMASVILLE MEET

Thomsonville, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—W. C. Mansfield, of Atlanta, will speak at a union meeting Sunday of the men's Bible classes of the Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Episcopal churches. Manager Hobson Johnson, of the Grand theater, has tendered the use of the theater for the meeting.

Valdosta Creamery Opens.

Valdosta, Ga., June 28.—(Special.)—After being delayed for some time, waiting for arrival of some of the equipment, the Valdosta creamery is now in operation and expects to manufacture butter on an extensive scale. Many farmers have recently purchased fine milk cows in preparation for furnishing cream to the new institution.

LEGISLATURE TO ACT ON VIADUCTS

During the present session of the Georgia general assembly much hope has been expressed by Atlanta citizens that definite steps will be taken toward securing the much-needed viaducts at Pryor street and Central avenue, in order that these dangerous, traffic-congesting grade crossings might be closed forever.

A bill now before the legislature, which has been adopted by the house and has been under debate by members of the senate, provides for the preliminary survey of this important civic improvement, and it is believed that the measure will be made into a law before the assemblymen leave for their homes in August.

The matter of doing away with the above mentioned grade crossings is more than a simple question of readjusting real estate conditions and providing for more convenient traffic arteries for the business portion of Atlanta. The time of thousands of people is wasted each day by trains standing over the crossings, making up for their journeys to other cities, and the lives of others are endangered by the passing of locomotives and cars over Central avenue and Pryor street crossings.

The business men of the city are said to be overwhelmingly in favor of closing these crossings by the erection of viaducts, believing it will be the entering wedge for the great plan that has for years been hoped for by the people of this city. Not only will the passing of Pryor street and Central avenue crossings make the safety of thousands of people who use these streets and the conservation of much time, but it is expected to ultimately result in the covering of the great canyon now in the heart of the city from which volumes of smoke and grime emerge as switching engines and regular trains pass to and fro. This smoke nuisance is said to be costing the merchants adjacent to the railroad tracks many thousands of dollars annually in damaged goods. This waste, in addition to the danger to life and limb from flying cars, would pass with the establishment of a plaza over the railroad tracks now used to approach the anti-bellum Union station.

COOLIDGE'S ADDRESS FEATURED BY BURKE

The notable address delivered by President Coolidge to the National Association of Real Estate Boards during the annual session of that body the first week in June at the national capital, is said to have made a tremendous impression upon the members of the real estate profession. In fact, it made such a hit with Clayton Burke, of the Grant-Jeter sales department, that the popular manager made it the feature of a prominent display window of his company. The exhibit calls attention to the splendid talk delivered by the president and invited those interested to read a copy of the document. Mr. Burke has a generous supply of the speech and he makes the statement that he is pleased to pass them out not only to members of the real estate profession, but to the general public also. Part of this address is reproduced in another column.

"GEORGE JAY NEWTON MORRIS" POPULAR REALTOR

The well-known slang phrase of the day, "Holder Newt," which has been directed at hundreds of Atlantans notwithstanding that the name is not a fit, may be used appropriately in connection with George J. Morris, of the well-known firm of F. P. and Geo. J. Morris. Until recently it did not become generally known that Mr. Morris was supplied with so great a wealth of given names as has developed recently. The full name of this prominent real estate agent is said to be George Jay Newton Morris, but he leaves off the third nomenclature in the interest of time and for the conservation of ink, it has been declared.

HURT BUILDING ASSUMES VAST PROPORTIONS

Standing its full height, in so far as the frame work is concerned, the skeleton of the great Hurt building annex is beginning to impress passengers along the street with the immensity of the structure when completed. This building, which is also said to be establishing a construction record, is being completed with great speed, and when its offices are thrown open for tenants, it will be the largest commercial structure in the south and one of the largest in the world. There are less than a score of buildings, it is claimed, as large as the Hurt building will be when it is finished.

CITY COUNCIL TO PASS ON LAKEWOOD PARK LEASE

An interesting matter affecting the city and the general public, in addition to those more vitally concerned in the matter, is the question now before the city council of a long-term lease to the present lessee of the amusement park known as Lakewood. This magnificent resort, to which thousands of Atlantans are flocking during the summer months, is one of the most delightful parks of its kind in the south, and a large number of highly entertaining excursions are maintained there for the enjoyment of the people. Many of these, however, are of a temporary nature, or in other words, housed in frame buildings of the portable variety, but those that would lease secure a lease that would last for the long term, it is believed that many permanent attractions of the most modern and delightful kind would be created.

Lakewood park is also the home of the Southeastern Fair association, which gives every autumn where in the south the finest institution has added much to the fame of Atlanta and Georgia, and it becomes larger and more popular with each year. Much interest is said to be felt in the coming action of council with reference to the leasing of Lakewood park, which was formerly the city waterworks. The lake, which is clear and deep, not only permits swimming and other aquatic sports, but it sufficiently large to accommodate two large fine motor boats for carrying passengers about the lake.

JETER TO RETURN DURING COMING WEEK

Fred P. Jeter, popular member of the firm of Grant-Jeter company, one of the largest real estate and renting concerns in the city, is expected to return during the present week from a tour of Florida, Cuba and other South Atlantic islands.

FORD IS FAITHFUL FAN; ATTENDS MANY BALL GAMES

C. M. Ford, well-known member of the sales staff of Turman-Brown Realty & Trust company, who is said to have a high average among the list of his company's salesmen, is also said to average up well in his attendance record at Spiller park, where he is seen at many of the games rooting for the home town and enjoying himself heartily. This is the personal mention, feeling sure that Mr. Ford always fixes things up with the boss before leaving the office on ballgame days, has no fear of "spilling any beans." Howed should be embarrassing questions follow, we offer apologies in advance.

BEST WISHES FOR DAVIDSON & JOHNSON

Many expressions of good wishes have been heard for the success of the popular firm of Davidson & Johnson, who have taken over the beautiful south side subdivision, Sylvan Hills, from which they purpose to sell many choice home sites during the present season. Both Messrs. Davidson and Johnson are successful realty men, with many friends and business associates, in addition to a wide knowledge of Atlanta property and keen judgment of real estate values.

With such high-class property as Sylvan Hills, which has been improved to a splendid degree, it is predicted that the company will experience great success.

POWER COMPANY ERECTS LARGE STRUCTURES

With work progressing on its immense substation adjoining the Gas building on Walton street and with a large addition being erected to its big garage on Gilmer street, the Georgia Railway & Power company is said to be contributing much to the building program of the city. The new substation, which is a highly modern structure, will stand three stories high and will conform to the adjoining Gas building. It will house some of the monster transformers that will be installed by the company because of its greatly increasing demand for power. The garage addition, according to the information given out from the public relations department of the power company will be modern also and will provide space for many automobiles now used by the company. The floor space will be 15,000 square feet, it was stated.

REALTORS INOCULATED AGAINST TYPHOID

On the principle that a "shot in the arm is better than six weeks in the hospital," members of the staff of the Neal-Lenhardt Realty company last week had their arms for the reception of anti-typhoid serum, which was administered to all hands by a well-known local physician. "We are too busy now selling homes and renting property as a result of the Constitution classified advertisements," said a member of the staff, "to take chances with serious illness. For this reason we decided to take up the shot with such obstacles as typhoid fever."

CLIFF JONES TAKES SUMMER VACATION

J. Cliff Jones, well-known member of the staff of Ralph B. Martin Real Estate agency, secured leave of absence, it was stated, for two weeks, and will spend the time in Miami, Fla., where he will indulge in fishing, boating and other aquatic sports.

BURKE ADDRESSES REAL ESTATE BOARD

At the regular luncheon of the Atlanta Real Estate board, held in the Peacock cafe last Thursday, the members of the board were entertained and instructed, it was stated, by a fine talk from Clayton Burke, of the Grant-Jeter company, who related his impressions of the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, held in the national capital. Mr. Burke was deeply impressed, as were other Atlantans who attended the convention, with the splendid qualities of the men appearing as representatives of the real estate fraternity from all portions of the country.

KING AUCTION COMPANY GAINS IN ACTIVITY

Big gains in business are said to have been experienced by the King Auction company, one of the most important auctioneering concerns in the south, which has taken part in the sale of millions of dollars' worth of real estate and property in other southern cities and states. This sales organization, using the newspapers freely in all its campaigns, is said to have secured the largest number of prospects for increasing business are also said to be fine, indeed.

"LEANING TOWER" WRECKED BY ATLANTA COMPANY

The interesting old landmark at the corner of Brotherton and Whitehall streets, which for many years has seemed to lean at a dangerous angle, everhanging the street and threatening to fall into a heap, defied the laws of gravity and was literally pulled down by the well-known Atlanta Wrecking company, a concern which has taken part in the tearing away of many of the old structures preparatory to modern buildings. No statement has been made regarding the new building in place of the "leaning tower," but it is believed a modern structure will soon go up on this important corner, which is but a short distance removed from the city's business center.

CAMP COLONY GATHERS NEAR LAKEWOOD

Driven by the intense heat of the past few days to seek the comforts of a summer camp, many of the regular campers who occupy bungalows and permanent tents near Lakewood, have taken up their sylvan residences for the coming season. In addition to the many conveniences possible in these little bungalows, because of the proximity of city water and electric lights, trolley service and a splendid automobile highway to the city, campers at Lakewood have telephones and other comforts to make life attractive.

WARD WIGHT MAKES FINE ADDRESS TO REALTORS

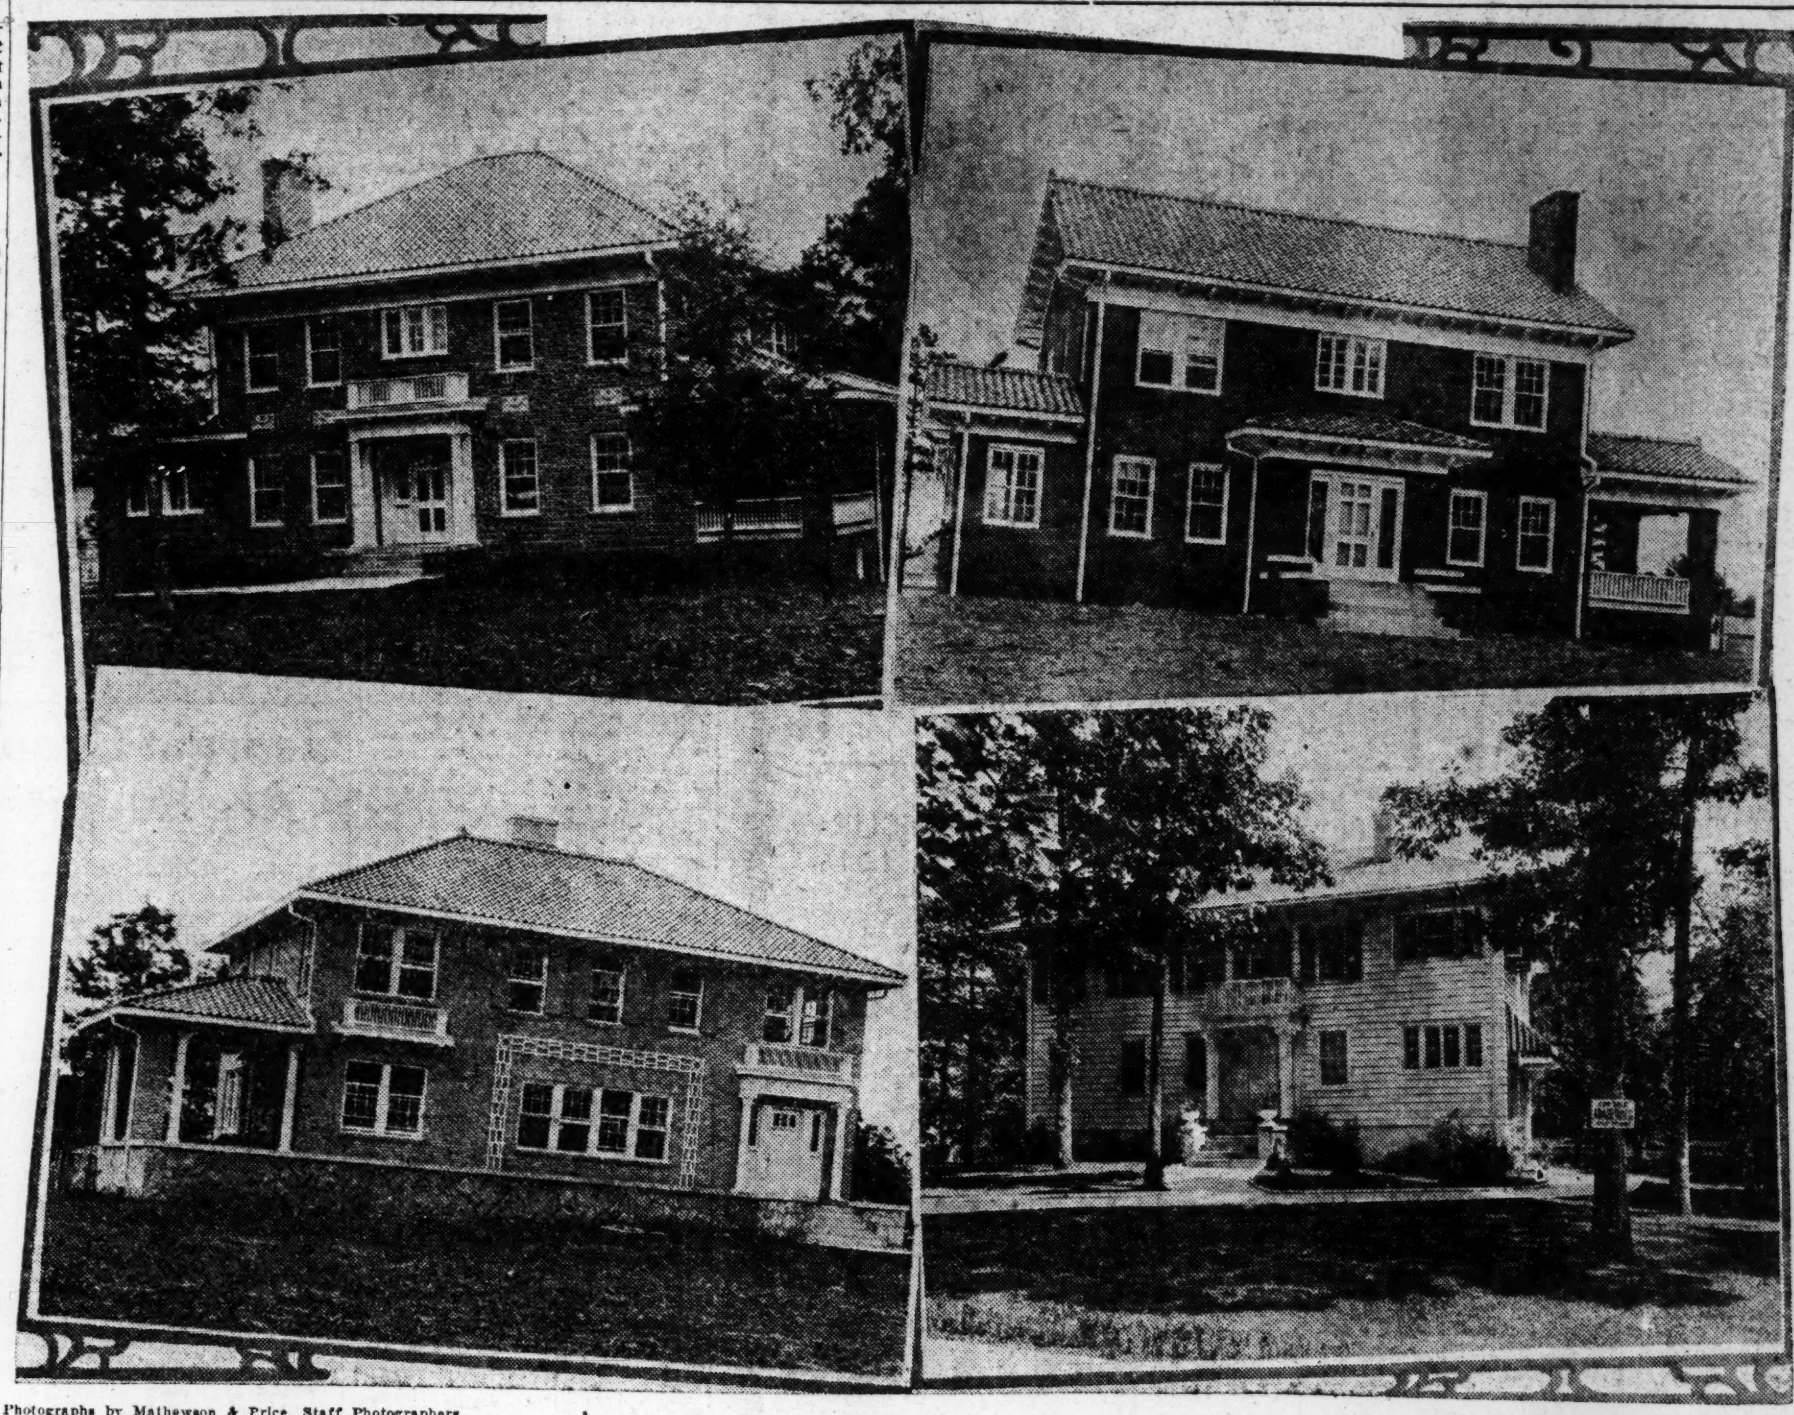

Ward Wight, former head of the local real estate board, who is now officially connected with the state association, addressed the last regular meeting of the Atlanta organization upon the subject of the wisdom of long-term lease. Mr. Wight pointed out that in addition to the regular leases accruing to owners of realty through long-term leases, there are many advantages to be derived also from the modern practice. That financing developments is more readily done under long leases than otherwise, was also shown by Mr. Wight to be true.

MCDERMION SPENDS FEW DAYS IN CENTRAL CITY

A. B. McDermion, real salesman for the F. P. & Geo. J. Morris real estate firm, went to Jackson during the past week on business for his house.

MAY REPORTS SPLENDID BUSINESS FOR PAST WEEK

W. O. May, well-known real estate man, with offices in the Austell building, gave out a most optimistic statement at the week-end ending the business transacted by his house during the past few days. Mr. May, who is seen at many of the games rooting for the home town and enjoying himself heartily. This is the personal mention, feeling sure that Mr. Ford always fixes things up with the boss before leaving the office on ballgame days, has no fear of "spilling any beans." Howed should be embarrassing questions follow, we offer apologies in advance.

Four of the splendid homes recently erected in Atlanta for sale. The residences have been placed under the agency of the Adair Realty and Trust company, who are offering them to home seekers. Each of above homes are splendid specimens of their particular type of architecture, and all of them are provided with every equipment and appointment necessary to render them practically ideal.

Homes of the above class add much to Atlanta's reputation as the "City of Magnificent Homes."

Burke Addresses Real Estate Body On National Meet

In a talk before the Atlanta real estate board at its last meeting, Clayton Burke, sales manager for the Grant-Jeter company, gave an interesting outline of his impressions gained by attending the recent convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, at Washington, D. C.

"The keynote of the convention," said Mr. Burke, "seemed to be cooperation and preparation. In other words, delegates were advised to hold meetings for cooperative advantages and to prepare for efficiency in service."

Mr. Burke said that there is every indication that leaders in the real estate world are seeking in every way to raise the profession of the profession, placing it upon a parity with other professions and callings in life. In this endeavor, it was pointed out, are schools in California and other parts of the country established to teach the ethics and principles of the real estate business, and it is also well known, declared Mr. Burke, that many colleges and universities are including a course on real estate in their curriculum.

Based upon the splendid showing of the sixth district federal reserve bank, it was stated that a fine spirit of optimism was shown in investments in this part of the country, and the large increase in savings shown by the 98 banks of this district was discussed by the gathered realtors.

"The back to the farm movement," which was freely discussed at the national gathering, is gaining momentum in all parts of the country, according to information gained by Mr. Burke.

A leaflet from S. S. Thorpe, of Minneapolis, Minn., to the mortgage finance division of the national association, given names of insurance companies that invest in real estate and in bonds. It was shown, said Mr. Burke, that money invested in real estate brought larger returns than in securities of the above variety.

The discussion of various questions relating to the real estate profession, which was freely discussed at the national gathering, is gaining momentum in all parts of the country, with an exchange of ideas, proved to be an experience at once interesting and valuable, said Mr. Burke.

Education and travel, which serve to broaden the minds of people, also make them wish for better living conditions, and for that reason, it was stated, the average man of today demands the best type of home his resources will permit for his family.

The sale of lots to salaried people on terms that meet their ability to pay continues to be one of the big features of the local real estate business, and thousands of home sites have been sold to progressive builders during the past few months in Atlanta.

East Lake Heights.

Calling attention to the East Lake Heights, a splendid subdivision that is being sold under the auspices of the Grant-Jeter company, and to many other tracts, small parcels and single lots, lying in various sections of the city, Mr. Burke stated that his company is prepared to offer practically any class of property that clients might desire.

The success of the Grant-Jeter company's sales department is attributed in a large way to the personality of the sales staff, which number almost a half score of the best-known realty men in the city. The staff, headed by Clayton Burke, manager, is as follows: H. M. Ashe, M. C. Parsons, Van B. Smith, W. C. Turner, W. H. Allen, T. E. Swilling, E. R. Ham and G. H. Morrow.

The Grant-Jeter company, which carries one of the largest lists of apartments in the south, does a general real estate and renting business, having one of the most extensive listings of business and renting property perhaps in the city.

SAYS AMERICA LEADS IN COAL-MINE DEATHS

Princeton, Ind., June 28.—No other coal-producing country has as high a death and injury rate among miners as the United States, according to John J. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who spoke here today at the annual first-aid meeting for Indiana held under the auspices of the Joseph A. Holmes association. Mr. Lewis urged greater interest by the government in protecting miners against accidents.

The recent report of the United States bureau of mines reveals that a total of 993 lives were lost in the coal industry of the country for the first four months of 1924, Mr. Lewis said. "In the month of April alone there was a total of 234 men killed. This record is appalling."

Grant-Jeter Co's. Sales Force Has Prosperous Week

Bringing to a close a highly satisfactory week of activity, the sales department of the Grant-Jeter company, under Clayton Burke, has given out a statement in which a most prosperous future is pointed to for the sale of Atlanta residence property.

"There is a well sustained demand for residence property in Atlanta," observed Mr. Burke, "which will continue as long as new citizens enter the city. Atlanta continues growing at an astonishing rate, which is probably more apparent to the real estate man than to the layman, and as long as new families enter our city, they must have places in which to live."

Mr. Burke also brought out the growing tendency of people to own their homes, and to live under conditions of the highest improvement. The country looks to this gathering for confirmation of your worthy efforts to establish the highest ideals of usefulness and service throughout all departments of American business.

Backs Better Homes Move.

Your profession has given largely to leadership of the better housing and better homes movement throughout the country. Therein it has done much for the advancement of the community. We cannot hope that good citizens will come from had homes. There will always be exceptions, but on the whole the quality of citizenship cannot be expected to rise much above the character of the homes from which the citizens come.

"The ownership of a home, the feeling of independence that comes with possession of a bit of the earth, are among the most powerful incentives to high civic interest and usefulness. You men represent one of the strong practical forces working to make ours a nation of home-owning families. You are entitled to be applauded for all you have done and are planning to do in this direction. Second only to the devoted womanhood that must nurture the children, it is the character and its inspiration that greet you as an advance guard of the national home movement. You have an especial duty in this movement of securing that investments are made on a sound basis, that will give the purchaser a bargain that he can always find fair and a motive for completing it. In that direction lies good citizenship."

Spectacular Sale Monday at---*

Here's the story! Last week our buyer was in New York, seeking merchandise to fill in the broken gaps caused by an unprecedented June business, and as June Undermuslin sales are practically over, she found a maker willing to sacrifice his profits in order to get from under a tremendous stock.

We bought heavily. The goods are here, ready for you tomorrow morning. No other Undermuslin Sale we've ever held has offered such an elaborate assortment, such a wonderful variety of styles, such quality of materials and workmanship, such delightfully charming garments—for 98c.

Materials are the kinds you find in garments that sell at $1.50 or more... dainty dropstitch voiles, society voiles... shadow striped batistes and soft, plain batistes.

Colors are like a flower garden... delectable shades of peach, honeydew, copen and light blue, orchid, flesh... and of course, white.

Many are finished with hemstitching and dainty picot ruffles. Others are bound with contrasting shades or finished with novelty stitching. Some have little rosebuds as a finishing touch.

TEN STARS IN CAST OF METROPOLITAN MOVIE

"Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," Is Owen Davis Melodrama.

"Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," the Goldwyn feature coming to the Metropolitan theater Monday, is the screen version of the famous Owen Davis melodrama which enjoyed a popular run in New York several years ago. As a stage play it is one of the most thrilling pieces ever written.

For this production Emmett Flynn selected one of the greatest casts of the year. Claire Windsor plays the title role. Mae Busch, Lew Cody, Raymond Griffith, Edmund Lowe, Hobart Bosworth and Lillian Tashman, famous Follies beauty, compose the array of celebrities in "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model."

Continuing with the Goldwyn policy for realism and accuracy, Emmett Flynn took this expensive array of stars to New York city to film scenes on the elevated tracks and various streets in the city. He then returned to California where interior scenes were made in the studios at Culver City.

The story moves swiftly through these realistic settings. It concerns the thrilling adventures of the beautiful "Nellie," the daughter of wealthy parents, who through circumstances has been living under the care of a foster parent, Thomas Lipton, in the tenement district of New York. Her mother has been searching for years for her daughter. Nellie's foster father becomes ill and Nellie is forced to seek employment in a modiste shop, not knowing she is heir to her mother's fortune. Walter Peck, the worthless nephew of Nellie's mother, knowing that Nellie is alive, tries to convince the mother that Nellie will not be found, thus leaving him heir to the fortune. It is Peck's endeavor to keep Nellie in obscurity that provides action and thrills for the story.

As an added attraction Will Rogers in his latest comedy, "Going to Town," has been added to the regular program. Every newspaper reader in the country has been reading Rogers' humorous column on the recent conventions. In "Going to Congress," he has incorporated the funny side of American politics. Critics throughout the country proclaim this one of the funniest comedies ever made. Fun from the Press and the Metropolitan News complete the picture program.

The program arranged by Enrico Leide for this week comprises "I'll Take You," and the overture that includes "The Avon Chorus" and the "Famous Miserere." Another attraction extraordinary will be the request appearance of Perry Bremer, who will step out of the Metropolitan orchestra.

A ZANE GREY STORY ON HOWARD SCREEN

"Wanderer of the Wasteland" Shows Something New in Pictures.

The outstanding features of Paramount's "Wanderer of the Wasteland," which will play at the Howard theater all this week, are the all-color photography and flawless acting of a superb cast. This Zane Grey story has lost none of its vitality by its transfer to the screen. As a matter of fact, under the capable direction of Irvin Willat, the picture brings out with effective vividness all the dramatic strength of the story.

"Wanderer of the Wasteland" has opened a new era in motion pictures. The progress of the motion picture has been so swift, the art of it developed so wonderfully that this new era will not come as a surprise to many, but just another proof that the motion picture is art in itself.

There is nothing so exceptional about the story of "Wanderer of the Wasteland" though it is an exceedingly thrilling story of a man's repentance and romance, but the way in which the story has been filmed is what has set the world talking. The entire picture, from start to finish, was filmed in actual color. The scenes in the picture are those actually written by Zane Grey, and the description of them, given so vividly by the author, are visualized on the screen. Through a new process this is possible.

Zane Grey's story is familiar to many, but for those who have not read the book we will say that it's a story of a man who is driven out into the desert by an unjust persecution, to become a wanderer and an outcast. The good that he does for others gives him the courage to come back to civilization and fight his own fight and win it.

Jack Holt, Billie Dove, Noah Beery and Kathlyn Williams are featured in the principal roles. This week will also be jazz week at the Howard and Calvin Rolfe will present his new Howard-Atlanta Famous Players Sympho-Jazz orchestra in a galaxy of Paramount symphonized jazz. At the first performance Monday afternoon patrons of the Howard theater will see a new orchestra on the stage, one that has never before played in Atlanta and one that is to bid for honors of being to play two selections on the cornet, for which he is famous nationally "Lucia," a difficult polka, and "Pale Moon," an Indian song, will feature Mr. Bremer's program. For the feature picture selection was made of a ballade of a sensational nature by Hattis called "Only You."

A Variety of Pictures on Atlanta's Screens This Week

BIG HARMONY ACT HEADS LOEW'S GRAND

"Flashes From Songland" Top All-Star Vaudeville Bill.

"Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast," is a well-known saying, but harmony can go further than this. It can make you forget all your cares and worries, and this is some feat. "Flashes From Songland" has just such harmony, and this breezy delightful sketch by five distinguished artists of the Loew circuit is the treat in store for patrons of Loew's Grand theater this week. Popular airs, old-time melodies, the prettiest of the classical numbers, in fact, the most fascinating in the music line is found in the repertoire of this big headliner, which tops the all-star bill at Loew's Grand commencing tomorrow.

Sweet tenor voices, rich baritones and bases, charming soprano and also leads, all these are possessed respectively by the quintette of artists who make up the sketch "Flashes From Songland." It is another of the real "big time" acts that have made their appearance regularly at the local vaudeville house since the inauguration of the popular full-week policy.

Ray Shannon and Bobbie Van Horn in "The Top Floor," have a variety of offerings that include some side-splitting comedy, good singing and clever stories. Two more clever artists could hardly be picked when it comes to furnishing pure and undiluted entertainment.

Andy and Louise Barlow in "Fix Your Shot," characterize the popular "tough kids" of the Bowery, a kind of a sketch that always brings a laugh. Besides the laugh-producing qualities of this act, the two Barlows have some songs and dances that will prove a big hit.

Johnson Brothers and Johnson, in "A Few Moments of Minstrelsy," are peers in the blackface line, and they certainly know how to handle the tambourines and bones. Their offering is an overnight miniature of a real minstrel show.

Sylvia Mora and Reckless Duo are variety entertainers of the highest class, and combine dancing with an aerial exhibition in a most original manner.

Tom Mix, in "Mile-A-Minute Romeo," a red-blooded picture full of action and thrills, is the feature picture this week.

For the Fourth of July and Saturday, the management has secured Buster Keaton in his first six-reel comedy production, "Three Ages." It is said that the "frozen-faced" comedian has fairly outdone himself in this extra good picture.

'THE RECKLESS AGE' WITH REGINALD DENNY

Rialto Not To Change Policy As Announced Last Week.

Reginald Denny stages a combination of fight, auto thrills and laughs as his "comeback" following the automobile accident that confined him to his bed for ten weeks following his racing picture, "Sporting Youth." The "comeback," occurs in "The Reckless Age," his new Universal starring vehicle, to be seen commencing Monday at the Rialto theater.

The new picture, filmed from "Love Insurance," an Earl Derr Bigners story published in the Saturday Evening Post, is a hilarious satire on the doings of the younger set. It revolves around the plan of an English nobleman to marry an heiress. He takes out insurance with the girl—and Denny is assigned, as insurance agent, to stand guard over the policy-protected romance.

A threatened breach-of-promise case, to be brought by a London chorus girl, is the first menace, then a necklace theft, another claimant to the title, and a blackmail plot by a scandal-mongering weekly, follow in rapid succession.

Denny scares away the actress, abducts the "other lord," and battles through various other difficulties for his firm's customer, and then falls in love with the girl himself. There's his final problem—if he marries the girl he loses his firm the insurance money; if he sticks by the firm he loses the girl. There's a thrilling auto race that figures in the problem, too.

Harry Pollard, who directed Denny in "The Leather Pushers" and "Sporting Youth," directs the new picture and the cast is specially strong. Ruth Dwyer is seen as the social butterfly whose love is sought by two rivals, Hayden Stevenson, who played the fight manager in "The Leather Pushers" and "The Abysmal Brute," Denny's Jack London feature, plays an advertising promoter in the new picture, and will be shown.

TOM MIX IN THRILLER IN LOEW'S PHOTOPLAY

Popular Screen Star in Red-Blooded Story of West.

Defying death, by riding amidst a drove of wild horses, under the stomach of Tony, his famous horse, to escape his pursuers, Tom Mix will burst into Loew's Grand theater tomorrow for a week's engagement in his latest William Fox picture "Mile-A-Minute Romeo." Demonstrating a decided penchant for thrills, this production is pronouncedly the only one in which Tom Mix exposes his entire bare back of equestrian tricks.

The story is by Max Brand, an author who has been long noted for ability in western dramas. It provides Mix with opportunity to display those talents by which he has become so widely recognized.

An erring father, a daughter with romantic aspirations, two villains instead of the customary one and Tom Mix, form the basis of this production's merits. It is a drama of fast-living in the west that Buffalo Bill knew. Wherever man in intrigue will be, is the only moral that can be accrued from its fast motion. The story treats of western action and Fred Malatesta, noted stage star, is seen as the fiery Gonzales.

The scene depicting a fashionable Florida playground for millionaires are almost spectacular, a great summer resort was duplicated at Universal City.

Another series of short pictures from the delightful short stories of H. C. Wither called "The Telephone Girl" will begin at the Rialto in addition to "The Reckless Age." This series stars Alberta Vaughan, one of the very prettiest young women available for pictures. The first number the Rialto will show is called "Julius Sees Her." The International News reel also will be shown.

love, nothing more, but these exhaustively.

Tom Mix fills the same niche in our national life as the torador did in Spain in the days of Miramee. The wish comes to mind that a symphony would be devised to signify his entrance into the silver arena corresponding with the torador of the opera Carmen. Mix resembles not only the heroes and national idols of Spain, but also those of Rome when the Eternal City had yet its dazzling blaze of glory.

In "Mile-A-Minute Romeo," the star will become a flashing comet in his role of roughriding gladiator. Aboard Tony, his famous steed, Mix traces a varied assortment of equestrian tricks throughout the story.

"Mile-A-Minute Romeo" is a red-blooded story of the far west in the days when guns barked at the least provocation and men fought duels to the death for the woman they loved. Tom Mix is the red-blooded hero of the screen, the idol of young and old alike, and in this his latest picture he rises to the supreme height of his great ability. It is a story of action and more action and more than all this it is a Tom Mix picture.

Mae Murray. (At the Alamo No. 2.)

What is described as the most sumptuous and entertaining picture yet attempted by the vivacious Mae Murray is "Fashion Row," the photodrama scheduled for Alamo No. 2 the forepart of the week. Portraying an extremely difficult dual role, Miss Murray is called upon to the very best of her ability in "Fashion Row." She is cast as a lovely Russian peasant girl and as her sister, a prominent Broadway actress, who is forced to give up her stage career. Miss Murray wears many beautiful gowns and the production furnishes some lavish settings. Earle Foxe, Mathilda Brun-

'HIGH COST OF LOVE' LYRIC COMEDY THEME

Low Fields' Laughing Hit Puts Lyric Players in Dialect Characters.

Low Fields rose to fame and fortune on his ability to think up things to make people laugh. He has gone the limit in "The High Cost of Loving," the comedy hit of five seasons and two continents that the Lyric players are to present all this week at the Lyric theater, opening with ladies' bargain performance Monday night.

Cora Klink, the romantically-minded young girl to be played by Miss Isabelle Lowe, finds herself in the same fix as many hundreds of girls who will see the play at the Lyric theater this week.

She is old enough to love—Lawrence Tucker, her lover, played by Wilfred Lytle, would tell you that—but her out-fashioned parents, played by Gus Forbes and Lucine Bernad, think differently.

They won't even let her have dates. Think of that!

So she has dates anyway. And think of that!

Family Does Not Understand.

The only member of the whole darned family that can half-way understand the flutterings of her girlish heart is Rose Hauser, the cousin, played by Marion White. No politicians nor lusters after world power are more deep-dyed plotters than those two.

The way they rush Cora's love affair through four acts of youthful high purpose and hard luck has made "The High Cost of Loving" a favorite every place it has been seen.

But the romance is not the half of it, dearie. Ludwig and Emma, Cora's parents, are hide-bound and zealous members of the Purity League. Emma is one of these strong-minded women who have definite ideas of how the world should be run. Low Fields must not have liked that sort of women; anyway he made Emma one of the funniest of all his creatures of the stage.

Lorraine Bernad has proved on several occasions her ability to make a funny character look and act in a way that makes one's sides ache.

The full strength of the Lyric players is drawn into the cast of characters, with the addition of pretty Norma Lee, Miss Isabelle Lowe's talented protegee who was seen once before in "Ladies' Night."

William Macaulay, new character man of the players, has his first part as Edward Houser, Rose's father and Cora's uncle. It is comedy from start to finish. Edward Power also has a comedy character assignment.

Loyd in Comedy Scram.

William Loyd as another member of the family and another uncle of Cora's has the kind of comedy assignment he revels in. His make-up for the part should be a whole show all in itself.

Edwin Vail, as Godfrey Burnham, a salesman from St. Paul; Ramona Weaver, as his wife, and Mankin Mansfield, as their pampered son, make up another delicious family group that figures prominently in the affairs of the Klinks, and especially in Cora's.

Mansfield and Miss White have a little romance all their own before the play ends.

The action all transpires in the Klink home, a comfortable place in New York City. In the days when a law-abiding citizen could have his stein of beer in peace and comfort.

The play has the typical Fitch's flavor of Dutch dialect and Dutch characterization. The strangeness of the language makes the conversation killingly funny.

The Lyric is a cool and inviting place for relief from summer heat and in combination with a diverting comedy like "The High Cost of Loving" should attract capacity crowds all week. Performances are each night and at matinee Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

MISS METHOT OPENS IN COHAN SUCCESS

Jno. Litel & Co., at the Atlanta, Play "Getting Gertie's Garter."

Pursuers of happiness are directed to the Atlanta theater this week, where will be offered another of those daring and slightly naughty but ever so clever and far from offensive farces, "Getting Gertie's Garter," as fine a work as Avery Hopwood and Wilson Collison ever put out.

It is a story dealing, as the name suggests, with the loss of Gertie's underwear, recently unmentionables and into the search are drawn at one time or another practically every member of the cast.

Not only is the presentation of "Getting Gertie's Garter" of major import to Atlanta this week, but there will be another and just as interesting event; and that is, the comedy will introduce to Atlanta Miss Mayo Methot, former leading lady for George M. Cohan, who is to succeed Miss Gladys Hurlburt as leading woman of the Baldwin Players.

Miss Methot, a beauty, will share honors in this, her first play for Atlanta audiences, with John Litel, whose popularity increases with his days in Atlanta.

"Getting Gertie's Garter" is recommended for all those who are being chased by the blues. You are in for nearly three hours of uproarious laughter as one exuberantly funny situation follows another. Perhaps no greater laugh-producer has ever been presented in Atlanta than this comedy. Hundreds of thousands have seen it through the country and to all it has brought happiness and joy.

It is the kind of show that, while slightly naughty, is without a blush. American fun and humor presented with the same care and detail with which it was offered to Broadway audiences when Hazel Dawn created the original role.

Through the play runs a delightful love tangle, but as may be expected, everything ends just right in the end.

HODGES MUSICAL CO. OFFERS 'PRETTY BABY'

Jimmie Hodges and Bonnie Tebeau Lead in Big Revue.

Brimming over with specialty bits that make it an ideal hot-weather show, "Pretty Baby" will provide Jimmie Hodges and members of his musical comedy company, playing musical tabloids at the Forsyth theater, their first opportunity to do a musical revue since opening their summer season here.

"Pretty Baby" is fast and racy and offers one laugh after another, and with such material, who could ask a better comedian than Jimmie Hodges? In fact, "Pretty Baby" is the vehicle in which Jimmie Hodges won the majority of his immense popularity throughout the country. He has appeared in it in almost all the large cities and with each performance he has made additional admirers and won new fame as a comedian.

The revue is entirely different from anything offered by the Hodges entertainers previously here. It lacks the story and plot that a great many of the plays they have offered have had, but never have so many novel specialties been included in one production; never has Atlanta seen more colorful and brilliant costumes, and never have such catchy songs and laugh-provoking lines been included in one bit as are offered in "Pretty Baby."

A male quartet will furnish one of the big features of the attraction, composed of members of the company who have exceptionally good voices. They will sing an especially selected repertoire of popular hits.

A jazz band, too, will be offered from the stage, augmented occasionally by the regular Forsyth orchestra.

The King sisters will be seen more during the coming show than in any previous one of the Hodges players, but they have been seen enough for Forsyth patrons to know their worth as singers and dancers, and their grace and charm is sure to prove one of the main attractions of the performances.

Miss Bonnie Tebeau, pretty leading lady of the company, has an unusually delightful part this week, and she has some new dances, too, which she has practiced down to a fine point.

A new policy will go into effect at the Forsyth this week regarding matinees. Only three matinees will be offered weekly, on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. Four will be offered the coming week, however, including the special holiday performance on the afternoon of July 4.

Hodges Musical Comedy

(Change Policy.)

A chance in the policy of presenting matinee performances at the Forsyth theater was announced by Manager Marty Simon Saturday to remain effective during the summer months, during which Jimmie Hodges and his company of musical comedy players will offer tabloid musical comedy hits.

The Forsyth, beginning this week, will offer only three matinees each week—on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. There will be no change in the time of these matinees—2:30 o'clock.

This week, however, there will be an exception to the new rule, for a special holiday matinee will be offered Friday, July 4.

The Paramount.

(For Colored Only.)

Starting tomorrow Manager Lochert, of the Paramount theater, presents "Daughters of Today," which has created a sensation in the film world and wherever shown has broken all records both for public comment and the size of the crowds attracted to the theaters, according to the newspaper clippings and the film magazines, and regarding which there is already much comment in Syracuse.

Described as "A Slice of Life Today," "Daughters of Today" deals with the problem of every American mother and father. Are the girls worse than the boys? See the picture and decide.

Two New Players To Greet GOSSIP OF STAGE, SCREEN AND MUSIC Stock Patrons Here Monday

BY STEWART F. GELDERS.

Two new players are to be introduced to Atlanta stock patrons Monday, Mayo Methot as new leading lady the Baldwin players, succeeding Gladys Hurlburt, and William Macaulay, new character actor of the Lyric Players, succeeding Robert Smiley.

Miss Methot has not had time enough to compile a very long record of service in the profession but has done some acceptable work, notably with George M. Cohan in "The Song and Dance Man" last season. She is new to Atlanta.

Mr. Macaulay comes to the Lyric with more than a quarter of a century of stage tradition and experience behind him and with the name of being one of the best heavy and character men available for stock. He has been seen in Atlanta a number of times in a variety of roles with road companies, which have played the big cities, and has figured in a number of important Broadway productions.

He was leading man in the last company which played "The Bird of Paradise" at the Atlanta theater, was heavy in "Peg of My Heart" here, was heavy in "Business Before Pleasure" and had been in character parts in several plays of an earlier day. The first one of which was "Only a Farmer's Daughter" brought here by Adelaide Cherie in 1899 before any of the theaters now in existence had been built.

Incidentally, the new Lyric player was the "heavy" player of the famous All Star stock company which made stage history in St. Louis in 1917. Of that company, Louise Allen, who was ingenue, is leading woman in "Little Jesse James"; Louis Bartlett, character man, is featured in the bright lights as star of "The Show Off"; Florence Reed, the leading woman, has just recently closed in "Lullaby" and Henry Hull, the juvenile, created the lead in "In Love With Love."

He was heavy man for three years in Keith stock and four years in Poli stock.

Bonnie Tebeau, insouciant prima donna of the Forsyth Musical Comedy company, is a game little sport as well as a good little trooper. Through the humorous pangs of neuritis made her left arm practically useless all during the week of the Gingham Girl, the thousands out front never had an inkling that the winning smile was anything but spontaneous and that the tinkling laugh was the triumph of will power over an over-weening natural urge to groan.

Former Favorites

Popular Up North.

Mary McCall and Jane Stuart, late of the Lyric Players, are particular in what the New York Telegraph correspondent says is the most successful stock season ever put over in Duluth, Minn. Miss McCall is the most recent "home talent" to get a flying start into the profession.

Edwin Milton Royle, distinguished daddy of the original Baldwin Players' leading woman, launched a new play, "Her Way Out," in New York last week with a fair measure of success at the Gaiety theater. Josephine Royle, sister of Selma, has a part.

Boots Wooster, remembered here for her work with the Lyric organization, is to have a part in another John Meehan play which goes into rehearsal at the Walnut street theater, Philadelphia, Monday. "A Mac Job" closed in Philadelphia last night after a week's tryout in which she had one of the principal roles. It is to be revised for production in New York later, with the present cast.

Atlantans Starred

In Screen Features.

Ben Lyon, an Atlanta youngster who has gone through a long apprenticeship in New York and Hollywood, has made good in a big way in "The White Mole," a photoplay featuring him and Barbara Lamarr. It was cordially praised on first showing in New York last week.

Colleen Moore, the little girl who has made Atlanta and the "flapper" famous in photoplays since she graduated from her own barnlot "little theater" on North Jackson street, has shaken off the hallmarks of flapperism in her latest picture, "Counterfeit." Costarring with Conway Tearle, she appears as a Broadway actress more naughty than naive.

Bert Lytle's latest, an ambitious picturization of Hall Caine's romance, "The Eternal City," was released last week and has been called the most artistic thing the popular star has done. Barbara Lamarr, Lionel Barrymore and Richard Bennett are included in the company which was transported to Rome to shoot the scenes on the actual locations demanded by the script. Premier Muscolini and the Italian government sanctioned the picture. Wilfred Lytle, one of Atlanta's matinee idols, has some interesting snapshots of his famous brother, and the dictator of Italy's black-and-white mugshot taken during the filming of the photoplay.

Oscar S. Oldknow, Southern States Film company at 111 Walton street, has secured exclusive distribution of Warner Brothers' screen classics in:

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

Great Waters, by the popular young author, Vere Hutchinson, and sister of A. S. M. Hutchinson, was published a year ago, and shortly afterwards made its debut in the United States, where it received a warm reception. It is considered by authors and readers an unusually strong story. It is a real drama, with plenty of color and action, and having been written by a girl who really has not reached the stage of womanhood, it is an astonishing sense of the long rhythm of life, unexpected wisdom concerning inward recesses of the heart of man.

The story, of course, is a romance—a swift moving story of the sea—an unusual plot in which she tells how a young Englishman reared and idolized by a dear old aunt by whom he was adopted on the death of his mother, his father unknown to him. He worked for a firm where his services were so much appreciated that on the day he is made member of the firm he is kidnapped by a man who pretended to be his father, a man of such unusual character of so many different and weird qualities as to make him a study for those who met him.

But, after all, he was simply a pirate, and his ship was the means of carrying on his lawless work. His refuge was in a secret cove far south of the mouth of the Plateau—a refuge for his ship.

The influence that surrounds Peter is just the same that comes to any one from wicked and bad associates—he becomes one of the band.

But the beautiful white-winged ship held a fascination for him as it ploughed the seas. And the lovers of the sea will find a fascination in the story that the author has woven around Peter. The title, as well as the text, is based on the following lines of Psalm 107:

"They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the work of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep."

This is a story of the Great North-

VERE HUTCHINSON.

Woods, and the Hudson's Bay company's activities, with a real hero whose youth was filled with all of life's obstacles, but he believed in fighting to overcome them, and having the ability to do so he proved to be a man among men.

Donald Norton was but a mere boy when he was allowed to visit the nearest trading post of the Hudson Bay company—it was his first contact with the outside world, and while he felt the strangeness of his new surroundings, his manliness immediately attracted attention and he was given an opportunity to "make good" as an employee of this great company.

This is an outline of Donald's past and present, and the future of this young hero, with his charming romance, makes a very interesting story.

Robert E. Pinkerton first became known through his interesting short stories published in various magazines and while this is his first novel, like his hero, he has "made good."

The author lived for several years in this wonderful Canadian Northwest in which he experienced many adventures. For several years he was a reporter on a Milwaukee newspaper, but then came the call of the northwest and he immediately "hit the trail" filled every role from a trapper to a guide, and now then had the pleasure of vagabonding down the "water lanes of the north" to use the language of Charles Hanson Towne.

A fine story has been woven around Donald Norton, but another fine story could be woven around the life of Robert Pinkerton, who finds the Pacific still calling him. (Reilly & Lee, Chicago.)

"LETTERS FROM A SENATOR'S WIFE."

This handsome volume containing a collection of letters from Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, wife of the United States senator from New Hampshire, is another story of Washington life as seen by someone who has been spending some time there as a popular member of the presidential family.

She tells different friends the doings of capital life from her point of view, and while there has been perhaps very little real change in capital life since the days of Washington except the changes coming annually and every four years by the change in administration.

That the life of this inner circle is always a great pleasure to one's friends and their friends who are scattered all over the United States.

Mrs. Keyes tells her friends of her long life with the ladies of the social functions where she has met men and women who also belong to this great family who are leaders in Washington.

She writes of the Harding inauguration, the crowds who attended the great international conferences, the death of the president, the funeral of the "Unknown Soldier," the dedication of the Lincoln memorial, and even the important bills passed by congress have given her much interest.

She is delighted with the ladies of the "big family" and dedicates her book to Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Coolidge. (D. Appleton & Co., New York.)

WHY I WROTE "THE BEST PLAYS."

By Burns Mantle.

Previous to the theatrical season of 1919-20 the so-called commercial theater was treated as a sort of stepchild to the arts.

Being nobody's child, and everybody's child, nobody was especially interested in its report card. Such account as was kept of its activities was dictated by its narrower and more selfish guardians.

Thus we heard much of the records and promises of the Little theater, something of the genius-inspired activities of the Foreign theater, and there were occasional references to the American theater and the significance attaching to its woeful lack of this, if not of that.

That year it occurred to us—meaning my publishers and myself—that there was, or should be, a public sufficiently interested in the theater, frankly accepted as the home of a people's entertainment to make the publication of an annual year book of the drama in America both a purposeful and profitable enterprise. We have so far issued four volumes of "The Best Plays" series and we seem to have been right.

As editor of "The Best Plays" series my personal ambition had, and still has, numerous ramifications. I wanted it to be an authoritative work in the sense of reflecting accurately the play-choosing taste of that section of the American public that supports the theater, and thereby determines the trend of drama in America.

And I wanted it to come as a harbinger of peace and harmony to every home. That is to say I wanted it to offer Mrs. Urban the proof she so often needs to convince Mr. Urban that Maude Adams did not, in fact, star in "The Gold Diggers."

And I wanted it to serve the Suburban twins (who have so often been told they really should go on the stage) the time and money they now spend on serious literary and library paste. Here they may say so without seeming to boast more than natural here they have the record without the trouble of collecting the scattered segments of the cast as printed in the regular program. And no longer do they have laboriously to separate these from the underwear advertisements preparatory to putting them in their own book under the wrong headings.

POETRY AND DRAMA.

Garden Grace, by Louise Driscoll, author of "The Garden of the West," will no doubt prove to be as popular as the former volume. Among the attractive titles of her poems are "My Garden Is a Pleasant Place," "Garden Birds," and a very appealing poem is "Late Plowing," the last verse unusually sweet:

"The slim young alders lean against the wall,
All decked with fringes green and delicate;
The red leaves path lies waiting in the sun.
This year the rains have made the plowing late."

She has arranged the poems so as to form a pageant beginning with "April Hours," "Excuse Garden," "June Rain," "September Fields," "November Garden," "Thanksgiving," and "Snow Warning."

The following are the concluding lines of one of her most appealing poems—"Garden Birds":

"These are my friends. There is my garden grace.
For them I plant larkspur and sunflowers.
And set a dish of water in the shade,
I like to think that when my soul is free
It will lift radiant wings and fly to flowers.
I hope I'll find a garden red and white
And gold and amethyst and dusky green.
With a blue, shallow pool, and an old dial
To mark the sunny hours."

FIRST POETRY AWARD.

The editors of The Stratford Monthly announce that a $100.00 prize for the best poem published by them during the past three months has been awarded to Robert Hillier for his poem, "The Halt in the Garden," which appeared in the May number of the magazine.

The present choice was made from over 7,500 poems submitted, there being an average of 100 poems a day received.

Mr. Hillier has a creditable record of literary achievement. While at Harvard he was an editor of the Harvard Monthly and Harvard Advocate, and won the Garrison prize for poetry. He is at present teaching in the English department of that university. He is president of the New England Poetry club and a member of the Boston Authors' club and the Poets, New York. He is author of several published books, has contributed to the best literary periodicals, and was a joint winner of the sea sonnet contest of the Poetry Review.

The next quarterly poetry prize of $100.00 will be awarded to the editors of The Stratford Monthly in September. There is no limitation of space or theme.

Manuscripts should be addressed to The Stratford Monthly, 264 Boylston street, Boston, Mass.

LITERARY DRIFTWOOD.

Emma Speed Sampson's stories of the south are steadily reaching a reading public, far beyond the limits of the locale chosen for the settings of her books. Mrs. Sampson, a native of Virginia, has long delighted a large audience with stories of southern people and their ways. Her latest novel, "Masquerading Mary," will be published this fall. Meanwhile, a recent edition has been issued of one of her earlier books, "The Shorn Lamb," and a fourth popular edition of her "Mammy's White Folks" has just come from the press.

Heywood Brown, dramatic editor of The New York World, and conductor of that much commented upon column, "It Seems to Me," has written a foreword for J. P. McEvoy's comedy, "The Potters."

"The Potters" reflects keen knowledge of the human frailties, with full measure of laughs from beginning to end. Its characters were originally created by Mr. McEvoy for feature stories in newspaper syndication. In play form, they scored a tremendous success at the Plymouth theater, New York, where the play has been running since last Christmas.

"Rhythms of Childhood." Edgar Guest's new book of verse, was published by the Reilly & Lee Co., of May 1. This is the first Guest book to assemble in one volume all of his best-loved poems about children.

Over fifty leading bookstores in New York are this week featuring displays of Edith Wharton's group of four novelettes, "Old New York." They are suggesting to the half-million visitors who the democratic convention is bringing to New York that this set is the ideal souvenir to take home from the city whose early days the stories are set to send to friends. Both in New York and elsewhere throughout the country, "Old New York" appears to be the fiction hit of the season.

Frances Parkinson Keyes, who is the wife of Senator Henry Willier Keyes, had Mr. Coolidge for her guest of honor at luncheon in Washington celebrating the publication of her new book, "Letters From a Senator's Wife," which is dedicated to the first lady of the land, Mrs. Marshall. That the book's appearance should be made an "occasion" in Washington official circles seems very suitable, for what it forms is a picture of the social and political life of the national capital of recent years. Mrs. Keyes recently carried a personal message from President Coolidge to the members of the House of Representatives at their annual meeting.

Thomas Dixon, whose new novel, "The Black Hood," has just been published, spoke from the stage at the Newark Stadium, W.O.R. on Monday evening, June 16. Mr. Dixon's subject was the writing of an historical novel—a most interesting topic, for one who has incorporated so much of our national history in his fiction, including "The Black Hood" with its romantic story of the decline of the first Ku Klux Klan.

New Life Savers' Club.

Formation of a life saving corps will be undertaken Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Boy Scout headquarters, 61 1-2 North Fourth street. Tests will be those prescribed by the American Red Cross and the corps will be affiliated with that organization.

the southeastern states, it was announced from Warner's New York office last week.

Marcus Loew, who recently became the biggest individual in the amusement world through acquisition of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer control, is to throw a chain of Loew theaters across the continent of Europe, it was revealed last week. He is overseas now inspecting the filming of "Ben Hur" at his studio in Rome.

Eric von Stroheim is to direct the picturization of "The Merry Widow" for the Loew interests, with Mae Murray in the star part. Marshall Neilan is to make "The Sporting Venus" for them.

May Movies Make War Unnecessary?

Mary and Doug are the willing mediums this summer through which the world is getting a new idea of just how great a power there lies in a strip of celluloid. In Spain, Denmark and other nations of Europe, America's ambassadors of laughter are welcomed as magnificently as was America's ambassador of peace when his fourteen points were fresh and living things.

Perhaps the pantomime art will mean more for world unity than any laboriously constructed political pact. When all peoples of the world have learned to laugh together they can more easily learn to live together in peace.

James Montgomery Flagg, supposedly famous illustrator, was a less willing medium for a similar slight last week. He was arrested in a Kansas town, mistaken for a forger. The sheriff had never heard of him nor of Irvin Cobb. But he knew who Bill Hart was.

Evelyn's Name Is Nesbit Again.

Evelyn Nesbit, because of whom Harry K. Thaw shot Stanford White, above where the democratic convention is in session, may now eat breakfast with Eugene Strong in negligence or a suit of armor for all Jack Clifford cares. Clifford was granted a New York divorce last week. Her mode of attire while breakfasting with the actor was a principal issue in the suit.

Irene Castle Tremaine McLaughlin is off the stage for a time at least, and she says forever. After her return from Paris next month she is to go home to her latest hubby in Chicago, where she is to appear in a play when she sailed for Europe last week was a book, entitled "Getting Ready to Be a Mother," by Caroline C. Van Blarcom.

Roscoe Arbuckle's attempted comeback in vaudeville in San Francisco has not been a marked success, although the prosecuting attorney in the case that brought him into disrepute issued a statement that his innocence has been established and he has a right to make a living in the only way he knows how. The public, however, lifted an indifferent eyebrow and Fatty's engagement has already closed.

Walter Brooks, New York producer, is to send five new companies on tour this fall in which all the girls will have bobbed hair. His press agent denied any connection with the barbers' union.

Shades of Chopin! Sousa Plays Jazz.

Lieutenant Commander John Philip Sousa opened his thirty-second annual band concert tour at the Pierre DuPont estate near Wilmington, Del., Saturday. A 30-minute program of jazz, featuring "Music of the Minutemen," a medley of current tunes arranged by Sousa himself, was part of the concert. He introduced also his two new marches, "Ancient and Honorable Artillery," and "Power and Glory." He said that the jazz innovation would be retained during the twenty-one weeks of the tour.

Roger Kahn, 16-year-old son of Otto H. Kahn, of the Metropolitan Opera company and numerous bank enterprises, sailed on the Berengaria last week with his own jazz band to do, he said, "some serious work in jazz music in Europe." He may be, in truth, a pioneer missionary of a new and wholly American "school" of music. Mrs. Otto H. Kahn is with him on the trip.

Feodor Chaliapin took Paris by storm last week in "Boris Godunoff." He told the Parisian newspapermen that America is the world's hope for the future of art.

Ignace Paderewski had said the same thing with more adjectives the week before.

Atlantians are to have a private peep at the results of the much-discussed technicolor process of photography at a special showing of Zane Grey's "Wanderer of the Westland" at the Howard theater Sunday afternoon, with admittance by invitation only. Famous Players have bought all rights to the process and, if this picture takes well with the public, may produce a series of natural-color pictures.

Jackie Coogan in "Peck's Bad Boy" was barred from Germany by the board of review, which ruled that German children should be permitted to see only good boys in pictures. They must be protected from the evil influence of the pranks played by the little nephews of Uncle Sam. And at that, the average little American can perpetrate more atrocities in an innocent morning of play than any youngster of any other nation could in a lifetime. It is a question of imagination.

William Loyd and the missus have gone in for the great outdoors and the lure of the wide spaces. Leaving the crowded city they motor out to Camp Kilcare each night after the show to breathe deep of the cool mountain breezes until time for rehearsal next morning at the Lyric theater. "It is quite comfortable in the theater," Mr. Loyd admitted without the slightest reluctance, "but the theater was about the only comfortable place in town last week."

Miss Isabelle Lowe, who has put the feminine portions of her audience a-twitter many times with the lavishness of her costumes, has been the fairy godmother to a little girl out in Hollywood and at least partly responsible for the little girl's winning her fairy price.

The girl was governess to the household of Creighton Hale, famous screen star and one-time Forsyth leading man, who is Miss Lowe's cousin. Many of Miss Lowe's prettiest gowns, once worn and useless here forever after, were sent as presents to the Hollywood governess.

A millionaire, who met her all dressed up, fell in love with her. After he proposed she told him that she was not as wealthy as she looked, but the attachment was too real to be shaken by any such triviality. They are to be married in this merry month of June, and her trousseau will be made up largely of frocks and gowns in which Atlantians have seen Miss Lowe.

The Howard Theater has sent out one thousand invitations for a special screening which will be held at the Howard this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Zane Grey's most popular novel, "Wanderer of the Westland," filmed entirely in natural colors by the famous technicolor process, will be shown. "Wanderer of the Westland" is the first feature length drama to be filmed entirely in the technicolor process using nature's colors as they are. This picture marks a milestone in the development of motion pictures.

TROOP OF BOY SCOUTS PLANNED AT DAWSON

Dawson, Ga., June 27.—(Special.) A Boy scout troop will probably be reorganized in Dawson at an early date as committees from the Dawson Kiwanis club and the Davis-Daniel Post No. 133, American Legion, have been appointed to secure the services of a scout master. On several occasions in the past scout troops have been organized in Dawson, but for the past year or two there has not been an active troop here. With the two organizations behind the movement, reorganization will doubtless be perfected at an early date.

Howard Tax Off.

The Howard theater announces that in accordance with an announcement made some time ago by Harold R. Franklin, director of theaters for Famous Players-Lasky corporation, that patrons of the Howard theater shall benefit immediately by the tag bill and revenue act of 1924, which lifts the federal taxes on all admissions charges between 10 cents and 50 cents. The new law affecting amusements which replaces the present law is effective within thirty days from the date of the president's signature. New tickets are being printed and adjustments made so that the general public will be admitted to the Howard and Rialto theaters at the reduced prices July 3 and after, even though the reduction does not affect any state admission taxes which now exist.

WHAT TO EAT TO PUT IRON IN YOUR BLOOD AND MAKE YOU STRONG

PHYSICIAN TELLS HOW IRON-CONTAINING VEGETABLES SUCH AS LENTILS, SPINACH, APPLES, ETC. WHEN REGULARLY TAKEN WITH NUXATED IRON BUILD GREAT STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE

"At their own doors—in the very garden of those who are weak, nervous and ailing all the while is one of the most valuable tonics and strength-builders known to medical science," said Dr. Emile Seuer, well known New England physician, when consulted recently.

Dr. Seuer further said:—"If your daily diet contains an abundant amount of iron you are giving your body the red blood food it craves. But if your blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery you cannot expect to be strong and well. On the contrary, your nerves become weakened and you become irritable, fussy and easily upset. In such cases, what you need is iron-organic iron to remove the cause of your trouble, and the most organic iron supplied it is often wonderful how quickly your multitude of symptoms will disappear and how strong and vigorous you will become." But be careful to distinguish between ordinary metallic iron which people usually take and true organic iron. Metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings, while organic iron is a true red blood food, like the iron in your blood itself and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. In fact if you will eat just a pint or two of spinach, half a pint of lentils and three or four baked apples each day you will probably not need to take any other form of organic iron; but most people prefer to eat a smaller quantity of iron-containing vegetables and take organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, with them. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. To prove to yourself what Nuxated Iron can do for you, get your doctor to take a specimen of your blood and make a "blood count" of your iron corpuscles. Then take Nuxated Iron for a month and have a new "blood count" made and see how your red blood corpuscles have increased. How much stronger and better you feel; see how the color has come back to your cheeks, how steady and strong your nerves have become. At all druggists.

IF SICK TODAY!

TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel and I want every reader of this paper to buy a bottle for a few cents and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money back. I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clear your thirty feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile nauseating calomel, besides it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work. Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones often causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens while Mr. Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it can not salivate. Give it to the children because it doesn't upset the stomach or shock the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work. (adv.)

JUNE BRIDE

Mrs. Herbert George Horne, whose marriage on Thursday was a social event of interest. Mrs. Horne was formerly Miss Isabel Redding, of Atlanta.

has won a host of friends in the Carolinas and Georgia.

Her father, John Askew Burgess, of Atlanta, Ga., was actively interested in the wholesale drug business of Charleston, S. C., for a number of years.

One of the brothers of the bride is Dr. Taylor Burgess, who has recently graduated from the Johns Hopkins Medical school.

Among the bride's paternal forebears were the DeGraffenreids, who founded Newbern, N. C., and the Fletchers and Askews, of Virginia.

On the maternal side she is of the distinguished Stokes family of South Carolina.

Mr. Clarkson received an A. B. degree from the University of North Carolina with the class of 1916. The L.L. B. degree was conferred by the law school of U. N. C. in 1917. He is a member of the D. K. E. fraternity, and also a member of the Senior Order of the Golden Fleece, one of the highest honors that the student body bestows upon its members.

During the world war he served his country as a fearless flyer and an able instructor as second lieutenant of the U. S. marine corps.

Mr. Clarkson was formerly solicitor of the fourteenth judicial district, and is now junior member of the law firm of Talliaferro & Clarkson, of Charlotte, N. C.

Mr. Clarkson has a background of distinguished ancestry in the Clarksons and Simons of South Carolina on his paternal side, and the Osbornes and Moores of North Carolina on the maternal side.

He is a son of Associate Justice Heriot Clarkson, of the supreme court of the state of North Carolina, and Mary Osborn Clarkson.

Judge Clarkson is a prominent North Carolinian of varied interests, being a member of the North Carolina Historical commission, and also a member of the Society of the Cincinnati.

Miss Baker Weds Marion J. Bouchard.

Samuel Adolphus Baker, of Eastman, Ga., announces the marriage of his daughter, Lucile Erline, to Marion Joseph Bouchard, of Washington, D. C. The marriage took place Wednesday morning, June 25, at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride, with Rev. W. M. Blitch, of Blakely, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Bouchard went immediately to Washington city, where they will be at home to their friends.

Miss Norris Weds Samuel D. Wiggins.

Augusta, Ga., June 28.—Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Lillie S. Norris and Samuel D. Wiggins, which occurred Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the parsonage of the Woodlawn Baptist church. Rev. Charles H. Kopp officiating.

Miss Stinebeck Weds Zack L. Roberts.

Augusta, Ga., June 28.—A social event of June 24 was the marriage of Miss Margaret Eulajoe Stinebeck and Zack L. Roberts, of Anderson, S. C., which was impressively solemnized at the Woodlawn Baptist church. Rev. Charles H. Kopp performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of friends. A beautiful arrangement of palms, vines and daisies were used about the altar.

Mrs. C. A. Pender and Miss Dorothy Pund rendered beautiful wedding music.

The ushers were Thomas Clary, Emory Hoffman, Frank Prince and Frank Clements, of Anderson.

The two bridesmaids were Misses Dorris Rau, of Macon, and Miss Gertrude Sibert. Miss Agnes Bohler was maid of honor. The bride entered with her uncle, John W. Sibert, who gave her in marriage. The groom was attended by Russell Reid, of Anderson, as best man.

The bridesmaids all wore lovely gowns of voile and lace made alike but of different colors. Miss Sibert's being orchid, Miss Rau's primrose, Miss Bohler's pink. Their hats were broad picture hats of white and their flowers armfuls of dainty long-stemmed pink roses and fern.

The bride wore a smart creation of gray Canton crepe finished with embroidery in orange and orchid tones. Her hat was a small model in gray with embroideries repeating the color on the dress. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies showered with lilies.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for a motor trip to Macon, Atlanta, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Hendersonville and Asheville before going to Anderson, where they will make their home.

Mrs. McGuire Gives Children's Party.

Mrs. George McGuire was hostess at a children's party at her home on Flat Shoals avenue Monday afternoon in celebration of the birthday of her son, George Burgess.

A color scheme of pink and white prevailed.

The little guests were Willie Scarbrough, Elizabeth Harris, Mable Wallace, Virginia Ward, Harold Harris, Charles and Eugene Everitt, John and Ralph Howell, Milton Hornbuckle, Paul Hornbuckle, Jr., Jack and Sarah Austin, Marian Sumner, Nellie Adams, Thelma Baker, Elizabeth DeLoach, Milton Prather and Marion Sumner.

Miss Eastlack Presents Pupils.

Miss Sarah Adelle Eastlack, of the Eastlack School of Oratory, will present the members of the Dramatic club of the school in "A Comedy of Rejuvenation," a three-act play, at the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium, Monday evening, June 30, at 8:15 o'clock. Music by the Knobel Ampico. The program will start promptly. The public is invited.

Miss Gilbert Weds Mr. Eppes.

The marriage of Miss Mary Frances Gilbert and Clarence Edward Eppes, of Chattanooga, Tenn., was solemnized Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lucy F. Gilbert. An improvised altar of palms and ferns marked the place where the impressive ceremony was performed. Pedestal baskets of gladioli flanked by cathedral candlesticks holding waxen tapers accentuated the beauty of the bridal setting.

The ring-bearer, little Edwin Gilbert, wearing a white silk suit, carried the ring in the heart of a pink rose.

The lovely young bride entered with her mother, Mrs. Lucy F. Gilbert, by whom she was given in marriage. The bride's gown was of shell pink Georgette crepe accented with panels down the front. She carried a bouquet of pink roses showered with dainty valley lilies.

A pretty bit of sentiment was the quaint handkerchief ring, which the bride carried, this ring having been carried by the bride's mother on her wedding day.

Mrs. Gilbert wore a handsome gown of black flat crepe, trimmed in lace with a corsage of lavender sweet peas and valley lilies. The bride was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Dr. John Smoot, of Knoxville, Tenn. The ceremony was performed by Dr. R. C. Cleckler, of the First Methodist church. During the ceremony McDowell's "To a Wild Rose" was softly played by Randolph Clairborne.

Mr. and Mrs. Eppes will spend their honeymoon at Asheville, N. C., later visiting the groom's relatives in Knoxville, Tenn., where they will be entertained extensively.

Miss Haddock Weds Mack M. Mewborne.

Athens, Ga., June 28.—The wedding of Miss Sarah Agnes Haddock and Mack M. Mewborne was an event of interest, taking place on Wednesday evening, June 18, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Haddock, on Prince avenue.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Samuel J. Cartledge, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, and the guests were relatives and close friends.

The bride had as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Claudia Haddock, who was gowned in georgette crepe of a lovely orchid shade, her hat corresponding in color, and her flowers of pink and lavender sweet peas.

The bride was gowned in brown georgette with hat and accessories to match. She wore a corsage of pink Columbia roses.

The groom was attended by his brother, Holman Mewborne, of Atlanta, as best man.

Following a reception Mr. and Mrs. Mewborne left by automobile for a trip through North Carolina. On their return they will be at home on South Lumpkin street. Mrs. Mewborne wore a traveling suit of dark blue and hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudgins Honor Sons.

Wednesday afternoon, June 25, Clark, Jr., and Jack Hudgins entertained a number of their friends at a birthday party at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hudgins, on Marietta road.

Fruit punch was served throughout the afternoon by little Misses Lois Moody and Beverly Peoples.

After many games were enjoyed the guests were invited into the dining room, which was artistically decorated. The color scheme was carried out in American Beauty shade.

Two birthday cakes with lighted candles adorned the tables.

Those present were: Misses Mary Douglas Copeland, Katherine Elder, Ma Mae Holmbeck, Ruth Ham, Helen Sams, Frances Kemp, Marie Ribelin, Lois Ribelin, Beverly Peoples, Lois Moody, Mary Frances Campbell, Nell Hudgins, Freda Bell Holmbeck, Mary McWaters, Bobbie Lou Copeland, Lyman Bohler, T. J. Campbell, Millard Madden, Joseph Woodruff, Clark Hudgins, Jr., and Jack Hudgins.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudgins and Mrs. G. T. Peoples assisted in entertaining.

Langston-Stuefer Wedding Is Brilliant Monroe Event

Monroe, Ga., June 28.—The marriage of Miss Grace Langston to William George Stuefer, of Indianapolis, Ind., was solemnized on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock, at the First Baptist church of Monroe.

The bride attendants included Miss Marie Stuefer, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Shelby Langston, Miss Florence Arnold, Marshall Pollock, Miss Elizabeth Nowell, Sid Wheeler, Miss Mary Sue Harris, Julian Kelly, Miss Frances Langston, maid of honor, and Edith Taylor, little flower girl. The bride entered with her father, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, George Reeves, of Cleveland, Ohio. Rev. J. H. Webb performed the ceremony.

The bridesmaids wore lace trimmed Georgette dresses in rainbow hues. Their bouquets were of roses and sweet peas and blue corn flowers. Their bandeaux were of silver cloth and brilliants. The maid of honor wore blue Georgette and carried pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride. The lower floor of the spacious Langston home was beautifully decorated with smilax and cut flowers. In the parlor where the guests were received, the decorations were of gladioli. In the dining room the color motif was in white and green. Easter lilies were the central decoration for the lovely dining table. Wall vases of delphinium were also used in this room.

The bride and groom left later in the evening for an extended trip. The bride's going away dress was of lovely caramel satin face crepe, with accessories to match.

REGENSTEIN'S

Many Events Being Planned For Visitors

The social calendar for the week foretells a gay and interesting round of events inspired by summer brides, attractive visitors and popular members of Atlanta's society who have just returned or will be leaving soon for distant points and cooler climes, lured away by the pleasures of mountain, seaside or health resorts. Foremost among the affairs of the week will be the meeting of the Peachtree Garden club on Monday, at which Mrs. Andrew Calhoun will be the charming hostess, entertaining at her handsome new home on Pace's Ferry road. Set down in a garden of old world magnificence, the lovely home of Mrs. Calhoun will bring added interest to the meeting of the club to which is always attached much social importance, owing to the prominence of the group of young Atlanta matrons who make up the personnel of the club. The features of the afternoon's program will be informal talks by Mrs. Morris Brandon, whose subject will be "Bulbs," and by Mrs. Robert Lee Cooney, who will speak on "Wild Flowers."

Miss Stahlman Charming Guest.

Eliciting great admiration among the bevy of charming visitors in the city is Miss Frances Stahlman who, as the guest of Miss Mary Shedden, at her home on Peachtree road, continues to be feted at a number of informal affairs. Mr. and Mrs. F. Ellison Adams are receiving much social attention as the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Clarke, and will be delightfully entertained until Wednesday, on which date they will return to their home in New York. Miss Mary Mack, of Thomasville, always an admired and popular visitor in the city, will be feted at social functions during the coming week as the guest of Miss Margaret Elder. Other attractive visitors in the city are Misses Dorothy and Marjorie Heath, of Sumter, S. C., the guests of Mrs. Albert Howell, Sr., at her home in West End. Mrs. James Crawford, of Nashville, Tenn., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ira Sage, at her home on Peachtree place, and during the coming week she will be the central figure at a group of parties planned in her honor. Miss Mildred Brumback, the guest of Miss Katherine Stanford; Miss June Newbold, the guest of Miss Anna Harriet Shewmake; and Miss Mary Matheson, the guest of Miss Virginia Howard, are claiming the attentions of the younger set of society and are being delightfully entertained. Mrs. James De Rake, of Baltimore, Md., who has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. William Lohse, will spend the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Frank W. Burr, at her home on Peachtree circle. Miss Martha Alsop, of Richmond, Va., arrived Saturday to visit Mrs. J. Russell Porter, at her home on the Prado, and she will be the inspiration of a number of lovely, informal affairs during her visit.

Mrs. John M. Slaton will be hostess at tea on Monday at "Wingfield" in compliment to Miss Margaret Block, this to be one of a series of parties honoring Miss Block and her mother, Mrs. Francis Block, since their recent return from a European tour.

Among the school set Miss Carol Henry and her brother, William Henry, of Philadelphia, Pa., are being delightfully entertained as the guests of their aunt, Mrs. Robert C. Alston.

Carrying wide social interest is the joint convale to be held in the city beginning today and continuing through Thursday, by the members of the Sigma Theta Pi sorority and the Psi Chi fraternity. Brilliant balls, banquets, teas, luncheons and a fresco events will occupy the time of the visitors, who include among their number the national officers of the two orders and other prominent figures.

Driving Club Dinner-Dance.

The broad terrace of the Piedmont country club was the scene of a prettily out-of-door affair Saturday evening, where a large number of members and visitors assembled for the regular week-end dance.

Mr. and Mrs. William K. Jenkins entertained at dinner in compliment to their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Hall, of Miami, Fla. Covers were placed for Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woodward and Captain Horace Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Disoway had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tompkins and Henry Newman.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Royer entertained a group of friends in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Holland B. Jenkins and Mr. and Mrs. Sanders Hickey. Invited to meet these honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crumley, Mr. and Mrs. William Glenn and Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn.

Benjamin D. Watkins was host to Mrs. Edward Van Winkle, Mrs. Adelaide Howell Bower and Van Astor Batchelor.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar Roy entertained 16 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Newell entertained a group of friends in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashcraft, who will leave soon for Europe.

Others present were Miss Emmie Nixon, Miss Frances Stahlman, Miss Mary Shedden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crandall, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Becker and Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Flemming.

Mrs. Frank W. Burr To Give Luncheon.

Mrs. James De Rake, of Baltimore, Md., who has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. William Lohse, at her home in the Pallas apartments on Peachtree road, will spend the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Frank W. Burr, at her home on Peachtree circle.

Mrs. Burr will entertain at a luncheon party in honor of her guest at the East Lake Country club Tuesday.

Misses Gay Are Hostesses Saturday.
A delightful social event of Saturday was the bridge-ten at which Misses Annette and Louise Gay entertained at their home on Myrtle street in honor of Miss Mildred Brumback, the guest of Miss Katherine Stanford; Miss June Newbold, the guest of Miss Anna Harriet Shewmake, and Miss Mary Matheson, the guest of Miss Virginia Howard.

The reception rooms where the game was played were decorated in a profusion of summer garden flow-

Gala Programs Will Celebrate Fourth at Clubs

The formal launching of the summer social season will get well underway and Atlantans will be precipitated into a round of patriotic festivities with the approaching celebration of July Fourth. The signing of the national independence will be commemorated with more than the usual enthusiasm and interest, the occasion being marked by a number of dances, parties, teas and luncheons.

First on the program of gala events will be the brilliant dinner-dance to be given on the roof garden of the Capital City club, Thursday evening, July 5. Always a nonpareil rendezvous for the members and their friends during the hot months of the summer, the attractive roof garden will present an unusually colorful scene with its boxes of blooming shrubs and flowers and the elaborate decorations of myriads of colored lanterns, carrying out the patriotic colors. Several hundred guests will assemble for dinner at 8:30 o'clock and dancing will continue until a late hour on the cool, breeze-swept roof.

The Atlanta Biltmore, popular center of social activities in the city, will entertain at a horse show dinner-dance in celebration of the Fourth. The Governor's Horse Guards, that military organization of which Atlanta is justly proud, will sponsor the horse show at Piedmont park and following the event an alfresco dinner will be served at 8 o'clock on the beautiful terrace of the handsome hostelry. During dinner the prize-winners at the horse show will be exhibited. Dancing will follow on the artistically decorated terrace, which will be gay with flowers and streamers, and attractive patriotic favors will mark the places of the guests.

Brilliant Program At East Lake.

Beginning early in the afternoon on Friday the East Lake Country club will open its hospitable doors in honor of the occasion and a succession of joyous and interesting events will mark the program which will last late into the evening. A number of guests will assemble for swimming parties and cooling, later joining other groups who will motor out for the tea-dance, which will take place on the delightful terrace overlooking the lake. As soon as it is dark enough a gorgeous display of fireworks will center the attention of the large throng which will include many visitors and out-of-town guests. The fireworks will be visible during the dinner hour from the beautifully decorated and softly lighted terrace. Afterwards dancing will feature the evening's entertainment and lovely favors, appropriate to the occasion, will be distributed among the guests.

Wedding Plans of Miss Jones and Mr. Lyle.

Announcement is made today of the wedding plans of Miss Annie Belle Jones and Dan Connally Lyle, Jr., which will be a beautiful affair of Wednesday evening, July 9, at the home of the bride in College Park. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. L. E. Roberts, of the College Park Baptist church, in the presence of the two families, relatives and close friends. Preceding the marriage service Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Jones, brother and sister of the bride-elect, will sing a group of appropriate songs. The wedding march will be played by Mr. C. O. Hobbs, of Greenville, S. C., sister of the bride-elect.

Miss Jones will be given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Albinus Judson Jones, who will also act as best man of honor.

Alfred Drake will attend Mr. Lyle as best man.

Little Misses Douglas Lyle and Jeannette Rainey, nieces of the bride-elect, will be the flower girls and Master Bruce Lyle, small brother of the groom, will be ring bearer.

Following the ceremony the bride-elect's mother will entertain the bridal party and wedding guests at a reception.

Miss Jones will be tendered a number of social affairs preceding her marriage, the first to be an elaborate reception to be given on the evening of July 2, by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Drake at their home in College Park.

The mother of the groom-to-be, Mrs. D. C. Lyle, Jr., will entertain at a large reception in honor of Miss Jones on her return from her wedding journey, inviting a large number of Atlanta and College Park friends to meet her.

Miss Dean In Detroit.

Miss Marion Dean left recently for Detroit, Mich., where she is being extensively entertained as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brittain.

With Mr. and Mrs. Brittain she has enjoyed a trip to Canada, and on July 6 will go with them to Washington, D. C., for a stay before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hickey, Jr., To Arrive Next Week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Edwin Hickey, Jr., whose marriage was a recent brilliant event in Americus, Ga., will arrive in Atlanta the latter part of the week and will be at home in the Pershing Point apartments.

They are now touring Canada and will visit New York and Atlantic City en route to Atlanta.

Mrs. Hickey will be the recipient of a number of social courtesies on her arrival and will be a delightful acquisition to Atlanta society.

Mrs. W. C. Royer will compliment her nieces, Mrs. J. E. Hickey, Jr., and Mrs. Sanders Hickey, charming bride of the past winter, with an elaborate reception during July on the terrace of the Biltmore hotel.

Miss Briggs To Wed Wilmer C. Davis.

Wide social interest centers today in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Helen Briggs and Wilmer Crouch Davis.

Miss Briggs is the youngest daughter of Mrs. M. A. Briggs and the late Mathew A. Briggs, of Valdosta.

She has lived since childhood in Atlanta, and attended Washington seminary, where she was a popular member of the Pi Pi Sorority. Later Miss Briggs spent two years in New York where she completed her education at a fashionable school for girls.

The lovely bride-elect possesses a decided charm of manner and is one of the most popular young girls in society. She is of beautiful brunette type, which together with a most attractive personality makes her an admired figure in the college contingent.

She is a descendant from a distinguished line of ancestry dating back to the Revolutionary war. Her great grandparents were the late Dr. William Henry Briggs and Caroline Monroe Briggs, sister of James Monroe, the fifth president of the United States. They moved from Massachusetts to south Georgia, where the family has resided ever since. She is a direct descendant of John Marshall, chief justice of United States supreme court, also of the Stokes family of the Carolinas.

The bride-elect's father was one of the most prominent citizens of south Georgia and well known throughout the state. She is a sister of Mrs. A. H. Dyer, of Cincinnati. Mrs. George Brown, Jr., Mrs. John Oliver, Mrs. Sam L. DuBose, Miss Honey Briggs and M. A. Briggs, all of Atlanta.

Mr. Davis, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Davis, attended Culver Naval academy and graduated at Castle Heights Military academy. Later he attended Georgia School of Technology, where he was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He is a member of the Druid Hills Golf club, and is connected in business with the Adair Realty and Trust company.

He is a representative of a distinguished southern family. Johnathan Davis, the founder of the family in the United States, was a native of England and of Welsh descent, settling in Virginia about 1742. Later he moved to Georgia, and from this family, which is especially prominent in Georgia, extending into adjacent and even far distant states, have come preachers, lawyers, physicians and bankers.

William H. Davis and James J. Davis, prominent in Baptist educational circles in Georgia, were both for many years trustees of Mercer university. The son of the former, Judge William H. Davis, is now chairman of the board of trustees of that university.

On his maternal side he comes from a distinguished family of French descent. His mother before her marriage was Miss Annie Louise Crouch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Crouch, of Dawson, Ga.

Mr. Davis is a native of southern Georgia, the family having resided at Dawson for many years, where his father had extensive mercantile, banking and manufacturing interests. The marriage of this popular young couple will be an event of July 24, at the Ponce de Leon Baptist church.

Transfusion In Education

This striking mode of expression was employed by the Rev. William E. Gardner, executive secretary, national department of religious education in the Episcopal church, during the course of an address to diocesan educational executives at their recent national conference in Brookline, Mass.

To those assembled it was given to see, by means of the symbolism used, how vital is the transfusion, from the stronger to the weaker, of that spiritual life which transcends the physical existence and nurtures spiritual growth. Inasmuch as the one Source of Life Eternal is the Lord Jesus Christ, the only means of manifesting Him to others, Dr. Gardner made it very clear, lies in one's own experimental knowledge of Him. In experience alone, he pointed out, "in a life united to God through Jesus Christ," and only in such, can one hope to find resources for that transfusion which is coming more and more to be recognized as the essential factor in religious education. If Jesus Christ be not the supreme Reality to the teacher, how can it be hoped that those whose lives are untouched shall be brought to know and love Him.

Furthermore, as a teacher's capacity for such transfusion develops through these spiritual impacts, he or she comes to recognize how manifold are the channels through which God and His Christ may be made a reality to the youthful mind. By way of illustration it is a simple matter to lead a child to reliance upon Providential care when given adequate examples of it out of human experience.

The great channel through which the Holy Spirit manifests Himself is the church, and a closer union with that which is Christ's representative on earth results in a more spiritual life for both child and adult when the latter recognizes his responsibility for guidance. It is in the measure of his own devotion, loyalty and service, interpreted with the comprehension of the child, which establishes his value as a consecrated teacher.

To the prepared teacher, for to consecration must be added preparation, new avenues are constantly opening by which a child may be put in right human relations, as well as in the right relation with His Father in Heaven and the one who can correlate the various channels and experiences to the spiritual enrichment of individual lines will have reached a high plane in the master art of religious education.

Church School Workers Hold Conference at All Saint's

A successful conference of church school workers of the diocese of Atlanta was held in All Saints parish house, June 21-22.

The convention was called to order by the Rev. Oliver J. Hart, of Macon, chairman of the department of religious education.

After the opening prayer was made by the Rev. W. W. Menninger, minutes of the previous convention were read and a treasurer's report given by Mr. George B. Hinman.

Rev. Oliver J. Hart addressed the convention, taking for his subject, "The Diocesan Standard and the Church School." He pointed out that only in their united effort could they find themselves empowered to present Him to others.

Mrs. C. C. Hoke, of Holy Trinity church, Decatur, gave an inspiring talk on church school activities, in which she made a plea for fuller cooperation between the church and the church school, declaring the latter to be a training camp for the church in the various activities it is to be seen that the church exerts an increasing influence on the daily lives of youth, which is especially notable through the Church School Service league.

The Rev. R. R. Claiborne, of St. James church, Marietta, spoke next of the need of a standardized efficiency and presented the merits of the National Accredited Teachers' association. This was followed by an interesting discussion of the best music for children, led by Professor William S. Bailey, of Wesleyan college, Macon.

This completed the afternoon program and following an hour's intermission a delicious supper was served to all the delegates in Eleston hall.

Finding Men For Ministry.

The Lutheran Brotherhood of the Church of the Redeemer, one of the oldest if not the first organization of its kind in existence, always active in the affairs of the church, generous in its benevolent work and active in Christian educational work, has just completed the first year in its "Men for the Ministry" drive.

A little more than a year ago, it came to the attention of this small band of active Christian men, men who are not only willing to give of their means, time and talents for the upbuilding of the Kingdom, that some of our boys, especially in the rural districts, were being lost to the ministry, due to the fact that they were unable financially to make the necessary preparation.

The brotherhood undertook to remove this barrier and offered what ever assistance was necessary to enable them to complete their education to as many boys as could be located the first year.

Three boys were given their first year at college and arrangements made for them to complete their education, the men of the brotherhood doing what they could personally and soliciting aid from our local and other Lutheran congregations.

Some individual organization has to accept the responsibility of leadership to handle any proposition to a successful conclusion and we are elated that our brotherhood has taken the first step. Only a few years and these boys will be active in the ministry.

Another scholarship is available now for September term and our men are active on both sides, one looking for the boys who meet the requirements, the other for scholarships, funds.

A general campaign of this kind would, in a few years, fill every vacant pulpit and supply men, well equipped, for service as foreign missionaries.

Women Will Give Cathedral Chimes To Fine New Church

Of course, all Atlanta knows by this time, that the First Christian Church (Disciples) is to have a brand new home before many moons. A magnificent replica of the famous Melrose Abbey will rear its giant towers to the sky, out at the corner of Peachtree and Spring that will not only be one of the most beautiful temples of worship in this fair city of ours, but in the entire south. This will prove a regular Mecca to our people all over the southland and will help and strengthen our great cause as nothing else could.

Fifteenth century Gothic in the type of architecture selected and everything toward the minutest detail must be commensurate with its commanding exterior. The female contingent having pledged the magnificent sum of $25,000 toward the building of the church wanted to put it into something specific and not just into the general building fund. Something that could be pointed out as a monument to their earnest endeavor and faithful labor.

At first, many wanted to contribute the organ, as so many other women have done before them, but while this has not been finally passed upon, it is believed that in a specially constructed tower silver tongued cathedral chimes will be installed, and like the rain that falls equally upon the just and the unjust, these deep-throated bells will pour out melody over the entire city. How often have I heard my mother relate the sensation one has upon hearing them of an early morning, and of one special one in far off days of yore, and how often at Christmas time when Adeline Fidelity ("Oh, Come All Ye Faithful") announced to the world that again had come the anniversary of our Savior's birth.

Steady Income Needed.

But, as has been the case, from time immemorial, the question as to how it could be done was uppermost in every woman's mind. Dinners, suppers, rummage sales, bazaars and the like would be mere casual enterprises bringing only modest sums at best. Something must be done to produce a steady income, and as nothing in the world is more certain to a man in a general mood and set him at peace with the world is to appease the pangs of hunger, of course, the old and well-worn and tried restaurant or luncheon room was thought of. It had been so successfully tried in Atlanta and has proven so immensely successful financially. We started with four tables in connection with a little thrift store (to which all articles donated by merchants at home and abroad) so as to get the crowd started on a beaten path to our new enterprise. The assumption of the famous Emersonian mouse trap. It has certainly worked and tables were added to until they have completely filled our space and the articles in the thrift shop have been packed away until we have adequate space for both enterprises.

The twelve circles of the Ladies' Aid society have one day every two weeks which they sponsor when they are supposed to get waitresses and a cashier from the personnel of their own circle. Of course, this isn't all easy, for all through life there are always a faithful few who will go through fire and water to accomplish a specific purpose, while the majority sit idly by and make futile excuses. The Biblical crowd who invited allis when invited to the wedding feast gave excuses that were flat, stale and unprofitable compared to those of a bunch of uninterested women can compare up, but in some way we always manage to have adequate assistance and some of the women who work in no other department of the church are most conscientious about observing their set days and also helping out on ordinary when Sammy has the carache or the cook failed to come in the families of the women who were scheduled to appear.

Equipment Secured.

At first the circle leaders and their cohorts had to make out their own menus and cook the meals themselves with little or no equipment, but as the crowds flocked, more equipment was purchased, cook, dish washers, boys to remove the used dishes from the tables, etc., were added to the staff. Most important of all, one of our members who always looks as fresh as a mountain daisy, or to mix metaphors, cool as the proverbial cucumber, and who keeps her head and temper in the same order she does her appearance, sees to the buying and the preparation of the food. Two of the leaders among the women have emergency lists, i. e. women of the church who don't work in the women's organizations, but who usually respond cordially when asked to help on certain days. A far-famed cook prepares the menus ahead, so that cards may be printed (but, of course, times are changed with the season's offerings and the special tables) each person attends to a special duty assigned them in the serving and arrangement of the lunches on their own particular day.

Whereas nothing but foreign restaurants formerly flourished in the vicinity of our lunch room serving grease-soaked and soggy food, there is now a place where really, truly, home-cooked meals are served and may be had for a very moderate sum indeed. This same sum buys a sandwich (and when one has to eat the same varieties six times a week, one's soul longs for something new and different) muddly coffee, pitiful slop and weak and a pie with a leather bottom that defies the sharpest knife, most of the lunch counters, so from a mere handful our clientele is now composed of folks from the large office buildings and corporations adjacent as well as most of the large department stores of the city uptown. Therefore, the dull imagination can almost hear the fairy lilt of the chimes that will call many to the morning made possible by an earnest, consecrated, energetic band of women who wish to add their quota to one of the finest churches to soon become an integral part of the magic city of Atlanta—the "queen of cities"—the New York, yes, verily of the south.

First Assistant to the Minister.

Miss Jane Cody Garow, granddaughter of Colonel William F. Cody, will unveil the bronze statue recently done by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, which the Buffalo Bill Association is to place at the Wyoming entrance to Yellowstone park on July 4.

Leader To Be Honored

Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Cartersville, president of Baptist Women's Missionary Union of Georgia, in whose honor W. M. U. of Atlanta association will give a luncheon on Thursday, July 3, at 1 o'clock, in the banquet hall of Atlanta Woman's club.

Briefly Told

During these June days, when the mercury has been hovering around the nineties in Atlanta, it is refreshing to hear from absent friends and our editors who are having delightful trips during vacation times.

Miss Rosa Woodberry, state editor, is in Los Angeles, Cal., having enjoyed the privilege of attending the convention of the National Federation of Women's Clubs. Miss Woodberry is known throughout the state as a skilled parliamentarian, having had the honor for many years of being parliamentarian for the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Elijah Brown and Mrs. T. L. Lewis have been taking the place of Miss Woodberry during her absence.

Mrs. Elijah Brown, our Methodist editor, who went east about the middle of June with her husband and children, writes: "We are having delightful weather in New York. The river was lovely today (June 18) as we came by the Palisades and saw the Leviathan sail with several Atlantans on board."

From Chimney Rock, North Carolina, Miss Dorothy Kellam sends greetings and wishes to all W. M. U. camp in these beautiful mountains is proving a wonderful success. I love my new work and all these fine "Tall-tell" people."

From Rome, Ga., comes a message to Mrs. C. W. King, mission study chairman for the Atlanta Baptist W. M. U., from Mrs. Rani White, mission study chairman of Georgia W. M. U., expressing her interest in the mission study school conducted by Mrs. King at the Baptist tabernacle.

Mrs. White also asks that the school remember in prayer the Blue Ridge mission study class which will be held during the Georgia Blue Ridge assembly, July 31 to August 9.

Mrs. W. A. Hartman, superintendent of the W. M. U. of the Atlanta association, left Atlanta last week for a much-needed rest in Florida. Mrs. White also asks that the school remember in prayer the Blue Ridge mission study class which will be held during the Georgia Blue Ridge assembly, July 31 to August 9.

Before leaving the city, Mrs. Hartman appointed Mrs. H. A. Etheridge, the association's superintendent; Mrs. C. W. King and Mrs. George Westmoreland as the committee on arrangements for the luncheon to Mrs. Neel, which is to take place in the banquet hall of the Atlanta Woman's club, July 3, at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. J. W. Smith, secretary of the fourth district of the Atlanta association, and press chairman of the organization, is chairman of the luncheon tickets.

In a report, made recently by Mrs. E. W. Lipscomb, home cultivation secretary of the Woman's Council of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, it was most gratifying to note the gain made during the past year. There are 10,531 organizations with a membership of 282,925. During the year 626 organizations were effected and the pledge made at the council meeting was overpaid by $4,748. The obligation of this increased work are tremendous.

The Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, is holding a series of lectures on "Orange Blossom Engagement Rings" and "Wedding Rings."

Funds Are Needed For Georgia Hall In Shanghai, China

Of interest to all Southern Baptist women is the noteworthy fact that pledges of Georgia women to the 75 million campaign amounting to $2,282,013 made it practical and eminently fitting that the foreign mission board of the Southern Baptist convention should approve and begin the erection of a school building in Shanghai, China, to be known as "Georgia Hall" and become a central plant for the kindergarten chain of schools under the supervision of our own Miss Catherine Bryan.

After a furlough in America in which Miss Bryan spent many laborious months at Columbia university, New York City, perfecting herself in her chosen profession, she returned June 1 to China with a master's degree diploma—a document greatly respected by the best educators in China and indeed the world over. Miss Bryan has done her part nobly and so far as in her lies the success of a splendid kindergarten program is fully assured.

But there is another side to this well planned program. It is on this side of the waters. It is ours to face. The foreign mission board is richly placed in its unlimited confidence in our 75 million campaign pledges; but sad to record, the board has been compelled in all of its forward movements to reckon with unpaid pledges. Thus it happens that the completion of "Georgia Hall" along with other much needed progress is held in abeyance.

Trusting the fidelity of our women the foreign mission board began the well planned structure in Shanghai, China, to be known by the name of "Georgia Hall," gift of the Baptist women of the Empire State of the Southern Baptist convention. Immediately a note of joy was sounded in our ears, the melody of which should never grow less concordant, until we can truly say: "All things are now ready. We have attained the intense joy of complete achievement."

"Georgia Hall," according to original plans, it is to be a two-story building two stories high with mansard roof. Reports come from Shanghai that "Georgia Hall" is not yet ready for Miss Bryan's enlarged kindergarten plan. Georgia women will not allow the unhappy spectacle of an unfinished kindergarten building to stand.

Those who began to build and were not able to finish. No Baptist woman of Georgia have a will to perform and a way to accomplish. A goodly number of our women have been entrusted by God with a large stewardship fund.

A notable example of this fact may be found in Mrs. Jessie Durham, of Woodville, Ga., who not only has recently given $5,000 to the Georgia Baptists Orphans' Home, but a check of the same amount has been given by her to the foreign mission board to be used in building a memorial training school at Kneihli, China, for native Christian workers, under the direction of Missionary C. J. Lowe to be the "Estes Durham" school in honor of Mrs. Durham's son who gave his life in the recent world war. Such timely gifts from one of our own women should be an inspiration to provoke another to a similar good work. However, if God has a different method for the completion of "Georgia Hall" it may be found in the joining of all hands and hearts with an unflinching determination that every pledge to the 75 million campaign be promptly paid in full and then, if possible, some more.

Baptist Auxiliary Lays Plans for Hospital Work

A large number of women braved the summer sultriness to attend the June meeting of the Woman's auxiliary of the Georgia Baptist hospital. The interest and enthusiasm grows steadily. Women who have attended for twelve years still attend and greet new recruits at every meeting.

The work and purpose of this auxiliary is two-fold: Through the earnest endeavors of its members it strives to answer any call the hospital may make in the way of purchasing physical equipment; paying transportation home of adult patients unable to do so for themselves; purchasing braces, linens, etc., for others wholly dependent, and contributing largely to the donation of linens the year around.

On the other hand, it answers the call of little children over the state, who, with outstretched arms, beg an entrance into the little cradle ward, where they may find a new life free from the fetters of deformity, disease and accident.

It strives to respond to the call of the despairing mother whose little one must continue through life a hopeless invalid or pass forever into the unknown.

In Shanghai telling its own story of those who began to build and were not able to finish. No Baptist woman of Georgia have a will to perform and a way to accomplish. A goodly number of our women have been entrusted by God with a large stewardship fund.

A notable example of this fact may be found in Mrs. Jessie Durham, of Woodville, Ga., who not only has recently given $5,000 to the Georgia Baptists Orphans' Home, but a check of the same amount has been given by her to the foreign mission board to be used in building a memorial training school at Kneihli, China, for native Christian workers, under the direction of Missionary C. However, if God has a different method for the completion of "Georgia Hall" it may be found in the joining of all hands and hearts with an unflinching determination that every pledge to the 75 million campaign be promptly paid in full and then, if possible, some more.

All praise and thanksgiving to the blessed institution which makes all this possible.

Gladly Recommends Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Nebraska. "I was married twelve years before my boy was born. I had a lot of female troubles and had been treated by a physician for them but they continued much the same. Then I read your advertisement in the newspapers and thought I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a good trial, for if it had helped others, why not me? I have taken 36 bottles of the medicine and am never without it in the house. My baby boy is three years old now and I sure am happy since I got relief from my troubles. When any one has troubles like mine, or any ways like mine, I am always glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound so that they will get the right kind of medicine."—Mrs. JOE NOVAK, Box 652, Louisville, Neb.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Miss Colclough Weds Mr. Whelchel At Penfield

Penfield, Ga., June 28.—One of the most beautiful weddings of the season was that of Miss Frances Etta Colclough, youngest daughter of J. M. Colclough, of Penfield, and Rev. Fred Whelchel, of Atlanta, which was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, June 25, at 5 o'clock at the Presbyterian church at Penfield.

The officiating minister was Rev. Hal Boswell, a cousin of the bride and pastor of the church. The doors and windows of the quaint little building outlined with similar, the platform banked with ferns and palms and the tall floor baskets and white pedestals topped with crystal bowls filled with Easter lilies formed a beautiful background, while a graceful arch covered with garlands of similar and showered with Easter lilies and lilies of the valley formed a setting of beauty for the bridal party. Seven-branched candelabra with delicate tracery of similar and showered with valley lilies held burning white tapers. The pews reserved for the families and intimate friends were marked with garlands of tulle and smiling caught with clusters of Easter lilies.

Preceding the entrance of the bridal party George Daniel sang Cadman's "At Dawning." Master Francis Smith was ring-bearer. Then followed the little flower girls, Ethelyn Boswell and Dorothy Edwards, cousins of the bride, wearing pink organdy and carrying pink sweet peas in baskets with long handles tied with fluffy bows of pink tulle.

The bride had as her only attendant her niece, Miss Jane Smith, of Watkinsville, who wore orchid chiffon and carried pink Killarney roses tied with pink tulle. She was followed by her young sister, Sara Jo Smith, dressed in white organdy and carrying a small Marie Antoinette basket filled with rose petals which she scattered in the path of the approaching bride.

The groom entered with his brother, Henry Whelchel, of Gainesville, who acted as best man. They were met at the chancel by the bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, J. H. Colclough.

The bride, who is one of the most beautiful and accomplished young women of Georgia, was radiantly lovely in her bridal robe, an exquisite creation of ivory satin minuet. The bodice, made long-waisted, was sleeveless and reflected the becoming bateau neck. The draped skirt, carrying a flounce of silk, Spanish lace, was caught at the left side with a cluster of orange blossoms. The long court train fell from the shoulders and was edged with a band of Callot tulle and outlined with hand-fashioned tiny satin orange blossoms. The wedding veil of Callot tulle studded with orange blossoms and buds had a coronet of rose point and duchess lace embroidered in seed pearls. Her slipper of white satin were ornamented with tiny bows of tulle with centers of orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet was of bride's roses, from the center of which rose a cluster of pale lavender orchids and showered with valley lilies and white satin ribbons.

Following the church ceremony a very informal reception was given at the home of the bride. The out-of-town guests included the groom's mother and sister, Mrs. Julia Whelchel and Miss Blanche Whelchel, of Gainesville; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paschall, of Buckhead; Dr. and Mrs. Smith, of Watkinsville; Ernest Colclough, of Columbia, S. C.; Mr. and

Miss Greer Weds Mr. Edmondson At Capitol Avenue Church

A wedding centering the interest of many friends of the young couple was that of Miss Marie Greer and Guy Shelby Edmondson, solemnized Saturday evening, June 28, at Capitol Avenue Baptist church. Dr. W. H. Major officiated, using the ring ceremony.

The decorations of the church were palms, southern similar and white glad-oli. Lovely pedestal baskets of glad-oli tied with tulle were used. Cathedral candelabra burning white tapers added softness to the scene.

Preceding the ceremony Paul Crutchfield sang "O Promise Me," accompanied by Miss Helen Schade, who played Mendelssohn's chorus for the entrance of the bridal party. Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus" announced the approach of the bride. During the ceremony Schubert's "Serenade" was played softly.

First to enter were the ribbon-bearers, little Miss Margaret Cowan and Joe Lambert. Margaret Cowan was daintily dressed in shell pink Georgette trimmed with tiny ruffles. Little Joe Lambert wore a suit of white English broadcloth trimmed with pearl buttons.

Next to enter were Fred Edmondson and Hubert K. Cowan. Following came the bridesmaids, Mrs. Frank M. Joyner and Miss Mattie Edmondson, sisters of the groom, wearing Georgette dresses fashioned alike in Nile green and yellow, trimmed in hand-made flowers. They carried bouquets of pink and lavender sweet peas showered with swansons. The first groomsman, Han J. Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

The first groomsman, Han J. Greer, and the matron of honor, Mrs. Paul Tabor, E. C. Westbrook, Misses Rhea Scott, Nan Ivey, Susan Mathews and Lois Dowdle, all of Athens; Mrs. Katie Lanier Smith, of Savannah; Miss Lucille Turner, of Elberton; Miss Lorine Collins, of Newnan; Miss Mary Norman, of Covington; Miss Lula Edwards, of Augusta, and Miss Ruby Thompson, of White Plains.

Fiske-Morgan Wedding Event At Augusta

Augusta, Ga., June 28.—A marriage of social interest was that of Miss Jose Fiske and Thomas Edward Morgan, of Atlanta, which was solemnized Wednesday at 3 o'clock at the Woodlawn Methodist church, Rev. H. L. Edmundson officiating.

The altar and chancel railing were very effectively adorned with tall palms and ferns combined with masses of Shasta daisies, forming a pretty background for the bridal party.

A beautiful musical program was rendered by Mrs. James Baruch at the organ and Miss Marie Brenner, the violin.

The ushers were Pierce Merry, J. W. O'Dell, of Athens; Dr. C. P. Savage, of Rose Hill, N. C., and Dr. J. K. Wilson, of Thomson.

The groom entered with his best man, Dr. W. B. Jameson.

The bride's matron of honor, her sister, Mrs. Edward Platt, entered alone, and the bride entered with her brother, Julian S. Fiske.

The bride wore an exquisite gown of poudre blue Georgette, made with a deep flounce of silk lace, the bodice being finished with an accordion plaited cape which was caught to the front with a little tie. With this was worn a hat in rose orchid tone, with trimmings of small flowers. Her flowers were a shower of bride roses and valley lilies.

The matron of honor was very lovely in a gown of pink voile, hand made, and worn over an orchid slip. Her hat was a large lezhorn with pink orchid ostrich plumes. Her flowers were a colonial bouquet of old-fashioned roses, pink gladioli and double larkspur.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left for Atlanta, the home of the groom, and on their return they will be at the fraternity house on Fifteenth street.

The bride's going-away gown was of blue, with accessories to match.

Seiz-Shaw Bridal Party Is Honored.

Miss Mary Willie Martin entertained at a party Thursday night at her home on West Peachtree street in honor of Miss Ruth Seiz and Raymond G. Shaw, whose marriage will be an event of next week.

The decorations throughout the reception rooms were a profusion of pink and white gladioli and garden flowers.

Miss Martin was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Emil Charles Seiz, Jr.

Miss Seiz was gowned in a flesh-colored chiffon trimmed in ribbon. Completing her costume was a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Miss Martin was lovely in a gown of white silk and lace trimmed in ribbons and French flowers.

Attractive June Bride

Mrs. Philip D. Morris, lovely young bride, who was before her marriage June 21, Miss Sue Adecek.

Miss Inman, of Augusta, to Wed Bowdre Phinizy Mays

Augusta, Ga., June 28.—Prominent social interest throughout the south centers in the engagement announced today of Miss Frankie Inman and Bowdre Phinizy Mays, both of Augusta.

Miss Inman is the daughter of Mrs. L. G. Doughty and the late J. Walter Inman, of Atlanta and later of Augusta, and is an exceptionally beautiful girl of exquisite brunette type with a vivacious and fascinating manner which she inherits from her mother, who is one of Augusta's most beautiful young matrons and socially popular throughout the south.

Miss Inman graduated at Mrs. Merrill's school in Mamaroneck, N. Y., and has since her debut been a great belle and social favorite wherever she has visited. She is a niece of Mrs. James B. Gray and Mrs. Morris Brandon, of Atlanta, whom she has frequently visited.

Mr. Mays is the son of the late Sam Mays and Harriett Phinizy Mays, the grandson of Mrs. Charles H. Phinizy, whose family has been prominently identified with the social life of the south for generations, and the nephew of Bowdre Phinizy, editor of The Augusta Herald. He is a graduate of the Virginia Military institute and a popular young man in Augusta.

The wedding will be held at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. L. P. Tessier, on Hickman road, The Hill.

Miss Mae Bussey, of Greenville, S. C., played the wedding march. First to enter were Miss Elizabeth Stewart with Clyde Carter, followed by Miss Fena Flowers with Randolph Gravelly.

The maid of honor, Miss Anita Tessier, wore an orchid crepe finished in scalloped effect and trimmed in cream lace. Her flowers were Columbia roses tied with pink tulle.

The bride was radiantly beautiful in her wedding gown of white Georgette fashioned over white satin and trimmed with lace. Her long tulle veil was caught to her hair with a band of orange blossoms and fell to the full length of her train, which was carried by Arnette and Evelyn Bates, the lovely little twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bates.

Her flowers were bride's roses gracefully showered with lilies of the valley and tied with soft white tulle.

The groom entered with his best man, I. P. McWhite. The ceremony was performed by Dr. W. L. Pierce, of St. John's Methodist church.

After the wedding 100 guests were entertained informally.

Snead-Dean Wedding Is Social Event

Carrollton, Ga., June 28.—A prominent wedding event of the season and one of wide social interest was the wedding of Miss Alice Vivian Snead to Rev. John Kery Dean, which was solemnized on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the First Baptist church, Rev. Elam F. Dempsey, of Atlanta, performed the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of friends and relatives.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the altar being banked with palms and ferns. On each side were white pedestals topped with baskets of daisies.

Preceding the ceremony a musical program was rendered. Miss Sara Gray, accompanied by Miss Martha Brown at the organ, played "Sonnet" as a violin solo. Miss Nell Hale sang "Believe Me" and "Heart of Gold."

The ushers, Misses Margaret Hearn, Margaret Griffin, Charlie Holmes and Mary Tanner, carried bouquets of daisies.

The groomsmen were J. W. Bacon, of Atlanta and A. K. Snead, Jr., of Carrollton. The matron of honor, Mrs. J. W. Bacon, of Atlanta, wore a gown of blue georgette and carried a bouquet of pink roses and ragged robins.

The maid of honor, Miss Allen Mayfield, of LaGrange, wore a gown of rose georgette and carried a bouquet of pink roses and ragged robins.

The little flower girls were Miss Nevel Smith and Miss Marion Williams. They wore frocks of yellow and white and scattered daisy petals in the path of the bride.

The ring bearer, little Alice Mary New, carried the ring on a white satin rose.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Ernest Snead, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, A. E. Burns, of Waleska, Ga.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white duchess satin trimmed in point lace and made with a court train. The bridal veil was caught with a coronet of orange blossoms. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Ernest Snead, mother of the bride, wore a gown of orchid georgette trimmed with cream lace.

After the ceremony the bridal party and out-of-town guests were rendered an informal reception at the home of the bride's uncle, A. K. Snead, on Spring street.

After the reception Rev. and Mrs. Dean left for Waleska, where they will spend ten days as the guests of the bride's mother, after which they will go to West Virginia for the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. Dean is the only daughter of Mrs. Ernest Snead and is a young woman of charming personality. She is a graduate of Bessie Tift college and is a musician of unusual ability. The past year she taught piano, violin and voice at Reinhardt college, at Waleska.

Mr. Dean's home is in Wytheville, Va. He is a graduate of Emory and Henry university, and also Emory university, Atlanta. He is professor of history at Reinhardt college, Waleska, where he and his wife will make their home next year. The year following he will join the Holston Methodist conference, and they will return to his home state to live.

Miss Elizabeth Riviere Weds Lieutenant Charles Hudson

A wedding of much interest to many people throughout the state was that of Miss Elizabeth Riviere, of Columbus, to Lieutenant Charles Hudson, of Fort Benning, which took place at Trinity Church in Columbus at 7:30 o'clock, Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Alston Wragg in the presence of a large assemblage of friends and relatives.

The church was beautifully decorated in palms, foliage, and tall baskets of white gladioli. The altar was decorated with white flowers and seven-branched cathedral candelabra holding burning tapers.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Lapsley Walker, of Chattanooga, Tenn., grand-aunt of the bride, sang "O Perfect Love," by Kramer. The bridal party entered to the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin."

During the ceremony Katharine's "Ave Maria" was played by Louis Chas. organist, and Mendelssohn's wedding march was played as a recessional.

Bridal Attendants.
The groomsmen, Lieutenants George Merzins, A. V. Purdin, Jeff Fox, P. R. Dwyer, Fred Harris and Nathaniel Lancaster, in uniform, entered in twos, taking their stand on either side of the chancel rail.

Miss Louis Lynch, the first bridesmaid, entered next, wearing an orchid colored georgette and silver lace, made in old-fashioned style, with a georgette poke bonnet and silver streamers. All the bridesmaids wore dresses of the same pattern, with silver slippers. Miss Isabel Hamblur, of Columbus, and Miss Lucile Little, of Atlanta, in green satin and silver, followed together. Then came Miss Lila Dews and Miss Catherine Nash, both of Atlanta, in yellow satin and silver lace.

Miss Mary Riviere, the maid of honor, was gown in turquoise blue georgette with a deep bertha of silver lace.

The bridesmaids' costumes were made alike with tight bodices and bouffant skirts and they carried colonial bouquets of pink rosebuds, azarum and swansons. The maid of honor carried a large bouquet of pink gladioli.

oil, valley lilies and maiden-hair fern bound in lace.

Exquisite Bride.
The bride entered on the arm of her grandfather, Dr. A. I. Branham, of Atlanta, who gave her away. The bride, who is a petite blond with masses of golden brown hair, wore a fairy-like costume of silver cloth and silver lace. The bodice, fashioned of the silver cloth, with a deep collar of the silver lace, was caught at the side with a bow of silver ribbon and a jeweled pin. The bouffant skirt was of silver lace over silver cloth. The long court train was fashioned of chiffon with a wide band of silver cloth. The veil of tulle was worn with a tiny cap of venetian lace which was caught to her hair with a double wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of valley lilies and maiden-hair fern showered with sprays of the lily and fern.

At the close of the wedding ceremony the crossed swords of the groomsmen were held for the bridal party to pass under.

Special Honor at Reception.
An informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the relatives and intimate friends of the bride.

As a special honor, Colonel Kierth, of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, sent the Twenty-ninth Infantry band to play during the reception.

The members of the bridal party cut the bride's beautiful cake, which was embossed with lilies of the valley and bride's tows, with the sword of the groom.

Misses Dorothy Roberts, Estelle Jessup, Elizabeth Nuckolls and Mrs. P. A. Tatum assisted in entertaining.

Miss Johnson Weds Shelby Maples.

Huntsville, Ala., June 28.—The marriage of Miss Dollie May Johnson to Shelby Maples was solemnized June 25 in the First Baptist parsonage. Dr. W. M. Blackwelder performed the ceremony in the presence of a few close friends.

Can a silk bathrobe change its spots?

It was a new expensive bathrobe of silk—a rich brown, trimmed with silk of a sand shade. And all at once it became mottled with spots. There were spots, rings and marks all over it so that it looked almost like the writing on the walls of King Tut's tomb.

He wanted to know what had happened and whether we could "fix it." On inspection, we saw instantly that water had dissolved the sizing. We telephoned him and asked his permission to "float" the sizing. Today his bathrobe looks like new and no longer gets the "measles."

We pay return postage.

Miss Gardner Weds Mr. Moultroupe At Decatur Home on Saturday

A beautiful home wedding of Saturday, was that of Miss Elizabeth Gardner to Mr. Moultroupe, of Decatur, Ala., which took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lucile H. Gardner, on Fairview avenue, at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Dr. D. P. McGeachy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated. A graceful arrangement of sweet peas, gladioli, and southern smilax was used most effectively throughout the house.

The ceremony was performed before an improvised altar of palms and ferns, interspersed with pedestal baskets of white gladioli and cathedral candelabra, holding burning tapers.

Before the ceremony, Miss Betha Andrews sang "At Dawning" and "Because."

Mrs. R. E. Barry at the piano, and Miss Mary Leffingwell playing the violin, rendered "Souvenir" and "By the Waters of Minnetonka."

During the ceremony "To a Wild Rose" was softly played.

The first bridesmaid to enter was Miss Marian Weekes, wearing orchid chiffon and Chantilly lace, over yellow satin. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas. She wore a semi-veil of tulle, adjusted with a rhinestone bandeau, as did the other attendants of the bride.

Miss Katie Hazel Houston was the second bridesmaid to enter. She wore peach colored georgette, combined with Chantilly lace over a foundation of satin. She carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas and Columbia roses.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Lucy Moultroupe, of Montgomery, Ala., came next, wearing green georgette, combined with Chantilly lace, and made over green satin. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas.

Mrs. Sannett Gardner, matron of honor, entered next wearing green beaded georgette over satin and carrying a shower bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas.

The ceremony was performed at the First Methodist church by Rev. W. P. King in the presence of several hundred friends.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Luther Bridges gave an organ number "Celeste Aida," followed by Schubert's "Serenade" on the violin by Mrs. John Woodcock, after which Miss Linda Sytan sang "I Love Thee" and "O Promise Me" to organ accompaniment with violin obligato.

Palms, ferns and lilies formed a background at the altar and white tapers burning in cathedral candelabra added a picturesque touch.

Bridal Attendants.
The ushers were John G. Nelms, Harry Tucker, Cliff Hodgson, of Athens, and Foster Middlebrooks, of Sparta. Hawley Coleman was the bride's best man and J. B. George, brother of the bride, was the groomsmen.

Dresden shades prevailed in the costumes of the attendants and the gowns were fashioned bouffant and trimmed with many rows of narrow lace. Mrs. Joseph Baldwin, of Atlanta, was matron and wore powder blue georgette with hat of lavender and rose straw.

Miss Margaret Andoe, of Atlanta, was maid of honor and wore pale saffron georgette veiling golden tissue with hat of maize color with flowers shading into gold and tangerine. Both carried arm baskets of roses and snapdragons in pastel tints.

Georgia Rudolph was the dainty flower girl, her lovely frock being of Dresden flowered chiffon veiling palest rose, its entire surface having frills of Mechlin lace. From a French basket she scattered pink sweet peas.

Radiant Bride.
The radiant bride entered with her brother, Roy R. George, of New Orleans, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man. She was a lovely figure in her going-away gown of cocoa colored georgette, accented with pleated, edged with ecru lace. The costume was completed with bronze shoes and a smart hand-made hat in harmonizing tans and browns. Her mother, Mrs. Lucile H. Gardner, of Decatur, was of blue georgette over pink satin, and she carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas.

The bride, who is a petite blond with masses of golden brown hair, wore a fairy-like costume of silver cloth and silver lace. The bodice, fashioned of the silver cloth, with a deep collar of the silver lace, was caught at the side with a bow of silver ribbon and a jeweled pin. The bouffant skirt was of silver lace over silver cloth. The long court train was fashioned of chiffon with a wide band of silver cloth. The veil of tulle was worn with a tiny cap of venetian lace which was caught to her hair with a double wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of valley lilies and maiden-hair fern showered with sprays of the lily and fern.

At the close of the wedding ceremony the crossed swords of the groomsmen were held for the bridal party to pass under.

Special Honor at Reception.
An informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the relatives and intimate friends of the bride.

As a special honor, Colonel Kierth, of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, sent the Twenty-ninth Infantry band to play during the reception.

The members of the bridal party cut the bride's beautiful cake, which was embossed with lilies of the valley and bride's tows, with the sword of the groom.

Misses Dorothy Roberts, Estelle Jessup, Elizabeth Nuckolls and Mrs. P. A. Tatum assisted in entertaining.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lucile H. Gardner, of Decatur, and the groom is the son of Colonel and Mrs. Robert Moultroupe, of Eufaula, Ala.

An informal reception was held after the ceremony.

Mrs. Lucile H. Gardner wore blue georgette with a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Robert Moultroupe wore black georgette, with a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies.

Miss Sara Hicks and Mrs. W. E. Montgomery served punch.

A number of friends of the bride assisted in entertaining, including Misses Joyeuse Alexander, Catherine Glenn, Gene Glenn, Elsa Derik, Margaret Neal, Emily Henderson, Edna Lee Payne, Rosa Lee Robinson and Estelle Gardner.

The bride's cake rested on a plateau of pink rosebuds and valley lilies. White candles held in candlesticks, tied with white tulle, surrounded it. The mints and bon-bons were also in white.

The bride and groom left immediately after the ceremony for a wedding journey after which they will be at home with the groom's mother at the Coleman ancestral place, near Sparta.

Mrs. Coleman is the daughter of the late Dr. Joseph B. George and Mrs. Lalla Quillian George. Her father was an outstanding citizen of this state. Her mother is a member of the large Quillian family, prominent in church and state in Georgia and a descendant of the eminent Parks family and the Martins, of Virginia and South Carolina, distinguished in colonial and revolutionary history.

Mrs. Coleman was educated at Brenau college where she received several degrees, having specialized in piano and pipe organ. She is a member of the Zeta Tau sorority and Mu Phi Epsilon, the honorary musical sorority. Her beauty, culture and personality have endeared her to a large circle of friends wherever she is known.

Mr. Coleman is the son of the late W. N. Coleman and Mrs. Coleman. His father was a member of fine Virginia family and came to Hancock county in early manhood, where he soon established himself in the forefront of the progressive farming and mercantile interests of his state. His mother, through the Middlebrooks family, of Maryland and England, traces her ancestry to those who were called "their country's pride."

He received his education at Riverside Military academy and the University of Georgia, where he was a popular member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Hawley Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Baldwin, Mrs. J. B. Campbell, Miss Pauline Wood, Mrs. Robert E. Andoe and Miss Margaret Andoe, of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hodgson, of Athens; Foster Middlebrooks, of Sparta; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Quillian, Mr. and Mrs. Little and Mrs. C. W. Wood, of Commerce; Mrs. T. R. Ayer, of Fort Valley; Roy R. George, of New Orleans; Mrs. O'Shields and Miss Marguerite O'Shields, of Sylvester.

Miss Margaret Theis Weds Mr. Duncan In Tennille

Tennille, Ga., June 28.—The wedding of Miss Margaret Theis and Kaspar Green Duncan, of Lake Butler, Fla., was a beautiful event of Wednesday evening at the First Methodist church in Tennille. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. R. Thomas, of Eatonton, pastor of the Presbyterian church.

The altar was banked high in palms and ferns, while a stately white arch was entwined with graceful smilax among which gleamed the soft light of many candles. Floor vases and pedestal baskets of pink gladioli formed a semi-circle about the arch and the decorations of the altar.

Preceding the ceremony a musical program was rendered. Mrs. Roy Smith, sister of the bride, gave piano numbers. Mrs. C. R. Hutchings sang "O Promise Me" and "Beloved, It Is Morn."

The bride entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march.

The ushers were T. N. Smith, Mack Stephens, J. R. Boatright, Jr., and Will Hamilton, of Atlanta.

Miss Eula Peterson, of Vidalia, and Miss Roselle Brown were bridesmaids. Miss Peterson wore Nile green chiffon veiling flesh chiffon, while Miss Brown's gown was blue chiffon over flesh and was combined with lace.

Miss Christine Carroll, maid of honor, wore a lovely creation of orchid chiffon elaborately trimmed with cream lace. The bridesmaids and maid of honor wore coronets of pearls and carried arm bouquets of pink roses.

The groomsmen were Richard Theis, of Detroit, Mich., brother of the bride, and Edward Duncan, of Lake Butler, Fla., brother of the groom. Little Frank McDade carried the wedding ring on a white satin pillow.

The little flower girls, Martha Adams and Olga Stephens, wore dainty white dresses and carried baskets of pink roses. Garland Parnell, of Jacksonville, Fla., a brother-in-law of the groom, was best man.

The bride was beautiful in white satin combined with crepe romaine, with exquisite pearl embroidery ornamenting skirt and bodice. Fastened to her gown at the shoulders was the court train of white satin embroidered in seed pearls. A coronet of rose point lace held the long veil which fell to the length of the train, and was showered with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of bride roses showered with lilies of the valley.

A brilliant reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Theis, on South Main street. A profusion of ferns, gladioli and roses were used effectively in the house decorations.

Mrs. Theis wore a gown of black beaded Georgette with a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Roy Smith was gown in pale green chiffon.

McKinney-Etheridge Wedding A Lovely Church Ceremony

Sparks, Ga., June 28.—One of the most beautiful weddings of the summer season was that of Miss Mary McKinney and Robert J. Etheridge, of Auburn, which was solemnized Tuesday evening, June 24, at 8 o'clock, at the Methodist Episcopal church, Sparks, Ga.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The wedding music was played by Miss Mildred Rowland, accompanied by Miss Laura McCurley on the violin.

Immediately preceding the ceremony Mrs. Henry Rhodes, of Valdosta, sang "Because" and "At Dawning."

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march the bride party entered the church, the first to enter being the ushers, Gaines Simons, Lamar Burdum, Sam Lavette and Lamar Sineath. They were followed by the little ribbon bearers, Mary Katherine Sineath, Ruth Wood, Alice Hall and Florine Sinclair, dressed in dainty frocks of tulle over satin, in sunset hues.

The bridesmaids, Misses Edna Mae Goodwin, Elizabeth Williams, of Valdosta, and Marie Tarvin, of Atlanta, entered next, wearing beautiful models in sunset colors and carrying arm bouquets of shasta daisies. They were met at the altar by the groomsmen, Tom McCranie, of Tifton; Tom Pardon, of Sylvester, and Louis Sineath.

Misses Eleanor Etheridge and Alura Whitehurst, the junior bridesmaids, wore lovely frocks of georgette crepe trimmed with lace and carried arm bouquets of shasta daisies.

Mrs. S. G. Etheridge, aunt of the groom, was matron of honor and entered alone, wearing a beautiful creation of orchid georgette trimmed with crystal beads and carrying shasta daisies.

Preceding the entrance of the bride came the little flower girls, Irene Johnson and Louise Wilson, in fluffy tulle dresses, scattering rose petals.

The ring-bearer, Bobby Fain, wore a white satin suit and carried the ring in the heart of a lily.

The bride was beautiful in her wedding gown of white crepe, trimmed with bands of chantilly lace with court train and veil of real lace with coronet of seed pearls and caught with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was a bride's roses showered with valley lilies.

The little train bearers, Marie Williams and Sara Giddens, wore pretty frocks of white tulle.

The bride entered with her sister, Miss Ruby McKinney, maid of honor, who was lovely in pink georgette. She carried an arm bouquet of shasta daisies.

They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, T. G. Etheridge, of Auburn. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. P. Etheridge, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony, an informal reception was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. S. G. Etheridge. Assisting in the serving and entertaining were Misses Miriam Betts, Blanche Tarvin, Kathleen Simons, Doris Roberts, Floye Wells and Fannie Lou McCranie.

Misses Thelma Whidby and Comer Roberts presided at the bride's book.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Etheridge left for points of interest in North Carolina and Virginia and on their return will be at home to their friends at Auburn.

Mrs. Etheridge is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McKinney and by her lovely character and charming personality has endeared herself to hosts of friends.

She received her education at LaGrange and Wesleyan and since that time has been a member of the faculty of the public school in her home town.

Mr. Etheridge is a splendid young man and holds a responsible position at the University of Georgia and rendered valuable service overseas during the World War.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were Rev. R. P. Etheridge, of Clayton; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Etheridge, of Atlanta; T. S. Etheridge, of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rhodes, of Miami; Mrs. C. F. Lovette, of Leesburg, Fla.; Mrs. Fred Way and Mrs. C. F. Darby, of Valdosta; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Spurrin, of Rocky Mount, N. C.; Miss Miriam Betts, of Ocala; and Miss Laura McCurley, of Adel.

Entreen-Odom Wedding Announced.

Mrs. Margaret Emily Entreen, of Sparks, announces the marriage of her daughter, Lois Emily, to John D. Odom, of Rocky Mount, N. C., which took place at the home of Rev. Strout, of the Calvary Methodist church, on Ontario avenue, West End, on June 16.

Only immediate family and a few friends were present. Following a trip to New York and eastern points of interest, Mr. and Mrs. Odom will make their home in Rocky Mount.

Miss Minnich Weds Hugh Bodenhamer In Ohio, June 14

Miss Ashah Minnich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson P. Minnich, of Urbichville, Ohio, was married on Saturday, June 14, to Hugh B. Bodenhamer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Bodenhamer, of Decatur, Ga.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of sixty guests. Rev. Charles N. Church, of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiated. Miss Mary Beatrice Minnich, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and R. Harve Esley, of Urbichville, was best man.

The wedding march was played by the bride's cousin, Theo. Jane Clever, of Urbichville, and preceding the service Miss Florence Rolli, of Tuscarawas, Ohio, sang "Oh, Promise Me," accompanied by William Ramsour, of Urbichville.

The marriage ceremony was read and cathedral candles were placed before the altar. Pink roses and orange blossoms were used in the dining room.

The bride wore an ivory satin gown trimmed with real lace and a bridal veil of tulle held with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and sweet peas in a shower. The maid of honor was before an embankment of greenery and baskets of pink and white peonies.

After a short wedding trip east Mr. and Mrs. Bodenhamer will return to Urbichville, where Mr. Bodenhamer is associated with the Ohio Vitified Pipe company as traffic manager. The bride was graduated in 1923 from the Ohio State university. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega and Theta Sigma Phi.

Denham-Boyd Marriage Is Beautiful Home Event

Americus, Ga., June 28.—One of the most beautiful weddings of June took place Thursday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, when Miss Kathleen Denham and Frank Harold Boyd, Jr., of Allendale, S. C., were married in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Denham, on Felder street.

Handsome palms, ferns, sweet peas, roses and gladioli, in pastel shades, were used to form the decorations in the wide hall, two large drawing rooms, and in the dining room.

In the drawing room to the left of the hall was the improvised altar of palms and ferns. Two tall, thin vases were placed at each side of the altar and cathedral candelabra held white tapers whose light cast a soft glow over the bridal party.

The stairway down which the wedding party descended was decorated with baskets of beautiful white gladioli and white sweet peas.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Hamilton Holt sang "At Dawning," accompanied by Miss Lillie Carter, who played the wedding music, using Mendelssohn's wedding march for the entrance of the bridal party.

First to enter were the junior bridesmaids, Miss Flora Gatewood, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Gatewood, Jr., and Miss Kathryn Boyd, a niece of the groom.

Miss Gatewood was lovely in a frock of palest pink chiffon trimmed with frills of rich cream lace. Giving to this a French touch were the little pink and blue hand-made roses, appliqued at intervals on the skirt and shoulders. She wore a tiny hat of flesh-colored chiffon, trimmed with cream lace, and rosettes of pink and blue ribbon. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of vari-colored flowers.

Mrs. T. F. Gatewood, Jr., sister of the bride, and Mrs. Ned McSweeney, sister of the groom, were matrons of honor. They descended the stairs alone and were met at the foot by E. H. Oswald, of Allendale, S. C., and Hamilton Holt, groomsmen.

Miss Gatewood was beautiful in a model of flesh chiffon, embroidered in metal ribbon in pastel shades. Completing the lovely gown was a wide sash of French blue ribbon, sash, caught at the left side with French flowers of metal ribbon. With this she wore a large hat of French blue Neapolitan braid, whose only trimming was a single rose of the same shade. She carried an arm bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. McSweeney's lovely gown was of flesh georgette trimmed with rich cream embroidered net. The skirt was fashioned with apron effect, with inserts of embroidered net, and the bodice was made with a daintily designed yoke of cream embroidered net. A wide ribbon sash of French blue ribbon caught in front with motifs of metal ribbon in pastel shades added appropriate touches of color to the costume. She wore a picture hat of blue Neapolitan braid, trimmed with flowers in delicate shades of lavender, blue and pink. She carried an arm bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

The little flower girls were Martha Virginia Eldridge and Ruth Eldridge. Their dainty little frocks were of white chiffon veiling flesh chiffon, and edged with frills of cream lace and trimmed with dainty pink and blue French flowers. They carried old-fashioned nosegays of Dresden-colored flowers.

Miss Lillian Denham, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and was lovely in flesh chiffon trimmed with cream lace, and carrying a beautiful bouquet of white sweet peas.

The tight bodice was trimmed with narrow puffed ruffles, and shirt was full-fashioned, made bouffant and gridded with a sash of blue ribbon. She wore a very becoming small hat of blue Neapolitan braid, trimmed with narrow ribbon of the same shade and softened with touches of milking and flowers in pastel shades. Her flowers were Sweetheart roses in arm bouquet.

Perla Poole, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Poole, was ring-bearer, wearing a beautiful little frock, a ruffled creation of flesh chiffon and cream lace, with pink rosebuds on the shoulders, and carrying the ring on a pillow of shirred flesh georgette, showered with valley lilies.

Miss Stubbs Becomes Bride of Mr. Perry.

A quiet marriage characterized by simplicity and dignity was that of Miss Laura Frances Stubbs, of Andersonville, Ga., and Charles Crisp Perry, of Montezuma, Ga., the event taking place Thursday, June 26, at high noon, at the home of the bride.

The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. A. G. Brewton, the bride's pastor, in the presence of the bride and groom's immediate families.

The living room, where the ceremony was performed, was attractively decorated with summer flowers.

The bride was attired in a three-piece suit of blue and gray, with gray accessories to match. Her hat was an Andre model of black satin, simply trimmed with a peacock feather.

The wedding music was rendered by Miss Julia Mae Stubbs, a sister of the bride, using the Mendelssohn wedding march for the entrance of the bridal party, and softly playing "Moonlit Waters," by Herbert Leslie, during the ceremony. She wore a lovely model of blue taffeta, chiffon and silver lace.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Perry left in their car for Atlanta, continuing their trip to the mountains of north Georgia and Tennessee.

Mrs. Perry is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Stubbs, and is an accomplished young woman, possessing many admirable traits of character. She was a student of Meridian college and the Meridian Conservatory of Music, Meridian, Miss., having previously taken a degree at Andrew College, Cuthbert, Ga.

Mr. Perry is one of Montezuma's successful business men. He is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Perry, of Oglethorpe, Ga.

Miss Walton Weds Benjamin Varn.

Augusta, Ga., June 28.—The marriage of Benjamin L. Varn, to Miss Hollis Aurelia Walton, which occurred June 22, at 5 o'clock at the parsonage of St. Luke's Methodist church, was a very pretty and interesting event.

The beautiful ring ceremony was used and the Rev. J. J. Copeland performed the ceremony in the most impressive manner in the presence of quite a number of friends and relatives.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white tulle and crepe. Her becoming hat was also of white, and her flowers were bride's roses and fern. The only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Q. D. Sanders.

Mrs. Varn is the only daughter of Mrs. M. L. Walton, of this city, and is a native Augustan and, though very young, is noted for her womanly sweetness and gracious manner, and her friends are legion.

Mr. Varn is also well-known in Augusta where he has always resided, and has a host of friends who will unite in sincerest congratulations.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Varn and the bridal party were entertained at dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pardue. Mr. and Mrs. Varn will continue to make their home in Augusta.

Miss Bennett Weds B. E. Lumpkin.

Athens, Ga., June 28.—The wedding of Miss Ethel Cornelia Bennett and Benjamin Eugene Lumpkin was an event of interest taking place on the evening of Friday, June 20, at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bennett, on South Lumpkin. Dr. J. J. Bennett, pastor of the Prince Avenue Baptist church, performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by close relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. F. W. Bennett, as matron of honor, and by Billy Bennett, her young nephew, as ring-bearer.

The groom had as his best man Hal Lewis, of Athens.

The bride wore a lovely model of Copenhagen blue crepe de chine, trimmed with silver ribbons. Her flowers were Easter lilies, showered with white sweet peas. In her hair she wore a band of orange blossoms.

Mrs. Lumpkin is a daughter of C. L. Bennett of Jay, Florida, and the late Mrs. Eric Nix Bennett.

Mr. Lumpkin is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Alice Lumpkin, of Athens.

Mr. and Mrs. Lumpkin left immediately after the reception for a wedding trip. Mrs. Lumpkin wearing an attractive navy blue coat suit, all accessories harmonizing.

Miss Isabel Redding Weds Mr. Horne, of South America

An interesting event of last Thursday was the wedding of Miss Isabel Redding, formerly of Atlanta, to Herbert George Horne, of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Arthur Redding, granddaughter of Mrs. Robert J. Redding, of Griffin, and niece of Mrs. Seneca Sawtell, of Griffin, Gus Redding, and of Mrs. Will C. King, of this city.

The groom's family reside in Yonkers, N. Y. Mr. Horne is a prominent and popular business man who has lived in Rio Janeiro for several years.

The wedding took place in the chapel of St. Paul's Methodist church, at 11 o'clock. The chapel was decorated with plants and ferns.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom. She wore a one-piece accented-pleated canton crepe gown, the neck and sleeves trimmed with lace. Her hat was a small white model with a short veil, edged with lace extending around the brim. Her shower bouquet was of white sweetpeas, valley lilies and ferns. Her only ornament was a lavender of diamonds, pearls and some-things, the gift of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Horne left immediately after the ceremony for a short wedding trip.

They will sail the last of June from New York city for Rio Janeiro, where they will make their home in the future.

School of Health To Meet Sunday.

During the months of July and August the time of the weekly meetings for the school of health will be changed from 3:30 to 4 o'clock and will be held as usual in assembly room No. 2, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

At every session opportunity for consultation and free advice along lines of health and success can be obtained. Robert Bryan Harrison, director of the school, will preside at all sessions, which are free to the public.

Many Events To Mark National Conclave of Social Orders

The joint national conclave of the Hai Resh fraternity and the Sigma Theta Pi sorority will be held in Atlanta June 29 to July 3, the meeting to assemble a large throng of prominent visitors and out-of-town guests.

The members of the Kappa chapter of Sigma Theta Pi and the Lesh chapter of Hai Resh will act as hosts and hostesses of the occasion. The personnel of the local chapter includes a number of young men and women who are prominent in both social and civic circles in Atlanta.

The conclave will be marked by a series of brilliant social events, including dinners, dances, receptions, and banquets. Mrs. Bert Fox is chairman of the conclave committee for the sorority and Donald Oberdorfer is chairman for the fraternity.

Attending the conclave from other states will be the national officers of Sigma Theta Pi: Miss Frances Rehnitz, of Denver, president; Miss Doris Heilbron, vice president; Miss Joanna Eckstein, of Seattle, corresponding secretary; Miss Peggy Stampfer, of St. Louis, treasurer; Miss Anita Lesser, of Minneapolis, installation officer; Misses Janette Friedman, Helen Marks, Bessie Rothschild, Rosalind Julius, Maxine Guggenheimer, Anita Murr, Stella Bamberger, Carolyn Wolff, May Drinker, Ruth Freund, Rae Berger, Julia Simon, Elizabeth Rosenfeld, Peggy Stampfer, Frances Bechnitz, Janice Brown, Sophie Rothschild, Babette Eckstein, Lena Kleinberg, Henrietta Schlesinger, Mary Pearl, Esther Sherby, Sara Evelyn Strauss, Lyra Rothschild, Frances Bejack, Amy Haas, Mrs. Edgar Lieberman, Miss Rosalie Wetherham, Mrs. Lester Schwartzmann and Mrs. Milton Hoffman.

The entertainments honoring the visitors will begin Sunday afternoon on the arrival of the guests, the initial event being a reception given by the members of the sorority at the home of Mrs. Eugene Oberdorfer, Jr., on St. Charles avenue, which will be the initial social event of the conclave.

Sunday evening the Hai Resh fraternity will entertain at a large dinner-dance at the Standard club. Dinner will be served at 10:30 o'clock for 250 guests and dancing will begin at midnight.

A hay ride will be the feature of Monday evening's entertainment when the trucks will leave the Biltmore hotel at 9 o'clock. The party will go to Cascade springs, where a picnic lunch will be served, followed by dancing.

On Tuesday at noon the sorority and fraternity will entertain jointly at a barbecue at the Burns club in honor of the visitors.

Tuesday evening there will be a large and brilliant ball given at the Biltmore hotel by the girls of the sorority.

Wednesday's program will include a ten-dance at the Ingleside Country club at which the ladies of the conclave will again be hostesses. In the evening they will have an informal get-together meeting which will be in the nature of a "kid party."

At the same hour the men will have a stag party which will take the form of a banquet and smoker, to be followed by an informal dance at the Biltmore hotel.

On Thursday the members of the Hai Resh will stage an outing at Stone Mountain followed by luncheon at the Ingleside club. In the afternoon there will be tournaments conducted in mah jongg, bridge, and golf.

The final event of the conclave and also one of the most brilliant of the series of entertainments will be the dinner-dance at which the men of the conclave will be hosts at the Biltmore hotel.

The officers of the local chapter of Sigma Theta Pi include Mrs. Eugene Oberdorfer, Jr., president; Miss Mildred Levy, secretary; Miss Josephine Joel, treasurer; Mrs. Bert Fox, installation officer.

Miss Maddox Weds Mr. Davis.

Griffin, Ga., June 28.—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Maddox announce the marriage of their daughter, Pauline Esther, to Laurence Albert Davis, of Hapeville, Ga. The marriage was solemnized Thursday, June 19, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. G. K. Cull, of the Christian church, was the officiating minister.

What's What in the Shops and about town

Wedding News!
"The roads should blossom, the roads should bloom.
So fair a bride shall leave her home,
Should blossom and bloom with garlands gay,
So fair a bride shall pass today."

I suppose the recent Candler-Thompson wedding is the most talked-of of the season and of interest not only to the many friends of both Lucy and Homer, but to every woman in the south. Because, my dear, truly it was the most beautiful wedding I have ever seen and "they say" the most beautiful ever in the south. Now that means something, for the south's beautiful weddings and brides are things of tradition and to stand out above the brilliant affairs of the past season sounds almost impossible!

The ceremony was performed in the Italian garden, which was verily fairland itself! The house, the grounds of the Candler estate were bowered of fresh-cut flowers. The harmony of the color schemes, the flowers of bride and attendant were exquisite. Everybody has been wondering who did this artistic work. In fact, a friend was heard to say, "Inspiration is as unaccountable as dreams. It flares in the brain of a great man, it urges the pen of a poet and now it creeps into the heart of a modern florist!"

A modern florist is right, but not an "everyday" one, as we use the expression, for the secret is out—Mr. Fred Pearce, of the Biltmore Florist Shop, had all decorations in charge. He suggested color schemes and, in fact, did everything.

I know it will tickle the heart of every Atlanta woman to know that we have right here in our midst the florist of the Vanderbilts—the man who for many years has carried out the wishes from the simple corsage to the most brilliant social event of the season for New York's fashionable women. Among the recent wedding decorations that Mr. Pearce had charge of was that of Cornelia Vanderbilt. The Atlanta Biltmore in their sincere desire to give Atlanta women the best of everything have brought Mr. Pearce to Atlanta. He will have entire charge of their florist shop. No order will be too small to have his attention.

Another thing, practically all of the flowers are all grown in their greenhouse—right here in Atlanta—that are said to be the finest in the South! The Biltmore Florist Shop is conveniently located in the Arcade of the Biltmore Hotel at the West Peachtree entrance.

In order to achieve top form on the links the woman of chic dresses just as carefully to tee's and clubs as for clubs and teas.

At a recent showing in Paris, Lanvin showed a white organdie trimmed with black braid and topped by a black taffeta jacket with red taffeta bow.

Paris pronounces that the fabric is the thing; chiffon, organdie and lace vie with printed crepes!

Club News!

Truly this has been a busy week I know, but I hope every housekeeper found time to attend the cooking school of the Atlanta Woman's Club last week. Mrs. Miller, former instructor of cookery of the Columbia University and head of the economics department of the Chicago University, was demonstrator.

Mrs. Miller demonstrated many delicious dishes each day. Wonderful prizes were given each day, but the thing that created the most interest among the women attending was an age-old commodity, but put up in a new form—Hunt's Butter-milk—yes, canned buttermilk, and vastly superior for baking. Mrs. Miller told us that cooks who delight to make buttermilk hot breads, muffins, pancakes, waffles and biscuits, find Hunt's Concentrated Buttermilk the boon of their lives.

Think of the convenience of reaching for a can when you want buttermilk for baking. No need of souring your own milk or waiting for the milkman. And Mrs. Miller said from a standpoint of results you know exactly how sour Hunt's Concentrated Buttermilk is. It does not vary the way fluid buttermilk does. And that is extremely important in baking. In this way you know always how much soda to use. No danger of too little spoiling the leaven, or too much leaving a bitter taste in your baking. Because of this, with Hunt's Concentrated Buttermilk you get excellent results, always.

Already—thousands of Atlanta women are finding this new form of Buttermilk vastly superior for baking. It is absolutely pure. It keeps indefinitely. It is always on hand. And you will find it on sale in practically every grocery store in Atlanta and vicinity. And if your grocer hasn't it in stock now he can easily get it for you from his local broker. Are these not reasons enough why you, too, should try it? Just try it and you will be delighted!

Comfort!

I noticed a sign advertisement the other day that said "a breeze in the kitchen is worth two on the shore!" I thought I would tell the housewives of Atlanta that are vacationing "at home" about the electric fans on sale at the Georgia Railway and Power company.

There is one fan especially that I want to call to your attention. How often have you thought that though they were delightfully cool, electric fans were not attractive in looks? That might have been true, but now at the Power company's showrooms on Marietta street is a beautiful fan done in old ivory and artistic enough to satisfy any eye and harmonize with the decorative scheme of its surroundings—and to serve comfort and health.

You would not think—if I may suggest the unpleasant—of drinking stale water, and yet a great many mothers are letting the children play during these hot summer days in stale air. Good health is largely and equally dependent on correct food, pure water and fresh live air. You cannot afford not to give your family the last and easiest of these essentials. When you consider that some of their fans are low in price and that the average size fan will run all day for a trifling cost of an inexpensive cigar or a dish of ice cream! Go by and see them tomorrow and learn of their easy payment terms and you will be surprised and delighted with your purchase!

Something New! Something Old!

I know it is not good taste to caveword, but the other day while going to town on an Emory car I just couldn't help overhearing a conversation carried on by the two women on the seat in front of me.

We were sitting on the left-hand side of the car and were on Moreland when one of them said:

"I see we are to have another grocery store," and pointed out 171 North Moreland avenue.

She had hardly gotten the sentence out of her mouth when her companion spoke to her in such a manner that I am sure every one else on the car heard her too.

"Why, Mildred, how can you say such a thing; it is not fair to call any one of the Rogers stores 'another grocery store.' Of course if you want just a place to buy any kind of food you can go to 'another grocery store,' but if you want service and the best of foods you may safely go to a Rogers store."

I had not heard about the new store, but I have heard before of Rogers' customers and their appreciation of the Rogers stores' excellent service. So yesterday morning I stopped in to see the new store! My, the steady stream of people! I managed to get in and really it is such a clean, attractive store. I found the manager and clerks in charge to be old employees of the Rogers company and have made many friends and customers and they will be pleased to find them in this new position. The manager explained that many special items were being featured for the day among them—Mazola—a whole carload lot to be sold at less than cost. But this did not account for the steady stream of men and women shopping—it was simply proof of the popularity of Rogers' store and at such of their 200 stores they are giving satisfaction.

Going Fishing?

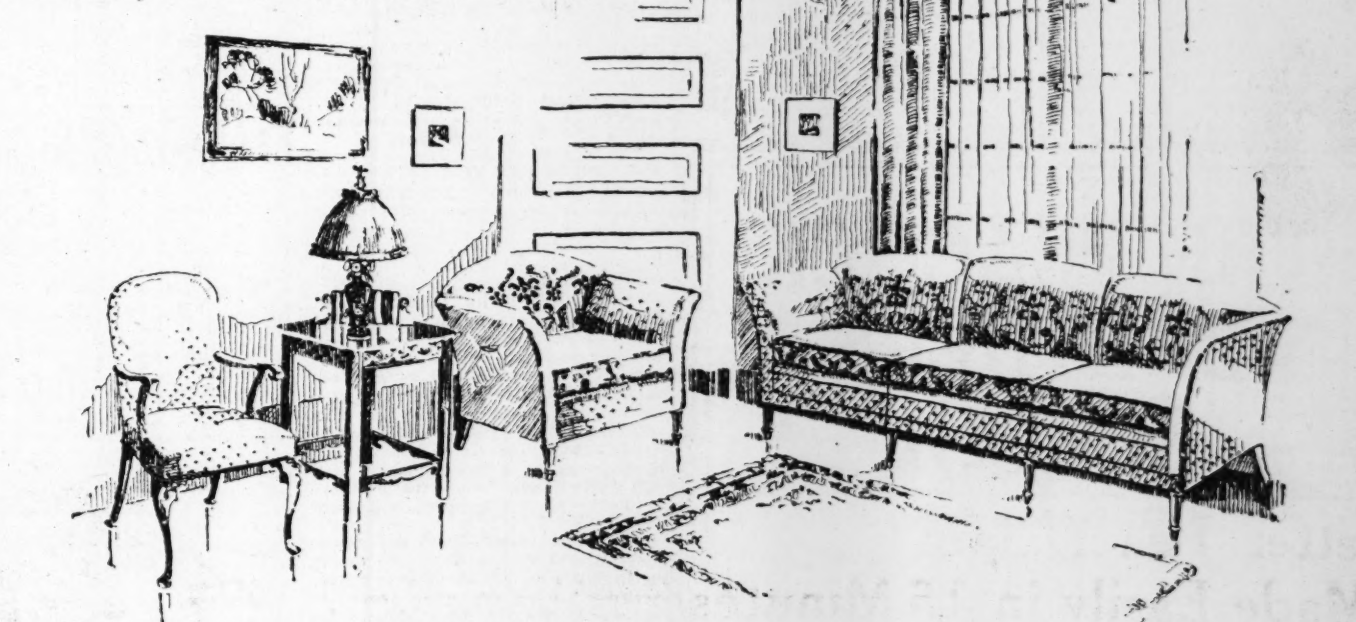

Are you planning picnics, or fishing trips for the week-ends? Then you must take along a generous supply of good sandwich bread. Uncle Sam Bread, baked here in Atlanta—fresh every day and on sale at most every store—is just the thing. Uncle Sam's Bread in its clean, sealed waxed paper, stays fresh longer than the average bakery bread and it has a most delicious taste. Uncle Sam bread is made by Schlesinger-Meyer Company in the most modern, sanitary manner and is of great nutritious value and tastes the taste of the kiddies these hot summer days.

Gowns for summer evenings are often swaying clouds of lace. Simplicity is an important note in the youthful frocks for summer.

Black lace and little shadow the summer night. Large hats appear with sunlit afternoons.

ATLANTA WOMAN'S CLUB TO CELEBRATE FOURTH OF JULY

Spectacular Celebration To Be Staged at Piedmont Park

Artistic settings and spectacular tableaux will mark the great Fourth of July celebration which will be sponsored by the Atlanta Woman's club at Piedmont park. Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, first vice president of the club, has in charge the arrangements and plans to have an outdoor demonstration of the crowning and outstanding event of the year. A great procession will be one of the interesting features of the program. Representatives from all patriotic, civic and philanthropic organizations will assist in making the celebration a great success. Especially the war veterans of the civil, Spanish-American and world war will be honored guests of the occasion.

Glady's Hanson as "Columbia."
Miss Glady's Hanson, one of the most distinguished stars of the American theater and a native of Atlanta, will take the part of "Columbia" in the beautiful pageant presented. The thirteen original states will be represented by the following young ladies, each in lovely costumes: Misses Florence O'Neil, Roberta King, Florence Smith, Gwen Barker, Florence Graham, Marion Barker, Rebecca Briggs, LeFon Dancy, Willett Carlisle, Josephine Turner, Winette Manning, Frances Jackson, Edna Mae West.

The fine old figure of "Uncle Sam" will be portrayed by George Butler, a young man of splendid physique and possessing unusual talent. Miss Jane Sharp, daughter of Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the Woman's club, will represent "Liberty." In the parade these characters will ride in a beautifully decorated car and with other characters will form a tableau for the pageant.

Major J. B. Conyers will be marshal of the day and Major Charles H. Cox, adjutant general of Georgia.

Lemons Bleach the Skin White

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared. (adv.)

Better Peach Jam Made Easily in 15 Minutes

Tastes Better—Looks Better—Costs Less and Never Fails

By ANN PROCTOR

Everyone loves peach jam. For a spread on bread or hot biscuits, nothing seems to equal it. Its wonderful flavor makes children of us all. Until now, however, an expert was required to make it, and it has been expensive. Certo, the natural "jell" making property of fruit, has solved the problem so that everyone can make and eat a lot of this delicious preserve.

To make peach jam by the quick and easy Certo method, follow this simple recipe:

Peel, remove pits and crush well about 3 lbs. peaches. Measure 4 level cups (2 lbs.) crushed fruit into large kettle. Add 7 1/2 level cups (3 3/4 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in 1 bottle (seventeen cents) Certo. Skim and pour quickly. Use same recipe for pear jam.

This Certo process banishes all the guess work or worry as perfect results are certain when a simple recipe is followed. Unlike the old method, "pound for pound" mixture boiled for thirty or more minutes, with considerable juice, color and flavor of the fruit being boiled away, the economical Certo method requires only one minute's boiling and thereby saves the juice to make one-half more jam. That's the only reason why more sugar is used with Certo.

Certo is a pure fruit product—contains no gelatin or preservative. Certo positively saves time, fruit, flavor and guess work. It makes all kinds of jams and jellies—some you have never tasted before. Certo is highly endorsed by national authorities and local cooking experts. Every woman who tries it recommends it to her friends and says she'll never be without it. Over seven million bottles were used last year.

The above recipe and nearly 100 other jams, jellies and marmalades are in the Certo Book of Recipes which is enclosed with every bottle of Certo.

Get a bottle of Certo from your grocer right away. Start the new, sure, quick, economical way of making jams and jellies that keep indefinitely. You'll never return to the old "hit or miss" method. Make plenty of peach jam this year—no home ever has too much.

Participants in July 4th Celebration

Al Fresco Party Is Given by Club

The lot at the corner of North Main street and Rugby avenue, recently purchased by the College Park Woman's club as the site for its club home which will be built in the near future, was the scene of a lawn party on the afternoon and evening of Tuesday last.

Buckeye Woman's Club Closes Year With Picnic

The Buckeye Woman's club held its final meeting of the year on Tuesday afternoon at Grant park.

Mrs. Edwin M. Helbig presided and opened the meeting by reading the club litany written by Alice Ames Winter.

Two new members joined the club on Tuesday, Mrs. George Anderson and Mrs. Lucy Cassidy, the mother of Mrs. W. E. Quillian.

Announcement was made of the citizenship pageant to be held at the afternoon of July 4 at Piedmont park. All members were urged to be present.

Before installing the new officers Mrs. Helbig gave a short talk on "Club Ethics." She stressed official responsibility and personal loyalty to the club. Among other things Mrs. Helbig said: "Study to become fit. Do not occupy—fill your office. The honor is not in holding an office but in filling it. Full duty calls for sacrifice. Keep the spirit fresh by renewed interest to duty. An officer cannot inspire unless she has inspiration to impart. Loyalty demands that you give and not simply receive. Give help and appreciation and you will get back just what you give."

Mrs. Helbig thanked all the officers and other members for their support and cooperation during the year.

On account of the fact that the club is founded on such a firm foundation of Christianity and because there is so much unity and so much harmony among its members, Mrs. Helbig predicted a year of good work, of sunshine and of smiles. "As each new officer was installed, she pledged her loyalty and support."

The officers for 1924-1925 are: President, Mrs. E. M. Helbig; first vice president, Mrs. W. E. Lotzspeich; second vice president, Mrs. W. E. Quillian; recording secretary, Mrs. F. W. Schanck; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. L. Murphy; treasurer, Mrs. E. L. Norton; director, Mrs. W. E. Floding; chairman of program, Mrs. S. G. Hunter; chairman of membership, Mrs. Fred White; chairman of entertainment, Mrs. J. Kell Martin; chairman of philanthropy, Mrs. J. E. Whiteman; chairman of press, Mrs. E. M. Helbig; club historian, Mrs. D. O. Smith; honorary president, Mrs. W. H. Preston.

At the close of the meeting on Tuesday a picnic supper was served. The husbands and children being guests. There were about one hundred present and an enjoyable time was spent.

College Park Club To Celebrate Fourth.

The College Park Woman's club will sponsor the annual Fourth of July celebration, to be held at 8 o'clock in the evening at the monument.

This new phase of club work was beginning to form last year. The inspiration came from the former president, Mrs. Dan C. Lyle, and it was through her efforts and those of Mrs. J. D. Conley, chairman of community service, that the plan was perfected. The program on this occasion includes music by "The Hapeville Orphans' Home band" and a magnificent display of fireworks, with Fred Shaefer in charge. The mayor and city council have given the club their hearty cooperation by generously financing this community project.

The celebration will be under the direction of Mrs. J. D. Conley, community service chairman, assisted by Mrs. L. O. Freeman, president of the club; Miss Annie Thornton, chairman of decoration; and Edgar Louzino, leader of community choir. Dr. L. E. Roberts will act as master of ceremonies.

Concert To Benefit Decatur Woman's Club.
As a means of recruiting funds with which to enable the Decatur Woman's club to establish itself in the near future in permanent club headquarters, Mrs. Ulrich Green will stage a concert in the Decatur high school auditorium on Tuesday evening, July 1, 8:30 o'clock. Some of the best known and most popular professional artists of the Atlanta metropolitan district have volunteered their services and talents to Mrs. Green for this occasion. The Cable Piano company, Atlanta, has offered to provide a piano for the occasion, and other firms and individual citizens have extended gratis assistance in order that the entire receipts from the concert may be applied to the purpose in view. Those taking part in the program will be Miss Louisa Wicker, Mrs. W. Paul Green, Lawrence Everhart, Mrs. Dwight Bayley, Mrs. H. Clifton Baker and Miss Helen Schmid.

Mrs. George Turner Addresses West End Woman's Civic Club

The Woman's Civic club of West End held their regular business meeting Wednesday, June 25, at their club rooms on Gordon street. Mrs. Arthur J. Merrill presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. Murray Howard.

Mrs. George Turner was the speaker of the afternoon. She gave a very interesting talk on registering and voting. Her subject, "Citizenship," was deeply interesting to the audience.

Announcement was made of a large bridge-tee to be given for the benefit of the piano committee. The chairman will make this effort of great interest to all who will come, details of this enterprise will be published later.

A delightful musical program followed. Miss Josephine Clarke gave two enjoyable numbers, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. L. L. Daniel. The program included "The Cradle Song" and the "Japanese Love Song."

Miss Mary Louise Parkham gave two beautifully rendered piano solos: (a) "Valse de Concert," by Frank la Forge; (b) "Witches Dance," by Edward MacDowell.

Scientific leadership, and urged that she accept the permanent chairmanship of the club house project. This occasion, given for the purpose of raising funds, was sponsored by Mrs. L. O. Freeman, president of the club; Mrs. Oscar Palmour, vice president; and Mrs. Dan C. Lyle, chairman of the club house project, assisted by the following members of the ways and means committee: Mrs. L. M. Love, Mrs. C. M. Mount, Mrs. C. W. Everts, Mrs. H. P. Merrifield, Mrs. J. T. Gresham, Mrs. W. E. Lotzspeich, Miss M. E. Jones, and others.

This was the first of a series of out-of-door entertainments to be given at intervals throughout the summer, and to which all friends of the club and community will receive a cordial welcome.

College Park Woman's Club Announces New Chairmen

Tuesday morning the executive board of the College Park Woman's club held its first meeting of the current year. At this time a club calendar and schedule of activities for the year was arranged. The club program of work as outlined by the newly-elected president, Mrs. L. O. Freeman, met with the hearty endorsement and promise of loyal support of all members present.

Enthusiastic interest centered about the discussion of ways and means whereby a clubhouse may be erected upon the beautiful lot on the corner of Main street and Rugby avenue recently purchased by the club. Every departmental chairman was asked to fix a financial aim in keeping with the possibilities of her department, and then, with the aid of her committee, strive to attain the designated goal, the sum thus obtained to be applied to the building fund.

The president announced the following chairmen of standing committees: Mrs. W. E. Whitehead, press; Mrs. F. C. Doss, house; Mrs. J. Wayne Moore, membership; Mrs. D. D. Moncrief, resolutions; Mrs. B. D. Gray, yearbook; Miss Annie Thornton, memorial; Mrs. S. W. Jones, social; Mrs. D. R. Nesbitt, decoration; Mrs. C. W. Everts, building-fund treasurer; Mrs. D. C. Lyle, building project. Departmental chairmen: Mrs. R. W. Fitzpatrick, public health; Mrs. A. L. Algee, legislation; Mrs. B. D. Gray, education; Mrs. Lillie Love, home economics; Mrs. P. G. Haden, floral; Mrs. R. H. Sullivan, citizenship; Mrs. E. D. Barrett, music; Mrs. Eva Thornton, federation; Mrs. R. L. Proctor, current events; Mrs. Howard Stakeley, forestry and natural resources; Mrs. Edward Richardson, child welfare; Mrs. Charles Center, junior civics; Mrs. W. E. Lotzspeich, arts and crafts; Mrs. Ira Smith, civics; Mrs. R. T. Aderhold, literature; Mrs. J. D. Conley, community service; Mrs. W. C. Mizell, good roads; Mrs. J. P. Rasdale, better homes. Officers for the club year beginning are: Mrs. L. O. Freeman,

Memory Day Committee Meeting Called Thursday

An important meeting of the "memory day" committee, having in charge the elaborate celebration on July 22 commemorating the 60th anniversary of the Battle of Atlanta, will be held Thursday morning, June 3, at 10 o'clock, at the chapter house of the Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, on Juniper street.

"Every loyal Daughter of the Confederacy residing in and around Atlanta is expected to attend this meeting and assist the committee in working out plans which will make July 22 a successful and outstanding day in southern history," declared Mrs. John A. Perdue, regent of the chapter, who has called the meeting in the absence of Mrs. E. M. Boykin, the chairman for the day. On this day a large committee composed of members of the U. D. C. and other patriotic organizations will be stationed on the streets to sell souvenirs, the proceeds from which will go toward the chapter house fund, and Mrs. Perdue urges the cooperation of every member in the undertaking, stressing the point that the day's celebration will be the crowning event of the U. D. C. program for the entire year, and that in order to receive the full measure of success every member must lend her efforts.

On the committee with Mrs. Boykin and Mrs. Perdue are Mrs. Stafford Seidell, Mrs. A. O. Woodward, Mrs. E. E. Huguley, Mrs. H. M. Nichols and Mrs. W. A. Crossland. Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith is chairman of the program, and the Cyclorama, which will be conducted for the benefit of the school students of Atlanta and nearby suburbs.

Mrs. Forrest Kibler has been appointed treasurer for the funds and will be assisted by Mrs. B. Phillips, Mrs. Arthur Hazard, Mrs. W. D. Williamson, Miss Mattie Harwell and Mrs. E. L. Corrigan.

On the honorary committee will be Mrs. Rebecca L. Felton, Mrs. Joseph Morgan, Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, Mrs. Sid Holland, Miss Sallie Eugenia Brown, Mrs. Madison Bell, Mrs. E. L. Connolly, Mrs. J. D. Stocker, Miss Annie Forsyth, Mrs. W. A. Wright, Mrs. W. B. McLaughlin, Mrs. J. M. Fusthoff, Mrs. Elder, Mrs. J. B. Johnson and Miss Sarah Huff, all prominent pioneer women of the city.

The advisory committee is composed of Captain James W. English, Dr. E. L. Connolly, Judge George Hillier, Robert A. Hemphill and Alexander C. Bruce.

Fools Crossing

By Reginald Sweetland

The Little Wraith of Black, and Mary, Interrupt the Even Tenor Of a Clientless Lawyer's Way.

LD PETE WILSON, Hemlock's habitual inebriate, had been run over by the eyeing train, the 9:17, and killed. It took the town twelve hours to circulate the news and by ten o'clock the follow-husband was dead, might be expected to see virtues surrounding his head like a saint's halo in a stained glass window.

The air of resignation with which the town accepted the inevitable, for to them it was inevitable that a man of Pete's nature should meet with a violent death and at no less a place than Fools Crossing, was typical of Hemlock through and through. It was cause and effect, and no deep penetration into the laws of man or of nature could swerve their belief that it was Pete's own fault, and that he had met his just destiny. Had there been a community consciousness, the

But, what was more to the point, Joe wasn't getting any gray hairs over his loss. Hadn't he lived in Hemlock for seven years, contentedly if not prosperously, without effort? What was to stop him from keeping up this manner of life indefinitely?

Everybody knew Joe and knew where his shingle hung out on Jefferson street just off Broadway, and though it attracted the best intentioned men in the world to the little office with its shabby, comfortable chairs, it never attracted a case. It was rumored around town that more tobacco was consumed in Joe's office than in any other place in Hemlock, that one—meaning herself—might gaze upon with awe. Joe, fond of the girl as he was, didn't altogether share her views.

It was a week after the death of Pete Wilson, and Joe, surrounded by his cronies, was spending his morning in his habitual way; feet comfortably settled on the top of his desk, long arm outstretched with pipe stem vigorously emphasizing his points as he made them, his hearers grunting approval or disapproval, according to their stubbornness.

The office door—it led directly in from the sidewalk—trembled, hesitated, opened. Joe, in the midst of ing morning it was known all over. Having discussed it with relish, visited the spot, noted all the details, there was little more to do save wait to see what the Hemlock Gazette wrote about it next Friday in its weekly issue.

"Oh, Joe, you old dear! I could kiss you."

"It's too bad," most of them had said, not without sympathy, and gravely added, "but I guess there's nothing to be done about it. It's pretty hard on his wife, but then it's probably something of a relief to her."

Any more serious consideration of the accident was left to Granny Wilson, Pete's widow, who, now that her town would have inflated its chest like a pouter pigeon at the ease with which it settled all questions of morality and responsibility with the minimum of mental exertion. It just came natural, that was all!

To know Hemlock with its few fistfuls of inhabitants was to know Joe Mansfield and to appreciate his laziness. Joe was a lawyer, a lawyer of parts—as his diploma tacked on to his office wall testified—who had not yet been tempered by the fire of battle, or, to speak more concretely, had never argued a case before Judge Golden in the town's courthouse.

lock, not even excepting the dingy prescription room back of Hopkin's Drug emporium, and more international disputes were settled there than in the British house of commons.

TO this exertionless existence of the lawyer's there was only one bane. That was Mary Temple. She had a distorted view of life, an unbalanced proportion of right and wrong entering into her philosophy. She was grossly ambitious, not for herself, but for Joe. She wanted to see him take the chisel and mallet and chip off an image of fame bearing his own ramming home his point, paused, both arms outstretched, pipe in one of his fists, mouth wide open. His feet slid off the desk and he stared into the perturbed eyes of Granny Wilson.

Herb, and the others, reluctantly rose and made as though to leave, but at a glance from Joe resettled themselves. Joe was not in the habit of having people bring their troubles to him, hence he did not think it necessary now to clear the office for the exchange of confidences. But Granny Wilson didn't mind.

She was hesitant and brief. She was sure her husband was not under the influence of liquor when he was killed. She had always heard that Fools Crossing was unprotected and dangerous at certain times of the day—the certain times being when the four daily trains passed that way, for Hemlock was on a spur line. But, she continued in an apologetic tone, she thought something could be done, that responsibility ought to be placed, for she knew if it was fixed where it belonged it wouldn't rest on her husband's shoulders. Was $10,000 too much to ask from the railroad? Her friends thought it wasn't, and besides it could be cut down if expedient and she still might have a chance to collect a little something.

Joe and the little woman talked the matter over. They reached some sort of decision, and both rose.

Joe, genially patting the old lady's shoulder (she was old enough to have wheeled him around when he was a tot), said generously, "Now cheer up, Granny. We'll do what we can for you, and everything will turn out all right."

His words cheered her, but rather scared Joe by their air of responsibility, for he had no idea just how successful he could be. Even then had he realized the exertions he was launching upon he might have hesitated before he renounced his liberty.

Mrs. Wilson thanked him and, digging into the folds of her copious skirt, discovered a purse. She opened it, and taking out a dollar bill, unfolded it, smoothed out the creases between her thin fingers, and placed it in Joe's hand.

"I think it is customary," she said. "It isn't much, but it shows that I've hired you and that you're working for me."

"Yes," replied Joe. "Thank you. Now trot along and don't do any more worrying."

Joe meditatively folded the dollar bill and slipped it into his vest pocket. Then smiled sympathetically as he turned to meet the grinning faces of the men who were irking at the delay.

"If you win, it means a good fat fee, don't it, Joe?" asked one.

"Yeah, maybe. Just as long as it gives me the price of some new fishing tackle I'm after, I won't regret the time I'm to put in on it. But what I started to say about the British labor party when she came in was that they've got a bunch of brainy men back of that gang that you ain't taking into consideration," continued Joe, lapsing into the colloquial medium of his friends.

But they hadn't progressed far before the door again opened. Mary Temple entered, and Joe sprang to greet her. The men, led by Herb, slipped their pipes into their pockets and straggled to their feet.

"Oh, Joe, you old dear! I could kiss you."

"Very well," he grinned. "I'm willing."

"It's your first case—aren't you happy?"

"I suppose I ought to be. Yes—I guess I am."

Days passed and the case was called. Hemlock as a whole took an interest in it. Though the town had small sense of humor, it was amused to think that old Pete Wilson, penniless alive, should be thought worth $10,000 dead. It wasn't his fault, this absurd valuation, but it was a bid for popular interest, and it captured it.

Another thing that interested the town was the fact that Squeed, the great Squeed, attorney for the railroad, was to be present in person to fight the claim. Now Squeed had a reputation, and Hemlock was unwilling to stamp acceptance on that reputation until it had seen him in action, had torn to pieces the laurels on his brow to see how green they were. And now in the sweltering atmosphere of Judge Golden's courtroom, second floor of the courthouse, windows flung up, not a whiff of breeze enough to shake a leaf on the poplar trees in the yard, the spectators sat taut as the strings of a violin while Squeed played upon their emotions. He produced one glorious symphony, a triumphal hymn to the tune that Squeed was a great man, a ponderously deep lawyer!

As far as Joe was concerned, that first day in court was never going to be a pleasant memory. He was sure of that. The domineering swagger of Squeed had had a psychological effect upon all present. He had effectively corralled them all. If this kept up much longer, they would all be shouting for the railroad like a college rooting section yelling for the varsity squad. That is why Squeed had come to Hemlock. He may not have been as ponderously deep as they thought, but he certainly was impressive. What right had any one to say that an old rascal like Pete Wilson was not better off in his grave? What right had his widow to shake a stick at the railroad company?

Joe had pleaded that a life was a life, of inestimable worth, impossible to evaluate in dollars and cents. He had produced witnesses who had shown that Pete was not drunk when run over by the 9:17. But he was arguing under a handicap. It was as though the grinning image of a debauched, tattered, disreputable Pete Wilson was sitting on his shoulders, giving the lie to his words, putting his thumb to his nose with a characteristic bad boy grimace, and mocking the court. What a burden to carry! And Joe, shaking his shoulders as vigorously as he could, was unable to break the invisible gnome's grip. It was an odd, one-sided fight, shot through with the elements of the grotesque.

Throughout it all, Granny Wilson, the little black wraith, had sat, huddled deep in her chair, in full view of the court, alive to it all; wearing an expression on her wrinkled face that Joe would always remember. They were throwing mud at her family life, and had brought a man from out of town to do it. The spectators in the court room, throughout it all, were nudging one another, ogling and grinning like little devils feasting on a carrion pie. All this without winning a point.

Gibbs, the engineer of the train, the man who held the throttle of the locomotive that sent Pete Wilson seeking for new taverns in an unexplored gossipless world, was on the stand. Squeed had got from him the usual story of caution, of meaningless details before and after the tragedy. Joe, as with other witnesses, didn't bother to cross-examine him. The attorney's attitude was one of apathy, and the auditors felt he had relinquished the fight as being not worthy of his attention.

Judge Golden mopped his brow and prepared for the winding up of affairs. It was then that Joe caught the expression on Granny Wilson's face. Did she actually think he was selling her soul for the creased dollar bill in his vest pocket? The thought troubled him. His eyes roved over the court room until they rested on Mary Temple. Glance caught glance, held each other, eyes fell, and Joe rose.

He had one request to make. Give him one more day. Tomorrow he would have witnesses. By the end of the day the court would find for the plaintiff. Squeed fought the delay. Counsel for the plaintiff could have no witnesses to introduce that could throw any new light upon the subject, open up any new angles. Joe, in his present mood, agreed with him, that is to say, he agreed with him mentally, but kept his lips tight, and won his point.

Hemlock jostled out of the courtroom, down the sounding wooden courthouse stairs into the blaze of the afternoon sun. Joe lost no chance in slipping away unobserved and returning to his office, picked up his favorite pipe and was lost—a lonely, bewildered man.

It must have been seven o'clock that evening when the door opened and Mary Temple stood before him. She smiled and it was evident at once that she was going to make no reference to the afternoon's farce she had witnessed. Joe's face cleared at sight of her. He rose and, knocking the ashes from his pipe, said:

"What's it to be tonight—walk or show?"

"Walk, don't you think?"

Joe nodded his willingness, picked up his hat from a corner of the room where he had flung it, and despite the fact that he had had nothing to eat since noon, fell in at the girl's side, and with a regular swing the pair were soon clear from the paved streets of Hemlock.

There was little sentiment about Joe on these walks—at times Mary wished there was—to him it was a matter of recreation, of exercise, with a good companion at his side. He had given her little cause to know how much he thought of her, and he employed none of the usual devices of the lover. When he spoke, he spoke seriously, frankly, and without equivocation. That night he made no reference to the trial, neither did she. Most of their walking was done in silence.

THEIR way led toward the foothills that encircled Hemlock, holding the town, as it were, in the center of a deep saucer. In California there is no twilight, no waning period of daylight that eases the day into night, no buffer state between the forces of light and the forces of dark, and night descended hurriedly upon the small town. The lights of Hemlock were lit as the two returned from the hills and came upon the railroad close to Gibbs' cottage at a point four or five hundred yards from the crossing so fatal to the head of the House of Wilson. On either side of the track, following the curve to the crossing and so to the depot, were shacks, a cannery, a lumber yard, and a yard where concrete irrigation pipe was molded.

They heard the train, and Joe with Mary's arm in his held her back. Behind them was Gibbs' cottage, down the track the cannery, going at full blast, for the fruit season was on in earnest. The train swiftly came down on them, was abreast of them, and with a shriek its whistle cut the darkness. Then it rattled around the curve, past Fools Crossing and—

The scream that pierced the night jerked them around. It came from Gibbs' cottage. A shrill cry of fear; an infant's primitive fright that struck terror and horror into the hearts of the two.

"What a downright shame," hissed Mary, quivering with rage. "Why can't its mother get up and stop it?"

In another moment she would have broken into the house, but Joe, hearing footsteps racing down the track, held her back.

He forced the girl into the deeper shade, and waited. They were the footsteps of a woman. They heard her sob with dismay as she reached the gate. She fumbled agonizingly in opening it, and dashed through the small yard, and into the house. Almost immediately the baby stopped crying. Mary made to move on, but she was arrested by the expression on Joe's face. She said nothing, but waited until he . . . and be ready to go.

Presently the front door of the cottage closed, and the woman came (Continued on Page 9.)

MRS. FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT

MRS. JAMES LEES LAIDLAW

The left mirror today reflects Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, (copyright, Underwood & Underwood), who added to the gaiety of nations by persuading Harriet to tell what she said to the senators. On the right is the Harriet in question, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw (copyright, Paul Thompson), president, vice president, chairman and vice chairman of no end of leagues and societies with public-minded titles.

Y, my, what a hornets' nest Charles Edward Russell did stir up among the women when he decided that woman suffrage was a failure! Yes, he decided that all by himself and wrote it all out and published every word of it. Then the fun started. Mr. Russell has been the subject of many a feminine convention since that article appeared a month or two ago. And, as some one has said, "The female of the speeches is more deadly than the male."

The first woman to take a shot at Mr. Russell's "ignorance and superficiality" was Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson. You see Corinne never minces words. At the Colony Club the other day half a dozen women agreed that Mr. Russell has little learning about American women and less about the women of England. He talked about how we haven't sent women to Congress, and referred to Mrs. Nolan, our only woman member, as having got there not on her own merits but because of the death of her husband, and he intimated that in England women are much more intelligent than we are here.

"Well," observed Corinne, in that high-spirited Rooseveltian way of hers, "he doesn't seem to know how the first women got into the British parliament. As a matter of fact, of the three husbands of the first three women in parliament, one went to heaven or somewhere, one went to the House of Lords and the other—well, he had to resign because his manager spent more than the British law allows on his campaign. So there's that." And there was a finality in her tone that seemed to settle the erudite Mr. Russell once and for all.

IN the summer time Corinne lives at a lovely home near the picturesque village of Jordansville, in Herkimer county, New York, and the women of that village look up to her quite a bit. She neighbors with them and can tell you off hand just how they feel about things.

"I have recently talked with all of my neighbors," she told me, "and I have discovered that the women of that village are profoundly interested in the ballot, and are eager to inform themselves in every practical way as to their duties and rights as citizens."

When she said that, somebody reminded her that such intelligence on the part of women was not typican't hear how the women talk about them! If they only could hear some of the speeches that are made about them and some of the remarks at luncheon tables about town it is just barely possible they might mend their ways.

For example, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw got back from Washington the other day where she had just appeared before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and she gave the most delectable account of that hearing.

HARRIET is very pretty—just as pretty and just as vivacious as she was in the old pioneer suffrage days, when James was written into history as the first "suffrage husband" to go along with friend wife to the annual suffrage conventions. James was a regular. He never missed a convention, and it was at the memorable one held in Nashville that some facetious person put a yellow "Votes for Women" label in his hat, pasted side out, so that it stuck right to his shining bald head when he took off his hat! What a sight it was to see the dignified James walk the entire length of that aisle, at the brilliant opening meeting, with "Votes for Women" inscribed on his pink and shining head!

You see Harriet invited some of us to come to the Laidlaw home in East Sixty-sixth street after she returned from that Senate hearing in Washington, to talk about how we are going to get men to do as we women want them to do. During the course of the evening Eleanor Roosevelt (Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt), persuaded Harriet to tell about what she said to the senators. Harriet really was very charming. She said it was quite evident to her, after that conference, that her cue was to give a light feminine speech as a sort of a filler between the ponderous things some of the men were prepared to say. Harriet's sarcasm is delicious and most effective.

QUITE naively she told the Senate committee how the high school children had debated and decided some of these questions long, long ago, and how it did seem that the United States Senate should at least be as intelligent on such matters as school children. Then she added, with a serious look in her merry brown eyes, "But, really, I must say that some of the senators asked questions that were quite intelligent."

The guest of honor that evening at the Laidlaw home was Lady Gladstone, daughter-in-law of England's Grand Old Man, who was very pretty in a flesh colored charmeuse gown made quite simply. She wore no

How We Struck the Spark

Inside

Borijove Jevtic, a leader in the band of Serbian plotters who brought on the world war by assassinating the Austrian Archduke Franz Ferdinand, on the tenth anniversary of the assassination, tells his story for the first time today. It is a story authenticated not only by common knowledge in Serbia of Jevtic's participation but by the statements of diplomatic officials. Jevtic was arrested immediately after the assassination on June 28, 1914, but so determined were the conspirators that no evidence was secured against him and he was released after having been held in a cell next to that occupied by Princip, the half-starved student, once a shepherd, whose vision of his motherland led him to fire the shot that killed Franz Ferdinand in Sarajevo. Jevtic, as a survivor of the terrorist society—the Narodna Odbrana—has been prominent in the preparations for the unveiling of a statue to the assassin on June 28 at the scene of the killing.

By BORIOVE JEVTIC

TINY clipping from a newspaper, mailed without comment from a secret band of terrorists in Zagreb, a capital of Croatia, to their comrades in Belgrade, was the torch which set the world afire with war in 1914. The bit of paper wrecked old, proud empires. It gave birth to new, free nations.

I was one of the members of the terrorist band in Belgrade which received it, and in those days I and my companions were regarded as desperate criminals. A price was on our heads. Today my little band is seen in a different light, as pioneer patriots. It is recognized that our secret plans, hatched in an obscure cafe in the capital of old Serbia, have led to the independence of the new Jugoslavia, the united nation set free from Austrian domination.

The little clipping was from the Srobobran, a Croatian journal of limited circulation, and consisted of a short telegram from Vienna. This telegram declared that the Austrian Archduke Franz Ferdinand would visit Sarejevo, the capital of Bosnia, on June 28, to direct army maneuvers in the neighboring mountains.

It reached our meeting place, the cafe called Zlatna Moruana, one night the latter part of April, 1914. To understand how great a sensation that little piece of paper caused among us, when it was passed from hand to hand almost in silence, and how was conquered by the Turks at the battle of Amsselfelde in 1389. It is also the day on which in the second Balkan war the Serbian arms took glorious revenge on the Turk for his old victory and for the years of enslavement.

AS we read that clipping in Belgrade we knew what we would do to Franz Ferdinand. We would kill him, to show Austria there yet lived within its borders defiance of greatly it inflamed our hearts, it is necessary to explain just why the Narodna Odbrana existed, the kind of men were in it, and the significance of that date, June 28, on which the archduke dared to enter Sarejevo.

June 28 is a date engraved deeply in the heart of every Serb, so that the day has a name of its own. It is called the vidovnan. It is the day on which the old Serbian kingdom its rule. We would kill him to bring once more to the boiling point the fighting spirit of the revolutionists and pave the way for revolt. We would kill him for his insult to our country. No Austrian could flaunt his domination over Serbians at the country's border, within the sound of the church bells ringing for a Serbian fete.

Not only was Franz Ferdinand a symbol of the Austrian oppression. He was in himself one of the greatest enemies of our country. He was leader within the old Austro-Hungarian empire of the party seeking pan-Germanic expansion. And pan-Germanic expansion meant the eternal extinction of any little nation which fell within its path. Its path was towards the east, Constantinople and Bagdad. The triumph of pan-Germanism meant the end of Serbia, even little pre-war Serbia, shorn of much of its rightful territory.

Our decision was taken almost immediately. Death to the tyrant!

Then came the matter of arranging it. To make his death certain, twenty-two members of the organization were selected to carry out the sentence. At first we thought we would choose the men by lot. But here Gavrilo Princip intervened. Princip is destined to go down in Serbian history as one of her greatest heroes. From the moment Ferdinand's death was decided upon, he took an active leadership in its planning. Upon his advice we left the deed to members of our band who were in and around Sarajevo, under his direction and that of Gabrinovic, a linotype operator on a Serbian newspaper. Both were regarded as capable of anything in the cause.

Then came the matter of getting them arms. Present at our meeting was Major Tankosic, leader of a band of Serbian comittachi, one of those bands of nationalist bandits who prey only on their country's enemies, who raid in Macedonia and other alien soil. He arranged that we should get from his band the necessary hand grenades and Browning automatic pistols.

THESE arms were sent through certain secret channels which were always kept open to us into Bosnia, and found their way to a little town on the outskirts of Sarajevo. They remained there until two days before the assassination, when they were brought into Sarajevo, one by one, by the most innocent looking carriers, to the house of the school teacher Ilic. The night before the murder he took them to a bakeshop in the center of the town, where they were distributed next morning.

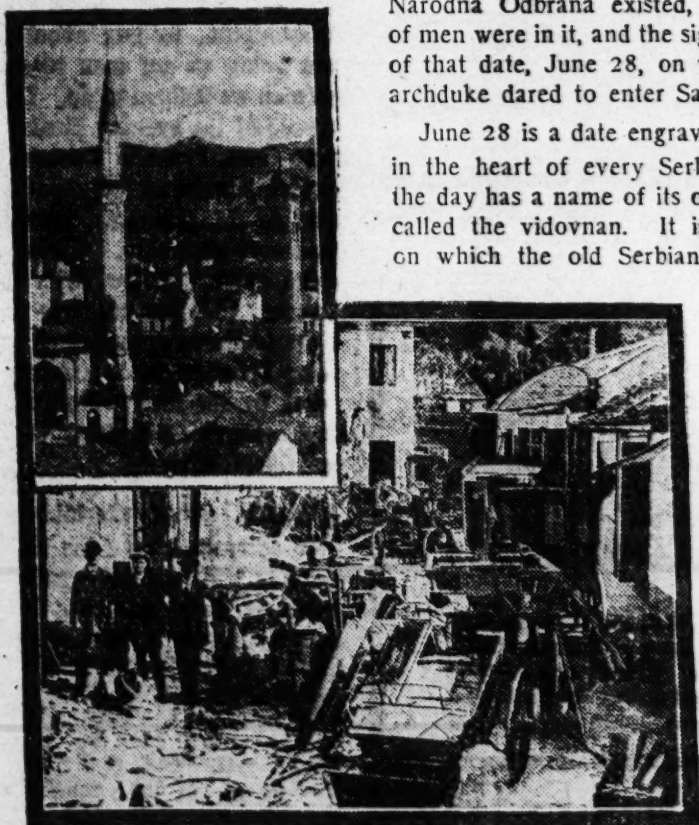

It was that evening that Gavrilo Princip, the assassin, went to the cemetery in Sarajevo and laid flowers on the grave of Zerajic, the young student whom he had seen try to kill General Varesanin in 1910 and who had committed suicide when the attempt failed. By the side of the grave he prayed for success.

Princip, besides being a leader, is the most interesting character of all the band which ambushed Franz Ferdinand. When he "committed the crime" he was nineteen years old.

When he was six years old his brothers sent him to the neighboring town of Dvar to school and there he obtained the rudiments of an education. His brothers started a wood business, but, being ignorant men, decided that Princip must be the educated member of the business and so sent him at the age of 13 to Sarajevo, to the commercial high school. He was a clever pupil and easily first in his classes.

IT was while he was in this school that he saw Zerajic make his unsuccessful attempt to shoot the Austrian general, Varesanin. Inspired by this incident he left the commercial school for the gymnasium—the classical high school—and determined to study and work for the liberties of his people. He was a zealot and dreamed in his early boyhood of sacrificing his whole life for the liberation of his country.

He began to attract the eye of the Austrian authorities and at the age of fifteen suffered his first arrest. He was taken into custody after a revolutionary demonstration of Croats which was repressed with bloodshed, but the police had no proof of his part in it and he was released. A little later when one of his friends was arrested for distributing revolutionary literature he was again seized, and again proof was lacking. But his name was on the list of suspects and he was expelled from the gymnasium.

First havoc of the war. The picture shows the wreckage made by rioters immediately after the assassination. The view is that of a livery stable belonging to a Serbian which was attacked by enraged partisans. Sarajevo, the city of tranquil towers nestling in the hills—a glimpse of it is given in the smaller picture—was turned in a few moments into a seething example of the world disorder which was to follow.

WHEN the Balkan war broke out Princip tried to enlist but was refused as too young, too small and too weak. He was refused by the very man who later furnished him with the gun with which he killed Franz Ferdinand. It was a blow but it hardened his resolution.

One more trip to Sarajevo in 1913. There he saw the Austrian military governor close all the schools to Serbian youth, calling education the breeding ground of revolt. Princip was essentially a student; with the schools closed he stayed only long enough to join a Bosnian group of terrorist revolutionaries. In this society he met several youths who were his accomplices in 1914.

The fateful morning dawned. Two hours before Franz Ferdinand arrived in Sarajevo all the twenty-two conspirators were in their allotted positions, armed and ready. They were distributed 500 yards apart over the whole route along which the archduke must travel from the railroad station to the town hall.

When Franz Ferdinand and his retinue drove from the station they were allowed to pass the first two conspirators. The motor cars were driving too fast to make an attempt feasible and in the crowd were Serbians; throwing a grenade would have killed many innocent people.

When the car passed Gabrinovic, the compositor, he threw his grenade. It hit the side of the car, but Franz Ferdinand with presence of mind threw himself back and was uninjured. Several officers riding in his attendance were injured.

The cars sped to the town hall and the rest of the conspirators did not interfere with them. After the reception in the town hall General Potiorek, the Austrian commander, pleaded with Franz Ferdinand to leave the city, as it was seething with rebellion. The archduke was persuaded to drive the shortest way out of the city and to go quickly.

THE road to the maneuvers was shaped like the letter V, making a sharp turn at the bridge over the river Miljacka. Franz Ferdinand's car could go fast enough until it reached this spot, but here it was forced to slow down for the turn. Here Princip had taken his stand.

As the car came abreast he stepped forward from the curb, drew his automatic pistol from his coat and fired two shots. The first struck the wife of the archduke, the Archduchess Sofia, in the abdomen. She was an expectant mother. She died instantly.

The second bullet struck the archduke close to the heart.

He uttered only one word, "Sofia"—a call to his stricken wife. Then his head fell back and he collapsed. He died almost instantly.

The officers seized Princip. They beat him over the head with the flat

The arrest of two members of the terrorist band immediately after the events described by Jevtic in the accompanying article. The remarkable picture at the top shows the capture of Princip, who fired the fatal shot. He is shown, hatless, in the grip of a guard and a citizen at the right of the group. Below is a picture of Gabrinovic, who made the first attempt on the life of the archduke on the fatal day. of their swords. They knocked him down, they kicked him, scraped the skin from his neck with the edges of their swords, tortured him, all but killed him.

Then he was taken to the Sarajevo jail. The next day he was transferred to the military prison and the round-up of his fellow conspirators proceeded, although he denied that he had worked with any one.

He was confronted with Gabrinovic, who had thrown the bomb. Princip denied he knew him. Others were brought in, but Princip denied the most obvious things.

The next day they put chains on Princip's feet which he wore till his death.

His only sign of regret was the statement that he was sorry he had killed the wife of the archduke. He had aimed only at her husband and would have preferred that any other bullet should have struck General Potiorek.

The Austrians arrested every known revolutionary in Sarajevo and among them, naturally I was one. But they had no proof of my connection with the crime. I was placed in the cell next to Princip's and when Princip was taken out to walk in the prison yard I was taken along as his companion.

BY October 12, the date of Princip's trial, his prison sufferings had worn him to a skeleton. Though he knew he was not long for this world he bore himself calmly and proudly. He believed in the ultimate victory of Serbia in the war which had broken out and rejoiced in his part in bringing it about. He regretted only that the people he loved so great-sentence was inapplicable because he was a minor but the sentence only meant a prolonged and tormented death.

He did not quail. He started to serve it at Sarajevo, but in the spring of 1915 a Serbian attack brought the troops of his beloved people to within 30 kilometres of Sarajevo. The Austrians decided to transfer their political prisoners to the interior of the empire.

Awakened in the middle of the night and told that he was to be carried off to another prison, Princip made an appeal to the prison governor which typifies his character and imagination.

"THERE is no need to carry me to another prison," he said. "My life is already ebbing away. I suggest that you nail me to a cross and burn me alive. My flaming body will be a torch to light my people on their path to freedom."

Princip's fellow conspirators had been sentenced by this time. Three were hanged. The rest, on account of their youth, were sentenced to life imprisonment. But so closely had they guarded the secrets of our organization that I was released for lack of evidence. I was interned for the rest of the war in Sarajevo, as an Austrian subject suspected of being a traitor.

Princip was carried to Theresienstadt in Bohemia. He was confined in a subterranean cell, low, dark and damp, in an ancient fortress. Here to increase his sufferings, the Austrians kept him informed of each advance of their troops into Serbian territory, and particularly in the catastrophe to Serbian arms in 1915 and the terrible retreat of the Serbian army through Albania to the sea.

But Princip never lost faith in the ultimate triumph of his country.

Since the war we have learned of Princip's last days in the Bohemian fortress through a Czech soldier named Lebl, who was one of his guards but who is now a citizen of the new free state of Czecho-Slovakia,

"Dream Baby's" Fight

WHEN the Hon. John Hugo Russell won the divorce suit that branded his wife a very gay and indiscreet woman and left her little son with no name he could legally call his own, Mrs. Christabel Russell vowed she would never rest until part of what she thought the cruel wrong done by the jury's verdict was righted.

As far as she herself was concerned she was quite willing to accept the law's judgment with a smiling shrug of indifference and go her way in peace, but she could not endure the thought of her baby's being disgraced for life and robbed of the brilliant future which she thought should be his by every right.

If the jury's verdict was allowed to stand without any further opposition on the wife's part the baby would not only remain a nameless child, but would have no claim to the peerage which the Hon. John Russell will inherit when his father, Lord Amphil, dies, and which would later pass on to Russell's son.

The first jury that heard the Russell divorce suit was unable to agree. The second one brought in a verdict for the husband and declared that he was not the father of Mrs. Russell's little son. It had been unable to accept the allegations of her husband's propensities for sleep walking which the wife advanced to prove him the father of the child he denied.

Mrs. Russell walked out of the courtroom vowing that she would fight if need be to her dying day to have her son recognized as the legitimate child of the Hon. John Hugo Russell and the rightful heir to the Amphil barony and the seat in the house of lords which this carries with it.

It was a prodigiously difficult task which Mrs. Russell's mother love set for her. Many of her rich and fashionable friends had been alienated from her by her husband's charges. Her personal fortune had been swept away in fighting the two divorce suits. In order to support herself and her baby and wage the fight she was determined to make for him, the young beauty, who had once been a prominent figure in some of England's most fashionable drawing rooms, was forced to go to work—to take a position in a London dressmaking establishment.

She carried her case to the court of appeals and this upheld the verdict of the lower court. Then she took it to the house of lords.

And now Mrs. Russell has received her reward for all the painful sacrifices she has made during the last few years.

In the house of lords the other day she heard the verdict granting a divorce to her husband on the ground of misconduct with an unknown correspondent set aside. Lord Birkenhead, reading the decision of a majority of the court that had considered the case, said that the husband's testimony denying that he was the father of his wife's child should not be admitted.

THIS decision gives Mrs. Russell the victory she has been striving for. It establishes the legitimacy of the "dream baby" and recognizes the boy's right to inherit the Amphil barony and take his seat in the house of lords.

The Hon. John Hugo Russell may sue his wife again for divorce, but

The young Englishman who the House of Lords says has a perfect right to call the Hon. Mr. Russell papa and some day to inherit Lord Amphil's title

How Beautiful Mrs. Russell Kept Her Vow to Obtain Justice for the Son Whom a Jury's Verdict Left With No Father He Could Legally Call His Own

Devoted Mrs. Russell with the "Dream Baby" and one of his favorite pets there never again can be any question of the legitimacy of the Russell baby on the grounds given in the divorce case. With the full force of the English law the "dream baby" is declared entitled to succeed in due time to the peerage Lord Amphil now holds.

The inquiry of the house of lords centered on the Hon. Mr. Russell's testimony in the divorce suit as to the impossibility of his being the father of the "dream baby."

Did the plaintiff in a divorce case have the legal right to give testimony of this kind? This was the question on which the decision of the house of lords hinged.

Lord Birkenhead was quite clear that evidence of this kind was not admissible from such a source. It would not be permitted in a legitimacy suit brought by the child himself, and the house of lords, if it sanctioned its use in divorce proceedings, might find itself pronouncing the same individual illegitimate in 1924 and legitimate in 1925.

Lord Filmer agreed with Lord Birkenhead, pointing out that neither husband nor wife could be permitted to testify as to the possibility of their being parents of a child. Such evidence was not accepted in peerage legitimacy cases and in actions for ejectment from lands. It would reduce the law to an extraordinary state if it were allowed in divorce suits, he said.

Lord Dunedin also concurred, thus giving Mrs. Russell a majority of the court, but Lord Sumner disagreed. Lord Carson also dissented from the majority opinion, saying he could find no rule of law which made a husband's evidence inadmissible.

Every reader of the Old Testament recalls how wise King Solomon settled the parentage of the baby that was claimed by two mothers by ordering the child cut in two and divided between the two claimants. This solution of the problem was more than the real mother could endure and she promptly revealed herself by offering to give up the child to the other woman rather than see it killed.

But the wisdom of the English court where the Russell divorce suit was tried was unable to suggest any such effective method of deciding the fatherhood of the "dream baby." The matter was

Mrs. Christabel Russell, who went to work in a dressmaking shop to earn money to carry on her battle for her son's rights and who now has succeeded in having her husband's divorce set aside complicated by the fact that both the Hon. Mr. Russell and his wife denied all knowledge of the child's origin.

At the time of their marriage they had entered into an agreement that their companionship was to be entirely platonic and neither of them was able to recall ever having broken that agreement.

The only theory Mrs. Russell was able to offer in support of her claim that her child was the legal son and heir of the Hon. John Hugo Russell was based on her testimony concerning her husband's propensity for sleep walking.

"It seems to have been a dream baby—not a child of man," said one of the women witnesses at the trial.

ASIDE from the amazing legal and medical problems which the divorce suit involved, it was remarkable for the light it threw on the unconventional habits of life which had come into vogue in England's smart set immediately after the war.

Witnesses testified under oath to young men and women going to Paris and staying at hotels unchaperoned, men and women dressing up in one another's clothes, and many other unconventionalities which scandalized the more conservative elements of English society.

Queen Mary is said to have been particularly shocked by the revelations brought out by the Russell divorce case, for they came very near to the royal household itself. The mother of the plaintiff, Lady Amptill, is a "lady of the bedchamber" to the queen, a post of great honor at court. Lord Amptill was recently Viceroy of India, and belonging to a branch of the Duke of Bedford's family, holds one of the highest positions in the titled aristocracy.

Some extraordinary facts concerning the sort of life Mrs. Russell led after her marriage were revealed in letters written by her and introduced as evidence. One of them, written after the birth of the "dream baby," read as follows:

"I am having a priceless time. John (her husband), after evincing the greatest delight over the child writing pages of joy and deciding even that the Duke of Bedford should be its godfather, is now trying to divorce me!

"As I have never done anything he was not aware of, and since I have always told him of all my flirtations and frivolities—he knows of all my week ends—I don't see that he has a leg to stand on.

"I would rather old Satan himself were the father. But it can't be helped, and if I am mother of a horror with sticking-out teeth and adenoids we would all feel pretty sure about its parentage.

"I long for the fray. Come, darling, won't you, and take a box or whatever it is, at the Russell vs. Russell case. If only I could take it seriously it would be more seemly, but the last few days I have been wildly hysterical over it. Every one knows of it now. Do think of the rows of correspondents lined up for the trial."

IN another letter read on the witness stand Mrs. Russell wrote:

"Of course, my husband can make up a thousand things against me without going an inch out of his way. Every week end I have been with George Cross and Gilbert Bradley (the two correspondents).

"I stayed at Bradley's flat one night because I had lost my key. G. had to go out and phone for 'Stilts' (her husband) to bring me some clothes in the morning so that I could get home again.

"I have the evidence of Johnson, my maid at Curzon street, that he used to burst into my room at all hours of the night. He has been found out already in two flagrant lies to my solicitors, so I see my case is frightfully strong. I have been so indiscreet that he has enough evidence to divorce me twice a week."

One of the correspondents, Lieutenant Bradley, told the court that before Mrs. Russell was married he was in love with her and they traveled by night train to Edinburgh, with the object of becoming man and wife, but on arrival they found they could not be married.

Their engagement was broken off about a fortnight later. When he knew the lady was married to a brother officer he put all thoughts of love for her out of his mind. He had never kissed her since her marriage.

He testified concerning the occasion when Mrs. Russell, out late one night, lost the latchkey of the flat where she and her husband lived.

When she arrived at Lieutenant Bradley's flat in the middle of the night he gave her his bed and made up one for himself on two chairs. Next morning they explained the situation quite frankly to the lady's husband.

The other correspondent, Lieutenant Cross, told of a trip to Paris he once made with Mrs. Russell, a trip that was later discussed quite fully and good-naturedly with her husband.

Owing to an unfortunate mistake on the part of a London hotel porter, they found when they boarded the train for Calais that they had been assigned to the same sleeping compartment.

It was too late to remedy the mistake, and so they did not have the berths made up, but lay down, fully clothed, on the seats. This was one of the two trips which the lieutenant and the defendant had made to Paris together.

While the plaintiff's attorneys laid stress on these unconventionalities of the wife, hers emphasized her husband's surprising fondness for masquerading in women's clothing.

On the witness stand the Hon. Mr. Russell admitted that he often dressed up like this, and that sometimes he had gone to the flat of a woman friend to have her help him get into his disguise.

In spite of all Mrs. Russell's admissions concerning her companionship with the correspondents, Lieutenants Cross and Bradley, and what they themselves had to say about it, the

Scotch-Irish

By Mary Morrison

ECTOR MCKENZIE had what any psychoanalyst would call a Scotch-Irish complex. When he was Scotch, he was very, very Scotch, with all the canny caution the word implies; but when his North of Ireland grandmother was in the ascendant, he was impulsive, reckless, romantic to the tips of his long, nervous fingers.

Today as he stood, watch in hand, gazing out of the hotel window onto North Salina street, he was all Scot. His grandmother would have turned her back on him in disgust, had she been alive. His Glasgow grandfather would have smiled with a dour twist of his thin, tightly compressed lips.

To have been the victim of a taxi smashup two minutes after he had stepped off the train was bad enough; he should have taken that as an evil omen and caught the one-forty back to New York.

But then, on top of that, to be convinced in his heart that he was making a fool of himself was too much. He'd been a sentimental, romantic moron; he used the phrase with satisfaction.

Well, anyway, he'd see that the law-breaking youth who had run into him, and been the practically direct cause of a nasty cut on the forehead, received what was coming to him. A good heavy fine, or perhaps a day or so in jail, might teach him not to run pell-mell into stray taxis and innocent people.

And then he'd get out of the rest of the mess as well as he could.

McKenzie frowned as he gazed down on the hurrying throngs in North Salina street. Just across the street glared the scarlet facade of the inimitable five-and-ten, while a little farther along the grim, gray stone of the city hall—topped by its hospitable "Syracuse Bids You Welcome"—held out a metaphorical hand to the stranger within its gates.

Of course, she'd be provincial, frightfully so. She'd probably roll her r's and pronounce her vowels with the back part of her throat.

And she'd be homely, too. No girl who was really pretty would have insisted on coming down to the hotel to see him instead of waiting for him to go up to see her. It was too blatant, too forward. A pretty girl would have known better; only the ugly ones went at things that way.

HER letters had been wonderful, Hector had to admit. And the way in which the correspondence had started had been nice, too—his finding her bag (a handsome beaded affair) in the Fifth avenue bus with her card and Syracuse address on it; his sending it to her with a few words of explanation; and then her reply, written in that black, vertical penmanship that girls used nowadays.

It had set the romantic, Irish part of him aquiver. He had, unnecessarily, answered.

In the two months between that time and this, he had received from her fifteen letters, all in response to long, enthusiastic epistles from him.

And—he turned white as he thought of it—in his last one, written only two days ago, he had almost declared himself in black and white; almost proposed—to a girl he had never seen and about whom he knew nothing except that she owned an expensive bead bag, lived in Syracuse, and wrote elusive, bewildering letters.

Which Race Predominated in Hector McKenzie When It Came to a Conflict Between His Cautious Father and His Impulsive, Romantic Mother?

Hector wiped his brow to relieve it of the beads of perspiration that gathered as he thought of his narrow escape. Thank heaven, his grandmother had married a Scotchman instead of one of her own countrymen, and that something had warned him to come and ask the lady in person.

Propose! A lot of proposing he'd do, now that he was here in the sane disillusionment of North Salina street!

If only he had not let her know he was coming, instead of informing her, like a sentimental schoolboy, of the day and hour. Then he could have slipped away, safe and cured, nobody the wiser.

A staccato ring from the telephone made him jump guiltily. He glanced hurriedly at his watch, saw it was two o'clock, jammed the watch into his pocket, grabbed the receiver from its hook, and heard the operator downstairs say:

"I Love you—love you! Do you hear?"

"Miss Stuart here to see you."

"All right. I'll be down."

He knew he was in for it, and all he hoped for was that he could squirm out with a few gentlemanly rags with which to clothe his conscience.

"Anyway, I've a bona-fide engagement at three o'clock," he told himself, as he rang for the elevator. "It's an ill wind that blows nobody some good."

He touched with his handkerchief the cut on his forehead. He'd tell the judge exactly what he thought of allowing juveniles to have licenses so that they might run innocent people down. Why, he might easily have been killed, instead of merely scratched!

HE entered the little reception room of the hotel resolved to be dignified, reserved, friendly.

Friendly—that was the word! The sort of man who has put sentiment out of his life and looks upon the opposite sex with the pure, clear affection of a brother, or cousin—first cousin—fond, but not marriageable.

The girl was standing—not seated, waiting in maidenly unconcern, as a girl should be—with her back to the light. As Hector entered he could see only a slender, medium tall figure, topped by a smartly angled little hat. He approached, his hand extended, his lips smiling kindly but impersonally.

"How do you do, Miss Stuart—Carolyn. This is most awfully good of you."

"Thanks. I was naturally—curious, you know."

To his surprise he noticed that, sloppy." She smiled at him enchantingly, showing a row of perfect, dentally and artistically perfect, teeth. "I'm glad you're just medium—clean collar and a good crease in your trousers, but a cut on the forehead from shaving."

"One doesn't get a cut on the forehead from shaving," answered Hector. He tried to speak as lightly as she, in spite of the chaotic reconstruction of his thoughts.

He pushed forward a yellow-brocaded chair and watched her sink into it.

"Syracuse bade me welcome so heartily that it sent out a flivver to—embrace me," he went on. "Quite a chaste salute for a flivver, wasn't it? I was just putting my bag into a taxi when—biff, bang!—Hector, greetings from Henry!"

Jokes about flivvers were not up to the usual level of McKenzie's conversation, but he was simply overcome. Even in his most romantic moments he hadn't dreamed she could be as lovely as this. Undeniably, he'd been right.

The girl's soft, crystalline tones broke in on his bewilderment.

"I hope it's not—very painful." There was real concern in her words and in the expression of her blue eyes, and for some inexplicable reason his heart began to beat an Irish tattoo.

"The only painful part of it is that I have to appear against Henry's driver in one half hour; that I can't stay here with you indefinitely."

"Oh," said the girl, biting her red under lip. "In half an hour. Oh!"

THERE was a notable lack of brotherliness, or cousinliness, in Hector's manner that as yet he was too bowled over to realize. He rushed on from indiscretion to indiscretion.

"But you will have dinner with me, won't you? I just can't tell you how—how perfectly ripping it is to meet you." He leaned forward, looking from a closer perspective into her face. "Your letters meant a lot to me, you know. They were wonderful."

"Yours were wonderful, too. Men have so much more to say than women."

Her eyes, clear and expressive, gazed straight into his. "I'm not at all sure about dinner, though. I'd love to have it with you, but—but I'm afraid I can't. I—I wish you had asked me to tea, instead."

"That confounded boy!" he exclaimed with obvious sincerity. "I have to show up against him at three. I don't know how long things like that take, but I suppose it will pretty well mess up the entire afternoon. It's all wrong," he added vehemently, his disappointment adding fuel to the fires of his indignation, "letting youngsters run cars. He couldn't have been more than sixteen or seventeen. All they want to do at that age is joyride."

The girl's eyes left his for a moment to steal a glance at the little rococo gilt clock ticking merrily away on the mantelpiece.

Its hour hand stood very near a gayly painted three; it's minute hand prophesied that in fifteen minutes it would be three o'clock.

out. Joe, with Mary at his side, stepped forward out of the darkness.

"Good evening, Mrs. Gibbs!" said Joe, appearing beside her.

Mrs. Gibbs started at the proximity of the voice, but when she made out who it was and had also identified the girl, she felt reassured.

"You keep rather late hours, don't you?" asked Joe good naturedly.

"Yes, sir, I have to hurry back to the cannery again. Can't stay away too long."

"We're walking in your direction, too. How's the baby?"

"Getting along better now, thank you, sir."

This was news to Joe, for he had no idea that the baby had ever been ill.

"That's good. Doctor Matthews?"

"No, sir, Doctor Sandoe."

"Well, he's a good man to have. Tell me, Mrs. Gibbs, will it be inconvenient for you to have me drop around to my office about ten o'clock tomorrow morning? I'd like to have a chat with you."

"It won't inconvenience me none."

"Fine. I can count on you, then?"

"Yes, sir. I guess so."

They came to the cannery, and the woman ran up the wooden steps on to the unloading platform, and disappeared into the work room.

Mary looked at her companion with an air of mystery, and knitted her brows.

"Tell me, Joe, what do you want to see her in your office for?"

"O, just a little hunch I have, that's all. It may not amount to much."

THEY walked on in silence. Presently Joe—

"I'm going to take you home, now. It's not very late, I'll admit, but I want to go back to the office and smoke a pipe or two alone. Don't mind, do you?"

Not permitted to share his thoughts, the girl pouted prettily, but Joe paid no attention and escorted her home. Leaving her at her front door, Joe remarked casually, "Mary, I have a strong feeling that old Judge Gordon is going to find for the plaintiff after all. Thanks for the evening. It has been a very profitable one."

"Glad you found it so," replied the girl.

But Joe swung on his heel and grinning to himself made no reply. He stopped on his way uptown at Ben's lunch counter, then went directly to his office. He rammed a fistful of tobacco into his calabash, settled himself in his deep upholstered chair, and prepared to smoke his way through the night if necessary.

He vaguely heard the town clock boom out the hours, as with half closed eyes he constructed theory after theory, tore them to bits, built up others, and filled the office with an impenetrable haze of smoke. Occasionally a point pleased him, for he smiled, and once chuckled outright.

The lumber mill whistle screeched at 8 o'clock and with a start he opened his eyes and found it was morning. He got up, stretched, opened the door to let in the fresh air, turned out the light and went over to his telephone.

"Hello—central. Fine—you bet. And you? . . . That's good. Say, Grace, I've misplaced my telephone book. Will you get me Jansen on the phone? That's a good girl."

A pause while the telephone bell was calling Jansen in from sweeping off the sidewalk in front of his real estate office.

"O, hello—that you Jansen? This is Joe—Joe Mansfield talking. Say, Jansen, you got any three or four-room houses to rent? Unfurnished. Moderate price."

A pause while Joe listened intently.

"No, old man. I don't need it for myself—one of my clients, that's all," gently.

"That you, Grace? Get me, Doctor Sandoe, will you? Thanks."

A pause while Joe waited results from the other end.

"Lo—that you, Mrs. Sandoe? Is Doc there? Thanks, if you will."

Another pause while Mrs. Sandoe was telling her husband to drink his coffee while it was still hot, which he refused to do.

"Hello! Doc? Joe speaking. Think you can manage to get away for a couple of days? Herb wants us to go on up to his ranch. Fine—that's something like it. Say, Doc, this is confidential. I don't know a darned thing about medicine, and I'm going jewels, and though she said she was not a public speaker she did talk quite naturally and, as Harriet said of the senators, "quite intelligently." At the close of her talk a number of questions were asked her and it was quite evident that she is well versed in political affairs in her own country. Though she is a Liberal in politics, and Balfour a Conservative, she defended him when some one intimated that he had not done all he might have done in the interest of the League of Nations matter. She was not so complimentary of Lloyd George's attitude but paid a fine tribute to Ramsay MacDonald.

Being slight and dark Lady Gladstone appeared in interesting contrast with Eleanor Roosevelt, who is tall and blonde and who was wearing that night a narrow gown of black satin, shot with gold. The style served to accentuate her height and her blondness. The long train was forever getting in the way and seemed a bit out of place in an informal meeting for the discussion of purely practical and political matters. Finally Eleanor solved the difficulty by throwing the train over her arm and there she kept it, much to the satisfaction of many who wanted to shake hands with Lady Gladstone and who were constantly stepping on it. Eleanor is not beautiful, but "Isn't Eleanor sweet 70 is what one hears often whenever she appears."

to spill some of it in court this morning. Tell me, is it possible for a baby to cry too much? Aint, huh? I thought maybe it ruined its lungs. My mistake. . . . Rupture? I see. . . . You don't say! Think it will die? . . . I'll be darned. Say, Doc, put you out any to come around to the courthouse this morning? Ten thirty. Thanks. See you there later. Goodby."

TWO hours later he was in court. Doctor Sandoe was on the stand. "Doctor," asked Joe, "is it possible for a baby to cry too much?"

A grin spread on the faces around the courtroom.

"Why—yes. I suppose it is possible," answered the doctor with a twinkle in his eye.

"And what happens? What physical effect does it have on the tot?"

"It is possible that the baby may rupture itself if it yells too lustily."

"A common enough case, is it?"

"Not very common. No."

"Ever have any cases like that come to your knowledge?"

"Yes. One."

"Recently?"

"Three weeks ago."

"Will you give the specific date?"

"June 19th."

"And the name of the baby?"

The doctor hesitated. Then answered:

"Eugene Paul Gibbs."

"The obvious thing to do in a case like that would be to—"

"To keep the baby from crying," answered the doctor before the court was aware of the nature of the question.

"Thank you, doctor. That is all."

"Counsel for the defense—" said the judge, implying the question with raised eyebrows that he was too lazy to show by an inflection of voice.

Squeed shook his head, and Doctor Sandoe took his seat.

"I would like the court to notice," said Joe when the doctor was reseated, "that Eugene Paul Gibbs, son of Paul Gibbs, the engineer of the 9:17, was treated for rupture from having cried too much—too lustily—on June 19, the day before Pete Wilson met his death on the crossing five hundred yards or so away from Eugene's cradle."

An unrestrained giggle went up from a group of girls in one corner of the room, and even Mary Temple smiled at the incongruity of the coincidence. Judge Golden rapped on the desk. There was silence; silence save for the drowsy hum of insects on guard just outside the open window.

"Mr. Jansen, will you please take the stand."

The real estate man, taken unawares, sat bolt upright in his chair.

"Mr. Jansen," called Joe. And the short little man, about the only organized booster Hemlock possessed, jolted forward with his short jerky steps, and took his seat beside Judge Golden.

Usual formalities.

"Mr. Jansen, have you had any requests for rentals in the last few weeks?"

"Yes, sir."

Squeed, who until now had been sitting with puzzled brow, sprang to his feet, and ponderously called.

"Your honor, I object to that question. It is entirely irrelevant, and counsel for the plaintiff can have no object in offering it save as a means of wasting valuable time, which tactics he has employed since court convened this morning."

"Your honor," replied Joe, "I shall prove that the information that I have adduced from the witnesses this morning, and the answer to the question I have just asked, have a most decided bearing on the case. If justice is to be done the plaintiff, it is necessary that these questions, trivial as they may seem to some, be answered."

"Objection overruled," called Judge Golden, glaring at the mottled countenance of Squeed. "Proceed."

"Mr. Jansen, you say you have had requests for rentals within the last few weeks. Did you have a request from Mrs. Gibbs?"

"Yes, sir, I did."

"What were the qualifications of the place she requested?"

A three or four room house, unfurnished, with moderate rent."

"Any preference as to location?"

"No, sir. Except—"

"Except what?"

"Except that it must be in a quiet neighborhood."

"And what date was this?"

"June 21st."

"June 21st. Sure of that, are you?"

"Yes, sir."

"That's all."

Squeed was on his feet, and advanced, head lowered, as though about to ram the little man in the full front.

"What makes you so sure it was on June 21st, and not June 17th, or even June 25th that Mrs. Gibbs tried to rent this house? What makes you so sure of the date on the spur of the moment? Do you carry all these transactions in your head, Mr. Jansen?"

Jansen winced visibly under the bullying tone of the question.

"I know it was on the 21st, because I entered it on my books, and today I heard of a likely place and looked on the records to see if it fitted the requirements of my client," answered Jansen credibly enough for the fright he was in.

Squeed jerked his head, and Jansen with a relieved sigh walked back to his chair among the auditors again.

"Mrs. Johnson," called Joe, and smiled into the face of the huge cannery forewoman as she passed him to take her place in the witness chair.

Usual formalities.

Mrs. Johnson was stanch. Used to ordering people about, she was determined that no man of Mr. Squeed's nature was to get the better of her. She was steeled for him when she saw Jansen prepared to go under. As for her attitude toward Joe, she was inclined to like him by contrast. He had placed himself in her hands by telling her over the telephone that she held information nobody else in the world had access to. She was there to triumph, and triumph she would, however damning her evidence might be to the souls of others.

"Mrs. Johnson," Joe was asking, "you have charge of the early night shift at the cannery, haven't you?"

"Yes, sir, fifty-five women all told, some of them good, some of them lazy—"

Joe held up his hand to stop the volume of words that threatened to flood the court room.

"Just confine yourself to a direct answer to my questions as I ask them, please, Mrs. Johnson."

The woman showed her disappointment, but submitted to the sacrifice.

"You have a Mrs. Gibbs working for you, have you?"

Squeed rose, but she got the answer out before he had a chance to open his mouth.

"Yes, sir, Mrs. Gibbs does work for me."

"What time does she come to work?"

"Seven o'clock—p. m."

"And she works straight through until—when?"

"No, sir, she don't. She don't work straight through, and don't you believe it!"

"What do you mean?"

THE last signs of laziness in the court room disappeared.

"I mean that she comes on at seven o'clock, and runs home again along about train time for fifteen or twenty minutes space to tend to her baby. Then comes back and quits about twelve midnight."

"I see. Is this her usual habit?"

"Has been for the last few weeks."

"How many weeks?"

"About three to my way of reckoning."

"You could swear to the accuracy of this, of course?"

"Well, I have me records. They don't lie, do they?"

"You have them with you now?"

"Yes—here in my hand."

She held up her time book.

"Will you open it, and show the judge the day when Mrs. Gibbs first began taking fifteen or twenty minutes off to return home 'along about train time' to tend the baby."

Mrs. Johnson licked her fat finger and plowed through the pages until she came to the notations she sought. Then thrusting the book under Judge Golden's nose. The judge looked at it closely, readjusted his glasses, and turned the book to catch the proper angle of light. He grunted at the information he saw there.

"Your honor, will you please read the date of that notation?"

His honor cleared his throat.

"June 21st," he read.

"That was the day following the death of Pete Wilson," announced Joe, and the whole court sat up.

Squeed had been taken off his guard by this unexpected attack launched by Joe. Yesterday he had thought he had the case on ice, won on the usual technical grounds, and today he had expected his verdict. He was still at a loss to understand what direction Joe was aiming at. He made a pretense of scorn, and was ready to bluff his way through the barrier, cow Mrs. Johnson and all these small town yokels into complete submission. But he had not figured on his opponent.

"That's all, Mrs. Johnson, thank you," Joe was saying.

Mrs. Johnson was disappointed. She had hoped to occupy the spotlight for a much longer period, she had come prepared to impress, and all she had done was to answer nine short questions.

Squeed was on his feet, and halted her as she stepped down from the witness stand.

"Just a minute, Mrs. Johnson. One or two points I would like to clear up. You say that Mrs. Gibbs leaves her work every evening about nine o'clock. You are sure of that time, are you?"

"Yes, sir. Positive. I mark it down in my book so that I dock her pay just that much."

"And she returns how much later?"

"I told you once. About twenty minutes later."

"She goes with your consent, does she?"

"Yes, sir. I suppose so. She knows that I know when she leaves."

"You have made no effort to stop her, or have you?"

"No, I ain't."

"Then during the fifteen minutes she has gone she is not under your supervision."

"I don't know."

"Well, she isn't. Therefore you are not responsible for her conduct during that time, and you don't know where she is or what she is doing."

"O, yes, I do. I know as well as anybody else where she is, and just about what she's doing—and don't you fool yourself."

"At nine o'clock, or whatever time it is she leaves the cannery with your consent, until the moment when she is again admitted to the payroll twenty minutes later, she is a free agent over whom you have no control and know nothing about. Therefore, you cannot say she has gone home to mind the baby, as you said a few moments ago—"

"Say, see here, mister! Are you trying to bully me?" The immense woman rose in her seat, and the crowd grinned in appreciation of anybody trying to bully Mrs. Johnson.

"Are you trying to tell me I don't know what's what?"

While the audience roared, Squeed tactfully ignored the woman. Instead he addressed himself to the court.

"Your honor, I demand that the testimony of this woman to the effect that her employe, Mrs. Gibbs, goes home from work every evening to tend the baby be stricken from the records. Granted that Mrs. Gibbs does leave the cannery, the witness is not in a position to know where her employe goes or what she does when she reaches her destination, provided she has a destination to reach."

"Objection sustained!" Judge Golden mopped his brow, then, leaning over his desk toward the clerk, called out for his benefit, "Charlie—you will strike it from the record—run your pencil through that part of it." Straightening up, "Proceed."

The crowd looked at Joe to see how he took the reverse. But Joe smiled. He could get the point some other way if necessary. Furthermore, it confirmed his belief that Squeed was blindly picking at his defenses, which were rising as solid as a granite wall around him.

"That is all, Mrs. Johnson," and the cannery woman, pleased with her morning's work, resumed her seat among her friends, fully prepared to offer Joe advice or information if he should need any more from her.

The audience leaned forward. Things were getting interesting. Joe had evidently spent the night to good purposes. Yesterday everything was going against him. But the situation, they saw, had changed overnight—unless he was merely bluffing along. For Joe, that wouldn't be at all unlikely, though they had never seen him in action before.

Mrs. Gibbs, by now a bundle of nerves, fearing the worst, came forward, stepped to the witness stand, and was sworn.

"Mrs. Gibbs, what is the name of your baby?"

"Paul Eugene, sir."

"Healthy little chap, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir."

"Ever had to call a doctor for him?"

"Yes, sir."

"What doctor?"

"Doctor Sandoe."

"What seemed to be the trouble?"

"Rupture."

"What day was it you called the doctor first?"

"June 19th."

"Day before Pete Wilson met his death," commented Joe. "What time?"

"I don't remember the exact time."

"Morning, afternoon, or night?"

"About eleven o'clock at night."

"Is it true you work at the cannery?"

"Yes, sir."

"Tell me, do you leave every evening shortly after nine for fifteen minutes or so?"

"Yes, sir, I do."

"Please tell the court what you do in that period of time."

"I go home to see if the baby is all right."

"Yes, sir."

"Never crying?"

"Yes, sir. Sometimes he is."

No chance to lie, for hadn't he been on the spot last night?

"What do you suppose makes him cry?"

"Nothing particular. Just happens so, I guess."

"I see. Suppose the noise of the train has anything to do with it?"

"Perhaps," with dropped eyes.

"Have you found the cottage noisy as a location?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you tried to move?"

"Yes. What Mr. Jansen said was true."

"And the day you decided to move was the day after Pete Wilson was killed. Wasn't it?"

The woman said nothing.

"I hope to prove," continued Joe to the court, "that there is a distinct relation between the decision to move and the fatality at Fools Crossing. That's all, Mrs. Gibbs."

SQUEED made no effort to detain the woman.

"Mr. Gibbs."

The engineer came forward sullenly. It was evident he knew the direction in which things were moving.

"Mr. Gibbs, just a few questions as to the nature of the track? Your cottage is where, in relation to it?"

"Right alongside."

"Is the track curved or straight from your cottage on to the crossing at which Pete Wilson was killed?"

"Curved."

"Therefore, am I right in saying that as you go around the curve the headlight from your locomotive doesn't hit the crossing, but strikes a point on the side of the track as it follows the curve?"

"Yes, I guess you're right. The light strikes the cannery walls, then the lumber mills, until a few yards off the crossing, when it hits the straight again."

"Is there a bell at the crossing?"

"No—there ain't."

"And the light doesn't hit it either until you are right on top of it?"

"That's what I said."

"Then there's absolutely no protection for anybody on the crossing?"

"Well, the train ain't running on rubber wheels. It makes plenty of noise."

"You whistle?"

"Of course."

"At what point from the crossing do you start to whistle?"

"Four or four hundred and fifty yards away."

"That is, you whistle just as you come abreast of your own front door?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now, Mr. Gibbs, one last question and I think we are through—"

But that was as far as Joe got, for suddenly there was a commotion in the court room, and Mrs. Gibbs, sobbing hysterically, came to the front and flung herself into her husband's arms.

"Oh, it's true! It's true! Don't let him ask it, Gene!" she cried. "I told you we couldn't keep it a secret!"

"That's all right," said Joe, sympathetically.

SQUEED had also risen at the suddenness at which events had culminated. Pushing him back into his seat, Joe strode over to the jury, while everybody in the court room craned forward to catch every word.

"Now, let's wind this up," Joe began hastily. "Mrs. Gibbs, and you, too, Mr. Gibbs, can correct me if I err. Mrs. Gibbs worked every night in the cannery, her husband was also away, and the baby was left alone in the house. If he remained asleep, everything was all right. But every night the 9:17 lumbered by and whistled for the crossing, Paul Eugene, the baby, woke and cried until somebody put him back to sleep again. This made it pretty inconvenient for the mother. On June 19th he cried so much he ruptured himself. Husband and wife agreed there was only one thing to do. They couldn't find anybody to stay with the youngster at night, since all Mrs. Gibbs' friends worked with her at the cannery, so, putting their heads together, they decided that Gibbs should not whistle. They tried the plan out on June 20th—and the result? The crossing was left absolutely unprotected, even the headlight of the locomotive doesn't sweep the track until too late—and on that night Pete Wilson was killed. Then they had to go back to their old regime again of whistling for the crossing. Mrs. Gibbs tried to get home every night before the train came along—the time book shows that to be true. Things couldn't go on like this much longer, hence the request to find a new home, which we find entered on Jansen's record two days after the baby was so ill a doctor was necessary. So, a husband's acquiescence to his wife's request not to wake the baby killed Pete Wilson. At the same time the husband was negligent in his duty to the railroad; and being an employe of the railroad we may say that it is responsible for Pete Wilson's death. Am I right? Mrs. Gibbs? Am I right in my facts?"

The woman, crumpled in the arms of her husband, sobbed her agreement with the facts, and Gibbs hung his head.

Judge Golden, mopping his brow, was giving final instructions to the jury. But they didn't need any. There was only one verdict possible—and no jury in Hemlock had yet been known to attempt the impossible.

In the crush that followed, Joe found Granny Wilson before him, and at her urgent request stooped down, and in front of them all, she kissed him.

Half an hour later, Joe was in his office again. Mary Temple was with him. He picked up the telephone.

"Hello—Grace? Say, Grace, I haven't found that telephone directory yet. Can you get me Jansen?"

A pause while Mary wondered what was to happen.

"Hello—Jansen? This is Joe speaking. What was that you were trying to tell me in that mob there at the courthouse? . . . O, I see. You bet—four rooms—furnished—yep—a yard, lawn, trees, shrubbery, why I guess I'll be ready to move in about—"

He put his hand over the mouthpiece, and turned to the girl.

"When, Mary?"

She whispered something.

"—all right, Jansen—she says to have it ready within a week!"

He hung up the receiver and took the girl in his arms just as the door opened, and the old cronies, led by Herb, trooped into the office to finish their discussion on the British labor party.

jury that finally decided the case refused to find the two officers guilty of any misconduct. But it also refused to pronounce the Hon. John Hugo Russell the father of the disputed baby.

The house of lords' recent decision makes it necessary for the Hon. Mr. Russell to base an application for a new trial of his divorce suit on entirely different grounds.

If he obtains a new trial, it is expected that Mrs. Russell's counsel will insist on samples of the husband's and the baby's blood being subjected to chemical analysis and comparison. Such a procedure would have been useless at the time of the first trial because the "dream baby" was not then old enough to give the character of its blood any significance.

Glands Awakened; Vigor Renewed

W. D. Luttrell.

PAST 68; DECLARES HE FEELS LIKE 30

A complete rejuvenation at the age of 68—a prompt awakening of glands and nerves and a renewal of youthful vigor—is the return W. D. Luttrell, of Lincoln, Neb., says he got from a brief use of Korex compound

"Korex is just fine!" he writes. "Since I began using it I have gained 21 pounds and never felt better in my life. Without any gland operation, my youthful vigor has been restored, and I owe this rejuvenation and re-awakening of glands and nerves to Korex Compound. I am 68 years old but don't feel a day over 30. I feel just like a kid and haven't an ache or a pain. There is nothing too good to say for this wonderful remedy. It is the best thing I ever heard of to build up a man."

"Korex tablets make a man out of an old drag. I am 79 years old but I felt the effects of them in two days."—C. H. King, Tinsman, Ark. "Korex was a Godsend to me. I got better in four days after I began taking it."—W. L. Finley, Sunny South, Ala. "Korex has helped me wonderfully. After one day's treatment I noticed the difference."—H. G. Thompson, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

—is the testimony of many who say they have been made "young" again by a recent medical discovery. If you lack vigor and vital force, if you feel "old" too soon, read the remarkable letters reproduced here.

WOULD you like to feel again the thrill of youthful vigor and ambition—a youthful eagerness for work or play—a youthful interest in all that makes living worth while? Would you like to drink from a "fountain of youth" and be made young again?

Mankind has ceased to hope that such a mythical fountain of waters will be found, BUT—

In exchange for that lost hope, great physicians give us the comforting assurance that medical science, in many instances, not only has halted senility but restored youth to the aged. AND—

Trustworthy citizens in all parts of the country are testifying by scores that they have been invigorated, re-energized, made "young" and happy by a simple, inexpensive home treatment—a method based on discoveries made by European physicians and used by them with marked success, according to their writings, in treating nerve weakness, lost vigor, low vitality and premature age.

This method—growing out of the private practice of famous Old World specialists—now is available to everyone. If the question of increased vigor or a renewal of the youthful spirit and energy interests you, read a few of the many remarkable reports made by persons who have used this treatment—the recently developed tablet preparation known as Korex Compound. Note that both young and old tell of virtually the same gratifying effects, produced in some instances in a surprisingly short time.

Equal to Gland Operation, He Believes

Thomas Finegan, 72, of Wichita, Kan., says: "Two months ago I found myself getting old too fast. I tried Korex and soon my glands and nerves felt invigorated and my youthful vigor returned. I believe Korex will do all that these gland operations are supposed to do."

"I can truthfully say I feel 25 to 30 years younger since taking Korex," writes Chas. S. Watkins, Taft, Cal. "I am 66 but feel so young that I take part in the club dances now." W. A. Mullis, Charlotte, N. C., says: "Korex has made me feel like 30, instead of 73. My glands are active and I don't know I have a nerve in my body." Julio Aviles, 25, a soldier at Camp Meade, Md., says: "My glands are active and I have lost that worn-out, no-courage feeling since taking Korex."

According to European medical men, one ingredient of Korex is noted for its direct action on important lower spinal nerve centers which, when awakened, improve the circulation and speedily bring on a delightful sense of renewed energy. Other ingredients of the compound are intended to supplement this process and build up the system generally. Many users declare Korex has made them "new," physically and mentally, and that the improvement persists undiminished, even after months have passed.

J. L. Rowell.

MADE "YOUNG" AT 84 IN 10 DAYS, HE SAYS

"I have experienced a complete rejuvenation through the use of Korex Compound," says J. L. Rowell, 84, of Kaw City, Okla. "Without a gland operation or expensive treatments, my glands have been made active, my vital nerve centers awakened and I have been made young again. It is not too much to say I have found a 'fountain of youth.'

"Soon after I began taking Korex I knew that youth was being restored and my glands awakened. Now I am enjoying a remarkable reinvigoration and restoration of gland and nerve activity. My muscles are supple, my eyesight clearer and I can do a man's work. I feel as young and vigorous as I did at 30, although I am 84." Mr. Rowell says his rejuvenation required only 10 days.

"Korex compound is all O. K. It took effect on me in 24 hours."—R. A. Leonard, Geneva, O. "I have found nothing to take the place of Korex. I felt new vigor and strength within ten hours after I began taking it."—W. Adkins, Bel, La. "Korex moves all troubles and restores all joy and pleasures. I am truly surprised at its power and results."—Herbert Rencher, Lockland, O.

YOUNG FOLKS SECTION

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING JUNE 29, 1924.

By Jane Corby

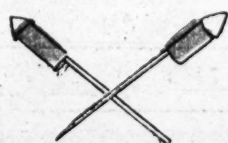

This is the hall,
And here are the people,
This is the way
They looked toward the steeple.

Eyes, eyes, eyes, eyes,
Full of wonder and surprise.

This is the bird
That furnished the pen;
What a proud bird
He must have been then!

Strut, strut, very proud,
Far away from all the crowd.

This is the boy
Who waited to tell,
When it was time
To ring the big bell.

Standing, standing by the door,
Hoping, hoping more and more.

This is the bell
And here is its song:
"Liberty! Liberty!
Ding, dong, dong!"

Music sweet to every ear,
Sweetest music one can hear.

This is the shout
The people raised;
This is the way
They clapped and praised.

Clap, clap, hurray!
Independence Day!

Here are the fires
They lit at night,
Making all
The darkness bright.

Crackle, crackle, glowing red!
Flames higher than your head.

This is the lady
So eagerly sought,
For whom all the people
United and fought.

Liberty! Liberty! Sweet and fair,
Welcome here and everywhere.

This is the Uncle
Whose first birthday fell
On that long-ago Fourth;
And now for a yell:

Uncle Sam! Hurray!
Independence Day!

LIVELY GAMES TO PLAY AT CAMP

The beggars are coming to camp! And they're playing tag—a new kind that you've never tried. Any number can play, the more the merrier.

After having counted out to see who is to be "it," draw a line on the ground about four feet from a wall or fence and parallel to it. The line should be ten feet long. From each end of the line draw a line to the wall or fence, so you have a rectangle, with the wall as one side. This is the beggars' hangout, and there the "it" stands at the beginning of the game.

Don't Divide Hands

Clasping his hands together, "it" calls out, "Run beggars, run!" Then he leaps from the hangout and chases the other players, trying to tag them without dividing his hands.

When a player is tagged he returns to the hangout with the "it" and they take hands, giving the "Run, beggars, run" cry before leaving the hangout to catch another player. The two must not let go of each other's hand. If they should let go while tagging some one, the one tagged may order the "its" to carry him back to the hangout. If they will not do so, he is not caught.

The game may also be played by having the "its" split up in pairs, instead of having all of them together in one long line. This type of play makes a faster game and is more effective in tagging the uncaught players than the other form.

Must Carry Captor

When the game is played either way it is more fun to have a rule that when the taggers' hands are unclasped they may be tagged by the men they are chasing, and any man so tagged must carry his captor back to the hangout where he will be set free on arrival. If this rule is used, the boys being chased may try to make the beggars break their line by charging it from the rear.

A STORY OF A LETTER WHICH BORE A HURRY-UP STAMP

It was an important day at Camp Echo, because the campers were to find out whether they could stay a week longer or whether they must leave next morning. By ten o'clock all six of the boys had started to the post office at the crossroads to wait for the mail, although the train that climbed the cedar and scrub-oak woods on the foothills was not scheduled to appear until eleven, and then was usually late.

"Gee," sighed Fatty Rogers, who found the steep ascent to the village hard pulling, "I don't like all this walking, but even I couldn't wait to find out. If the lady who owns the lodge says she's coming down next week, I'll just lay down in the dust and cry, that's all!"

The beautiful cabin which housed the boys and Mr. Harvey, their camp leader, was the property of the latter's friend, a Mrs. Sebastian, who had given them full possession for a week. The week was almost up when she sent word that if she decided not to occupy the cabin herself the following week the boys might stay longer. She would let them know Friday. That was today.

"Here comes the train," shouted Limpy, the cripple, who had waited outside the village grocery store, which was post office also, while the others sat on cracker boxes within, awaiting its arrival. Uncle

Si, the store owner and postmaster, hobbled out to receive the sack of mail.

It always took the old man a great deal of time to read the picture cards and observe the postmarks on all the letters before he made the distribution, but after much adjustment of his spectacles and careful sorting, he said, "Hears the general delivery for you folkses' camp."

"There isn't anything from Mrs. Sebastian!" cried the boys, looking through the pile. "Now, what'll we do? You're sure we have everything?"

"Didn't I tell you that's all the general mail?" said Uncle Si, snappily.

The boys straggled back to camp. Mr. Harvey, who was frying the dinner steak, was as downcast to hear the news as were his charges. "Mrs. Sebastian said she'd write us if we could have the lodge longer, and since she hasn't, we will have to go back tomorrow," he told them. The boys ate their dinner sadly. For the first time they failed to make the dishwashing a hilarious affair. An hour later, when Fatty was hanging up the towels, a perspiring figure came up to the door. It was the tired and dusty storekeeper.

"I brought out a special delivery letter," he announced. "It's a temptation to give these here things out with the general, but they're supposed to be sent by special messenger. I had to go out and find a boy to keep my counter while I delivered it, but I done it!"

Mr. Harvey's eyes twinkled as he thanked the old man heartily. "It's a very important letter," he assured him, reading the page. "It's from our friend, who says we may camp here another week."

EVERY SWIMMER A LIFE SAVER

Practically any good swimmer can become a good life saver, but just because a person happens to be a good swimmer is no indication that he is a good life saver. Life saving requires training and skill.

The stroke which is best for life saving work is the side stroke, using the cross chest carry. This stroke uses the regular scissors kick and one arm for getting along. The other arm, usually the left, is placed across the victim's chest—OVER BOTH THE VICTIM'S ARMS, NOT UNDER.

Get Him Over Your Hip

If you have any distance to tow the victim, it is best to get him in such a position in the water that he is over your hip as you swim. This makes towing easier.

It is a pretty tricky thing to go after a drowning man and not get severely ducked—unless you know how. The whole secret may be summed up in saying: get your victim from the back, and get him quick, and get him before he gets you. Once you have the cross chest hold on the victim it is easy to make him behave, no matter how bad an actor he may be inclined to be, due to panic or terror.

Use Force If Necessary

If your victim does get panicky while you are towing him, slip your arm up from his chest to his neck. Get his windpipe in the crook of your elbow, squeeze, and at the same time force the victim's head under water. Such treatment, though it sounds rather brutal, is often necessary as a measure of protection to both victim and life saver.

Once you get your victim on shore you should know what to do with him, especially if he is semi-conscious or unconscious. The thing to do first is to loosen all tight clothing and then start in with the prone pressure method of resuscitation.

Put Victim on Stomach

This method consists in putting the victim on his stomach, turning his head to one side, and seeing that his tongue is out and then applying the "prone pressure." Be sure that the tongue is made to stay out.

Following Directions

Pat: "Why are you wearing so many coats on such a hot day?"
Mike (carrying a paint can): "I was goin' to paint me fence and it sez to obtain best results put on three coats."

"Sweet" of Him

Margaret: "The hotel clerk was so flattering."
Ruth: "Why?"
Margaret: "Think of it—he wrote suite sixteen after my name on the register."

even if you have to tie a piece of string to it to make it stay out.

With your victim in the position outlined, kneel so that your legs are straddling him "amidships." Now, put the fingers of your hands together and place your hands just below the victim's floating ribs. Press inward and upward, hard and steadily. Count four quite slowly before you release this pressure and then release it as suddenly as possible.

Count four slowly before applying the pressure again and repeat until the victim begins to show signs of life. Do not give up hope until you have worked on a victim at least three hours. However, you will find that this resuscitation is the hardest kind of physical work and you should alternate with someone else in bringing a person back to life who is apparently drowned. Every boy or girl who swims at all should practice these principles of life saving. Some day this knowledge may save the life of your best friend.

IN SNOPPYQUOP LAND

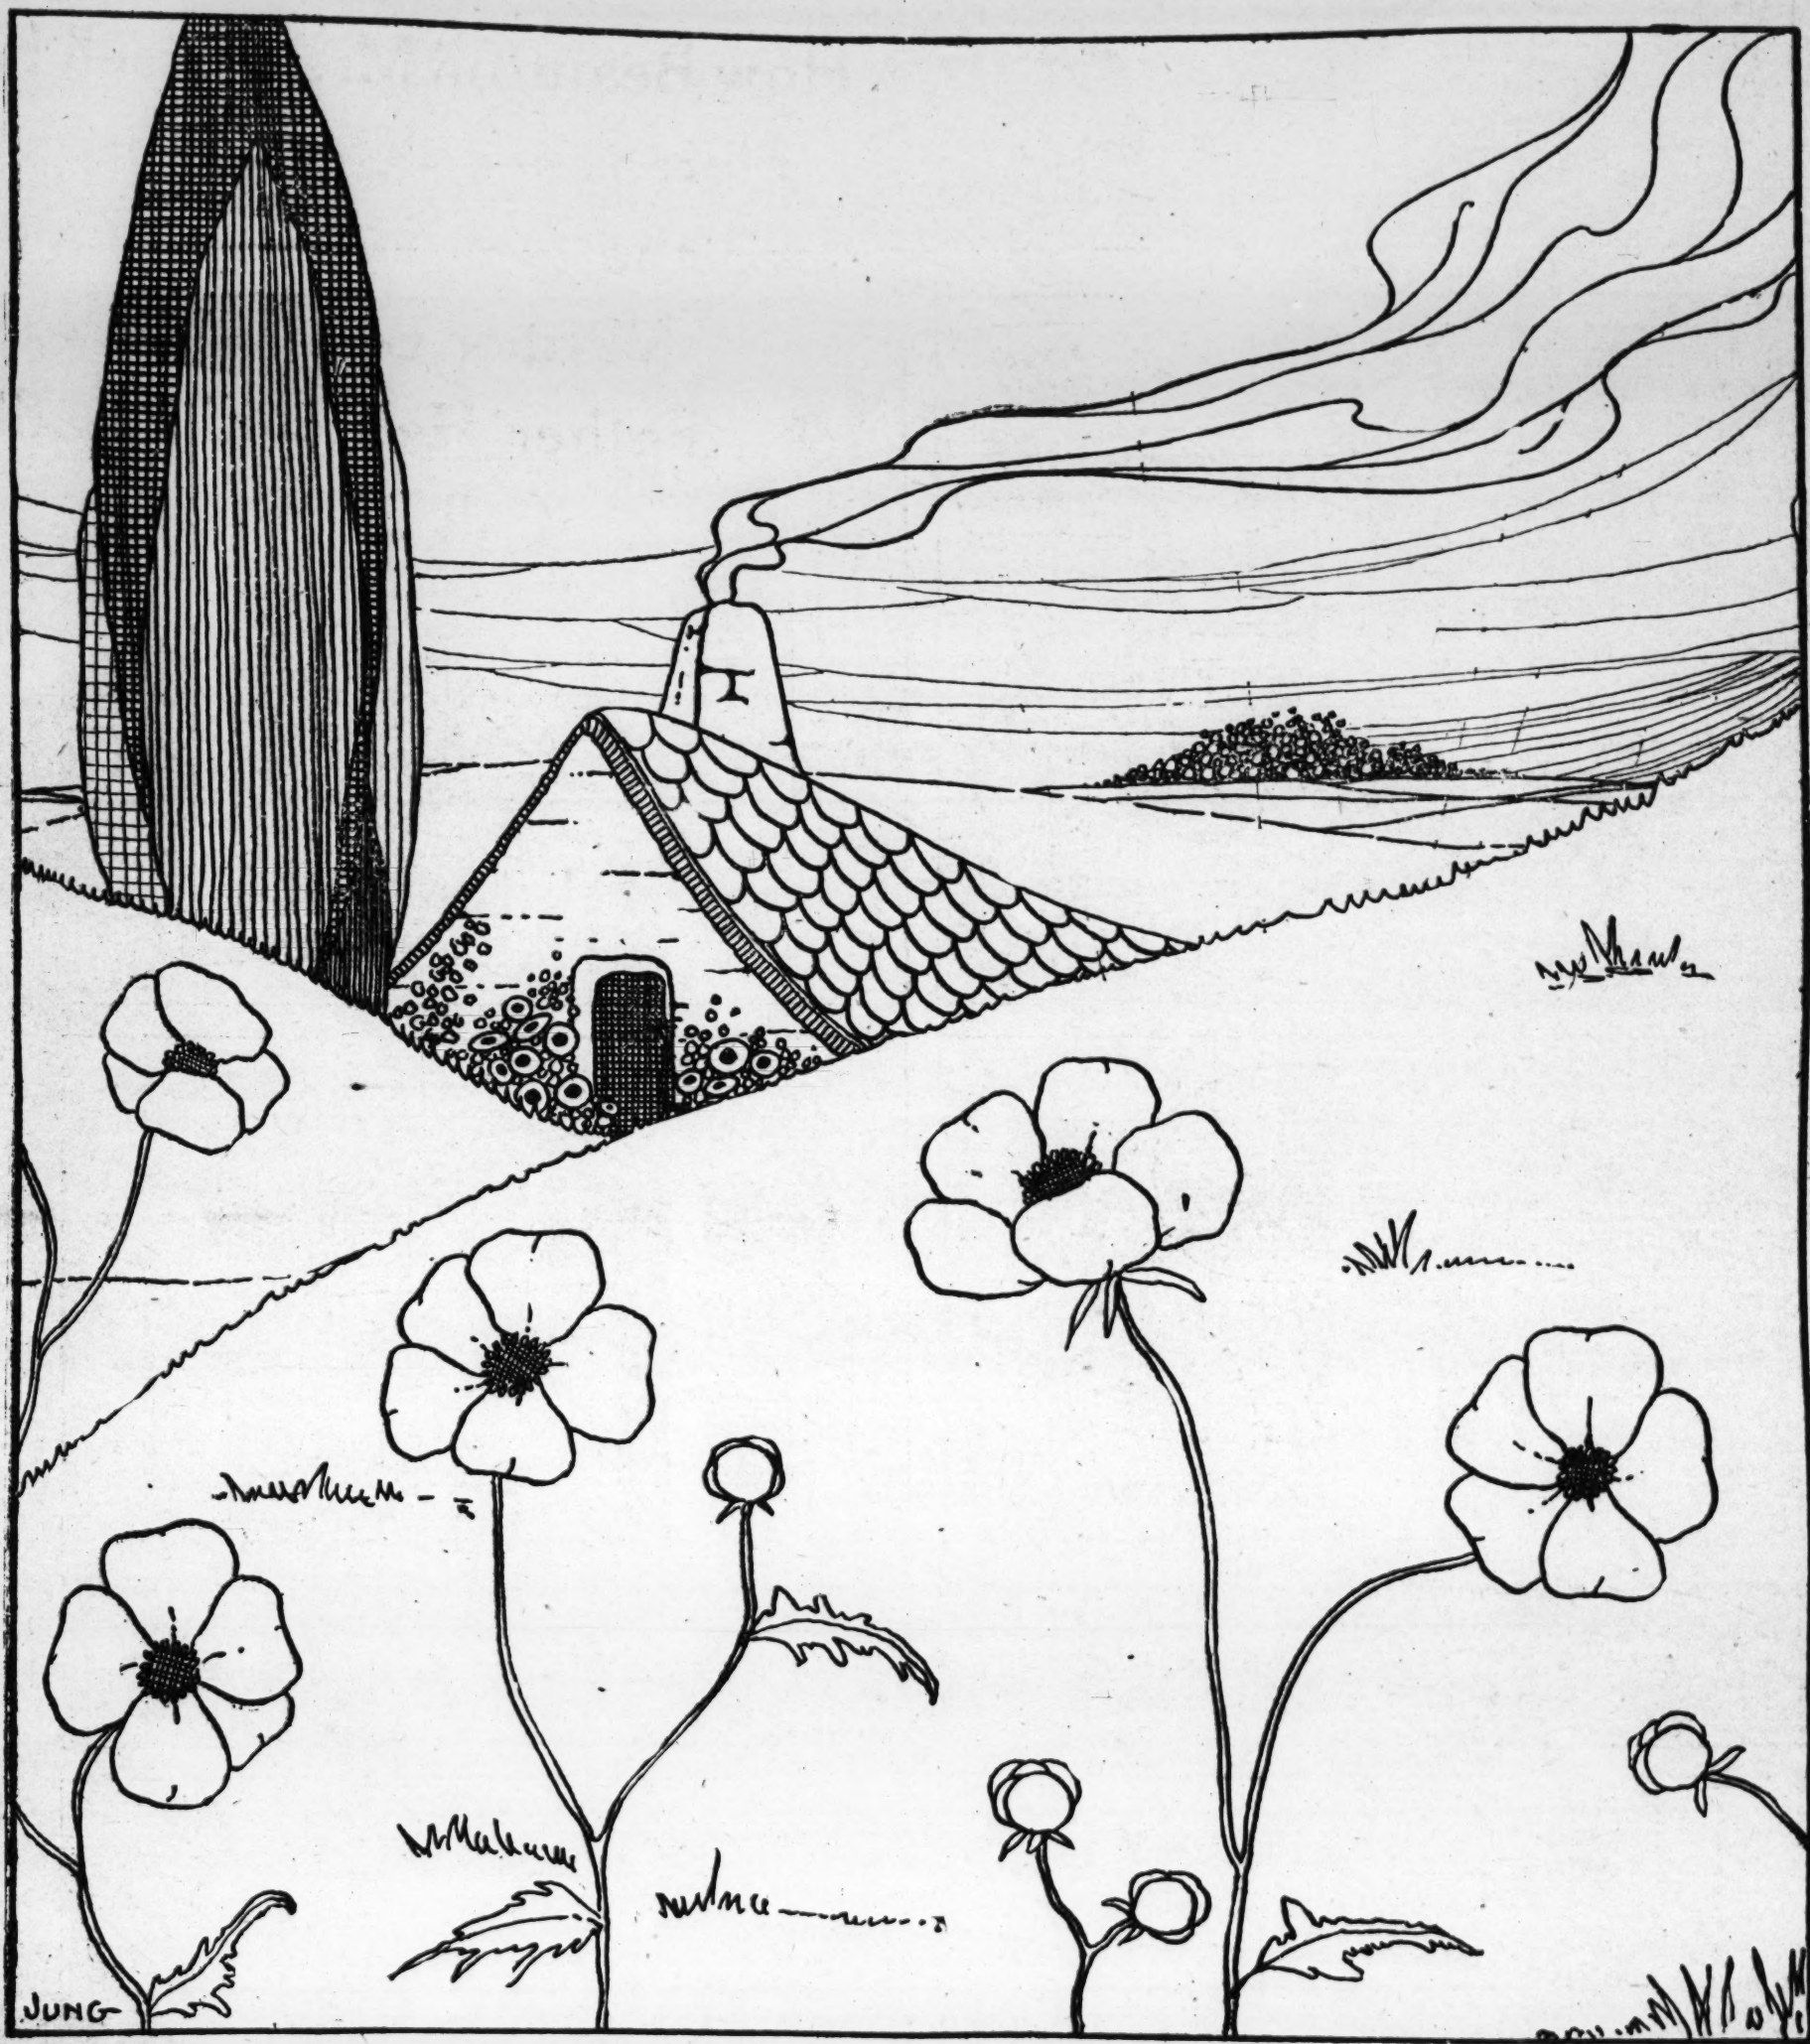

WHERE NOTHING SEEMS QUEER

Here is a gentleman who is about to suffer an attack of sunstroke. Being made up almost entirely of fireworks, this Snoppycracker should be more careful where he sits and reads. Imagine choosing a chair with a magnifying glass for a sun shade—of all places! His fuse is fast catching on fire, as the rays of the July sun are focused on it—and most any second now the foolish fellow will explode with mirth over the funny joke he is reading.

Little Scatter-brains, he doesn't know what's in store for him! Won't he be surprised when he wakes up and finds himself in about 50 pieces? He'll powder his nose, collect his wits, pull himself together and do his reading in a cool, dry place in the future. This should be a warning to all good little Fire quopers—don't read silly stuff that is likely to make you burst. Beware of parrots—for Polly wants a cracker—and be careful how you take your place in the sun.

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND, Graduate Nurse

THE booklet I offer here has been read by thousands of women and girls in the last few months.

If you spend virtually one-sixth of your time, as most women do, in a state of embarrassment, fear, lack of poise, if you are being handicapped by the poor health of many, you are urged to send for this booklet. It tells you of a new way.

A bad habit

80% of the lack of charm, the loss of the immaculacy expected of a woman, according to hygienic authorities, is due to the common use of makeshift "sanitary pads."

60% of many ills common to women, according to numerous medical authorities, are due to the same cause. Using these unsanitary ways is a bad habit.

Millions have turned to a new way. Foremost doctors advise it. Eight in every ten women in the better walks of life have adopted it.

This new way is called KOTEX—a discovery of a nurse in war time France. It supplants old time sanitary pads. Made of Cellucotton—the war's super-absorbent—it absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture.

Hygienically prepared, it does not invite the germs of disease to breed and multiply. Hence it is important in modern health precaution.

No trouble disposing of

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—simply discard it. No embarrassment, no difficulty.

Women who seek daintiness, peace of mind, exquisiteness and safety under all circumstances, use it. Once you do, no other method will ever satisfy. And millions will tell you this.

Easy to get KOTEX

All drug and department stores have KOTEX in plain packages. Get it without embarrassment simply by saying "Kotex." 12 snowy white, immaculate folds in the medium package.

I would like to send you this booklet for women, written by a leading doctor. Just write for it. And if you have never tried KOTEX, I will be glad to send you a sample free.

Do You Want a Slender Figure?

This beautiful hand-painted gown can only be worn by the woman who has a slender figure. You, too, could wear it if you were slender! How thankful you should be, then, that there is one pleasant method of taking off weight. No exercises or diets—just use Marmola Tablets (thousands of men and women have regained healthy, slender figures by using them).

Have you ever tried them? Many of your stylishly dressed slender friends use Marmola Tablets.

All drug stores have them—one dollar a box. Or they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid, by the Marmola Co., 1700 General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Michigan.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots. Simply get an ounce of Othine from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful, clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double-strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.
